Maplesville was among five local chapters of the Alabama Association, Future Homemakers of America, sponsoring homemaking exhibits at the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham this week.

The slogan for the Maplesville exhibit was "From the Shadows of Unsafe, Inefficient Arrangements to the Light of Safe Management." In connection with planning for the exhibit a unit on home management practice and storage is being studied by the homemaking pupils. The two cleaning closets planned by the class are being built by FFA boys. Mrs. Martha Alice Cowan is advisor for the FHA.

Mrs. Perry Thomas returned home last week from Columbus, Ga., where she had spent several weeks due to the illness of her mother, Mrs. Cunningham. At this time she has improved some but is still confined to the hospital. We hope she can soon be well again and able to go home.

PLANT COVER CAN HELP SAVE SOIL AND WATER

A "camouflage" of plants protects soil from "bombing attacks."

The blasting effect of raindrops is a major factor in the erosion process, says S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservation specialist. Thus plant cover that absorbs the destructive force of falling raindrops helps save the soil. Plant cover serves as a springy cushion, intercepting the rain and preventing it from striking the ground surface before being relieved of its force.

On bare land, Doughty warns, raindrops may tear the soil particles loose and carry them away in run-off water.

A continuous supply of plant material on the land helps maintain good soil tilth, holds, the soil in place, and reduces the loss of plant food and organic matter to a minimum.

Doughty's sugestions for maintaining land cover include planting perennial legumes, using sod crops for longer periods in a crop rotation, and making full use of crop residue.

WHO OWNS THIS WEEK'S "MYSTERY FARM"?

Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As

The GEORGE GRAY Farm

For the past two week's we've been trying to find someone who knew the identity of the above farm. This week we found one. And one is all we did find.

The farm was identified as Mr. George Gray's farm at Billingsley. It seems that his is a hard to get to hard to find farm and also hard to recognize from the photo. One fellow said he passed it twice a day and still didn't recognize the place.

Anyhow, Mr. Gray couldn't make it in to town before press time so we will carry the story on his farm on this page next week. Since there will presumably be another also next week this will not be in this space but it will be noticeable on this page. Be sure and look for it because as hard as it was to locate it should be an interesting one.

ACCLIMATE FLOORING TO AVOID LATER WOES

Auburn, Ala.—Hardwood flooring should be "conditioned" for a few days in the building where it is to be laid.

A thoroughly dry structure is ideal, says William T. Cox, API Extension specialist in farm buildings. But whether the building is wet or dry, the flooring should not be laid immediately after delivery to the work site.

If the building is dry, the flooring will need at least three days for normally-absorbed moisture to evaporate. This delay will help prevent later development of cracks between joints.

Cox also explains that a few days delay in putting down kiln-dried flooring in a damp building gives flooring time to become acclimated to the moisture conditions.

Buttermilk should be washed out of buter, not worked out; overworked butter has a sticky body, a dull greasy appearance, and a gummy grain.

Wilson, Jimmy Oaks, Jimmy Powell, Jimmy Puckett, Charles Payton, Billy Jo Ingram, Edward Billingsley and Norman Glasscock are the boys who have decided not to give much yardage to the opposing teams. Wilson and Oaks played their best defensive games of the year against the Wildcats, As usual Roy Mims, Edmond Littlejohn and Arthur Robinson were the big ground gainers for the Tigers. Boyce Comer did a fine job on defense. Edmond Littlejohn scored all the touchdowns and kicked the extra point for Clanton. Tommy Hatchett, Earl Riley and Deward Averett were the big standouts for the Wildcats.

Columbiana kicked off to Clanton and the Tigers drove up to their own 46 yard line and fumbled, Riley recovering for the Wildcats. Riley and Lyon gained enough for a first down on the Tiger 34 yard line. Hatchett passed to Lyon for 34 yards and a touchdown. Riley passed to Johnson for the extra point and the Wildcats were out front 7 to 0. The Tigers received the kickoff on their 15 and went to the Wildcat 31 yard line before losing possession of the ball, by fumbling. After two plays the Tigers line had thrown the Wildcats back for a three yard loss they punted ou third down. Robinson returned the punt to his 44 yard line. Mims next rifled a pass to Littlejohn who, with the aid of a hard block by Wilson, ran untouched to score. Littlejohn's attempted place kick for the extra point was blocked and the Tigers were still trailing, 6 to 7. The Wildcats returned to their 32, and the Tigers line gave only four yards on three plays and the Wildcats punted to the Tiger 20. Mims returned the kick 8 yards. Two plays later Comer fumbled and the Wildcats recovered on the Tiger 26 yard line. The Tiger stone wall stopped the Wildcats' four plays with the Wildcats losing a yard and possession through downs on the Tiger 27 yard line. On the, next play the Tigers were penalized 15 yards back to their 12 yard line. Robinson gained back up to the 24 and on the next play fumbled it again—and the Wildcats took over on the 24. Four plays gave the Wildcats a first down on the Tiger 12. Four plays later the Tigers had thrown the Wildcats back to the 14 and gained possession via downs. Mims shot through the line up to his 35, then up to his 45. Theu Robinson shook off and was tackled on the Wildcat 30. Mims passed to Robinson who received on the 8 yard line and ran to the 3 yard line and fumbled when tackled. Littlejohn sprinted over and picked up the football and ran over for the TD and the Tigers were out front 12 to 7. Again Littlejohn's kick for the extra point was blocked and the score remained, Tigers 12, Wildcats 7. Lyon received Littlejohn's kickoff on the 10 and returned to the 20. A pass play made a first down for the Wildcats on their 35. Their next three passes went incomplete and the Wildcats punted out of bounds on the Tiger 32 yard line. Mims sprinted 11 yards for a first down on the Tiger 43. A long pass from Littlejohn to Wilson went incomplete as the first half ended.

Columbiana received the second half kickoff and returned to their 33. Three plays gained only 4 yards and the Wildcats punted. Roy Mims took the punt on his own 25 yard line and was finally brought down on the mid-field stripe. Robinson and Mims ran two plays each and were down to the Wildcat 24. Wilson made it another first down on the 14. Mims and Robinson made enough gains for another first down on the 3. Mims got to the 2. Then Robinson fumbled as he was crossing the goal line and the Wildcats recovered on the one foot line. The Wildcats punted and the Tigers were penalized 15 yards for roughing the kicker and it gave the Wildcats a first down on their own 16 yard line. They made a first down and advanced to the 30 before having to punt. Averett's 35 yard punt was downed on the Tiger 36. Mims and Robinson advanced the ball to the Wildcat 35 before Robinson fumbled, a Wildcat recovering. On the next play Comer recovered a Wildcat fumble on the 37. Mims and Robinson shot through holes, made by the Tiger forward wall, down to the one yard line. Littlejohn bucked over for his third TD, then kicked the extra point and the score was—Clanton 19, Columbiana 7.

After receiving the kickoff, the Wildcats were unable to make a first down and punted to the Tiger 23 yard line. Mims fumbled as he received the punt and Johnson recovered for Colambiana. In six plays the Wildcats were down on the Tiger one yard line. A penalty against Clanton advanced the ball to the 1-2 yard line and Hackett bucked over to score. Knowles' attempted pass for the extra point went incomplete and the score was Clanton 19, Columbiana 13. The Tigers received the kickoff and picked up yardage down to the Wildcat 45 yard line as the game ended. Clanton did not have to punt during the entire game, but seven fumbles proved costly.

JEMISON NEWS

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

Baptist News—

At the service Sunday morning the elderly members of the church were honored. Each lady received a corsage, the men a boutonaire.

The attendance in Sunday School is now beyond the 130 mark and the offerings are increasing. One member has been received by baptism and one by letter this month. The church is beginning a building fund. Sunday School rooms are badly needed. All officers are taking up their duties and going forward in a nice way.

Officers of the Ladies Class: President, Mrs. Tom Cost; vice president, Mrs. Jeff Hand; secretary, Miss Mary Clements; custodian of the birthday fund, Miss Ola Rogers. The birthday fund is made up of pennies for each year of age and is used to send cards to the sick, absentees and gifts for the injured and those hospitalized. There were 26 members present Sunday.

Installation Service—

The officers of the Womens Missionary Union were installed at a very impressive service Monday, September 27th. Rev. Louis Brasher was the installing officer.

The service began by all present singing, "Higher Ground." Miss Mary Clements gave the devotional, reading the 1st Psalm. Mrs. Donald Jones gave the opening prayer. A miniature lavender ladder with white rungs was placed at the front of the room; the ladder was used as a symbol and theme of the installation. A continual vision of God and continual experience of the ascent and descent of our desires and his blessings should save officers in WMU from becoming small and spiritless.

As each officer received her charge she placed a placard on the ladder pertaining to her office. Mrs. Frances Davenport read appropriate scripture to each office. Officers installed were: President, Mrs. Donald Jones; circle chairman, Mrs. B. C. Lenoir and Mrs. Hugh Rogers; young people's director, Miss Mary Clements; counselors, Mrs. Louis Brasher, Intermediates; Mrs. Tom Cost, Juniors; Mrs. V. O. Lenoir and Mrs. J. A. Chandler, Sunbeams; first vice president, Mrs. Seymore Reynolds; second vice president, Mrs. Marvin Dawson; recording secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Tom Cost; stewardship chairman, Mrs. Sam Woodley; Mission Study chairman, Mrs. Lonnie Coob; community missions chairman, Mrs. George Naish; literature chairman, Miss Miriam Harvey; and benevolence chairman, Mrs. Hugh Rogers.

All members repeated in unison 1 Cor. 3:9A. All officers repeated this pledge: "What I can do, I should do; and with God's help, What I can do, I will do." Song, "Our Best."

Meeting of Junior GA's—

The Junior GA's met at the church Thursday afternoon, Oct. 7th. An election of officers was held, president, Della Cost; vice president, Sandra Lee Rogers; secretary-treasurer, Lois Ann Woodley; reporter, Linda Clements; community missions chairman, Rena Mae Blackmon. Members brought their Bible to the meeting. They sang the GA song, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations." The watch word, star ideals and allegiance were repeated. The group remembered two young people in the town with fruit juices and cookies as their community missions project.

Recent Bride Honored—

Mrs. Lloyd Samples, who before her marriage was Miss Jean Dennis, was honored with a miscellaneous tea and gift shower at the home of her sister, Mrs. B. C. Lenoir.

A color scheme of pink and green was carried out in the decorations. A large bouquet of pink specimen gladioli was used in the living room.

In the dining room, the bride's table was covered with a Quaker lace cloth and was marked with the crystal punch bowl garlanded at the base with greenery. Lime punch, mints, nuts and individual decorated cakes were served the guests.

The bride received a number of very pretty and useful gifts.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. V. Miller, Mrs. B. O. Lowery and Mrs. Sam Woodley.

VOLUME XXXII — CLANTON, ALABAMA — THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1954 — NUMBER 46

They Came— Large Crowd Attends Democrat Rally Sat.

An improved and extended Farm-to-market road program. . .

Fifty dollar old age pensions. . .

A bridge over the Coosa River between Coosa county and Chilton county. . .

These direct promises formed the main planks in the platform of Gov-Nominate James E. Folsom as he spoke to a crowd of Chilton's voters estimated at 2,000.

Folsom, speaking in front of the County Courthouse last Saturday, also urged the voters to turn out in Chilton and to vote a straight Democratic ticket. He emphasized the closer harmony that would be possible if a full Democratic slate took office next year. Too, he stated that he was sure Chilton County would prosper greatly by sending a Democrat as our representative to the State Legislature.

On the speaking platform with Folsom was George Wallace, Circuit Judge of Barbour County.

The rally, which served as the kick-off for several Democratic rallies to be held over the county, was preceded by a dinner at the Dixie Cafe with Folsom as the principal speaker. The dinner was attended by all the Democratic candidates for county offices as well as those Democratic candidates who were defeated in the primary elections.

Alex Hayes, chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, stated that the rally was a huge success in his estimation and that the attendance and response gave the people a preview of a Democratic victory at the polls on Nov. 2.

To quota Chairman Hayes, "Don't take a chance with your future, mark your X under the rooster."

6 To Go From Chilton County In November

Alabama's November Selective Service call will be for 700 men Col. J. T. Johnson, Jr., State Director said today. This is a slight drop from the 847 called in October. Those selected will be 22 years of age or older.

Of this number six will be called from Chilton County.

City Pays Two $1,000 Gas Bonds

Mayor Jones announced this week that the City had paid two $1.000 Gas Bonds that would have been due in 1960. By doing this the Mayor stated the City had saved around $750.00 in interest on the bonds.

Mayor Jones Writes In Regard To October Water Bills

Editor Chilton County News:

In your paper of October the 7th, I explained why our water bills included the last 15 days of August under the New Rate when, as a matter of fact, the New Rate was not to apply until September the first.

This caused dissatisfaction among a very few of the water users, and to make sure no one is mistreated or displeased due to our method o. monthly biling, we are using the Old Water Rate in making the bills for the month of October, and by this means of adjustment, each water user is being given fifteen days under the old rate instead of the new rate.

The bills dated November the first, as stated above, will be made by the old rate. Each month thereafter the new rate will apply.

Sincerely,
-s- C. Fenn Jones
C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.

An Appeal

One of Thorsby's most liberal, big hearted men is undergoing a very serious operation this week and the cost will be heavy. The operation alone will cost $1,500.00 and this initial cost does not include other medical expenses and hospital bills. His man is Askew Davis, proprietor of the Thorsby Garage. He has several thousand dollars on his books that people in this vicinity owe him for work, gas and oil. He needs all that he can collect to help him defray the cost of this operation. His heart is in a very serious condition and it is doubtful if he recovers enough to do any of his work for a long time. So please, if you owe any money to him go and pay it in full or as much as you possibly can. It will be deeply appreciated by Askew and the many friends that he and his family have here and around Thorsby.

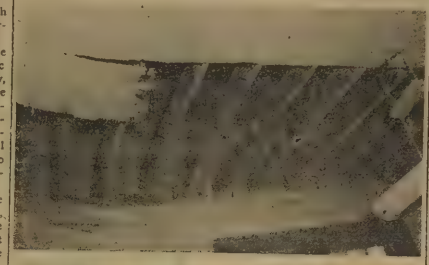
State Of Our Present Courthouse As Seen By Building Commission



JURY ROOM

Scenes Of Most Recent Cave-Ins

In a letter from H. H. Houk of the State Building Commission, to the Probate Judge of Chilton County recently, it was made evident that the county is in dire need of a new building in which to house its official offices. The letter from Mr. Houk was written after a thorough investigation of the present courthouse by the State Fire Marshall. His findings are related in the letter from Mr. Houk to Hon. M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama:

Judge Maynard Dave Tingle
Judge of Probate
Chilton County
Dear Sir:

As requested an inspection was made of the Chilton County Court House, October 13, 1954, in company with J. V. Kitchens, State Fire Marshall.

In the light of the State Fire Marshal's report and my inspection the following findings and recommendations are submitted.

Findings—

1. The Court House has served the better part of a century which is beyond the economic and efficient life of such a building in a growing and progressive County.

2. Continuance of its use will require repairs to the chimney, roof, stairs and other deteriorated parts; replacement of certain ceilings, certain plumbing lines and fixtures; almost the entire electric wiring system; and the removal of existing fire hazards to the extent possible in a building of its type and condition.

3. If replacements, such as wiring, are made their full cost will not be obtained since construction of a new Court House in the near future cannot be avoided because it is impracticable and would be wasteful to attempt to prolong its service life by remodeling and|or adding additions or annexes.

4. Irreplaceable records in the Court House are subject to the hazard of loss or damage, which should it occur, could in the future cost the people and the county more than a new Court House.

5. There is not enough space in the Court House for the units of county government which now occupy it and private buildings are being leased by the County to house other units, which for proper functioning of the units and efficient, convenient service to the people, should be located in the same building. Working conditions in the building cannot be brought up to recognized health standards for all the people working in the county government units which now occupy the building due to lack of space.

Fewer Bales Of Cotton From '54 Crop

The census report for Oct. 1, shows that 6,517 bales of cotton have been ginned from the 1954 cotton crop in Chilton County. This is a small decrease from the 1953 figures. Last year 7,087 bales of cotton had been baled from the 1953 crop, on Oct. 1st.

Construction Of New Armory To Start

Probate Judge M. D. Tingle was notified this week that Clanton had been awarded a National Guard Armory which would cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.00.

Bids on construction of the new building will be let on Nov. 4, it was stated. Work would probably start within 40 days after the bid was let, Judge Tingle said. He also expressed his appreciation to Sen. Lister Hill and Congressman Armistead Selden for their cooperation in securing the Armory for Clanton.

Jemison Panthers Go To Maplesville

Tomorrow night (Friday, Oct. 22) the Jemison Panthers go to Maplesville to hook up with Coach Kelley's dashing band of Red Devils, who always give their opponents a genuine tussle. The Red Devils dehorned our Panthers last year 39 to 0 before the latter's home folks. So you football fans can be out there looking for the Panthers to go all out for sweet revenge.

Don't forget, however, that Coach Kelley's boys have a habit of spoiling that "sweet revenge" spirit sometimes.

Each team has had a double dose of misfortune this season, so naturally they will be snapping at each other's nose.

Band director, P. S. DeRoberts, who has organized and directs bands at both schools will consolidate the bands and furnish music for the game.

These are two of your local County High Schools, so be out there tomorrow night giving your moral support to your school and favorite team.

Here's How We Can Have A New Courthouse With No Additional Taxation

Chilton County is one of four counties in the State of Alabama which is debt free and does not owe any interest bearing indebtedness whatsoever.

Chilton County can pay for the new courthouse out of the Buildings, Road and Bridge Fund. This fund receives approximately $36,000.00 per year from the 2½ mill Ad Valorem Tax, which can all be used for buildings. This will in no way affect the amount of State Gasoline Tax which is available for the maintenance of dirt roads and the maintenance of paved roads. The Gasoline Tax Fund receives approximately $220,000.00 per year of gasoline tax for the maintenance of dirt roads. The Paving Fund receives approximately $113,-000.00 per year of gasoline tax for the maintenance and construction of paved roads. Another $113,000.00 per year of gasoline tax money is set aside in Montgomery in State Funds to be used only for paved roads. Another $37,500.00 (which will be greatly increased under a new law) of Federal Funds is available each year for paved roads in Chilton County. Chilton County has been able to match State and Federal funds out of their own funds available and has sufficient funds to match future funds for paved roads. Chilton County also has available approximately $20,000.00 per year from motor vehicle licenses which can be also used for paved roads It has been able to pave short roads from their own funds.

The question has been asked as to whether or not a new courthouse would affect the schools and money derived for school purposes? The schools in Chilton County get their money from three sources: 1. There is a 7 mill school tax in Chilton County that goes direct to the Board of Education for schools. 2. The State of Alabama provides more than 75 per cent of the funds used in Chilton County for school purposes. 3. Federal funds are provided for vocational education. The funds of the Board of Revenue and Control and the funds of the Board of Education are entirely seperate and no funds can be transferred from one to the other. The funds are deposited in seperate banks. To the contrary, the Board of Education and school funds will be benefited in the amount of over $1,000.00 per year which is now being spent for office rent and janitor service.

After considering the amount of rent saved each year, the cost of paying for a new courthouse would be approximately 2 per cent of the total expenditures of Chilton County each year.

These facts and figures were obtained by a committee of non-partisan voters and taxpayers of Chilton County who are interested only in the general welfare of Chilton County.

Local Groups Take Part In United Nations Day

A community-wide program in observance of United Nations Day is under preparation now and will begin on Sunday, October 24, continuing the following week. The aim of the program which marks the 9th birthday of the UN is to increase public knowledge about and understanding of the United States.

This program was initiated by a group of representatives from various organizations which met on Oct. 7 when Dr. Anne Eastman of Alabama College who is District UN Chairman met with them and encouraged each group to participate in the observance of the wonderful work which the United Nations is doing. Groups officially represented at that meeting were as follows: Study Club, Music Appreciation Club, Garden Club, Pilot Club, American Association of University Women, Kiwanis Club, Boy Scouts, Chamber of Commerce, Home Demonstration Clubs, Presbyterian Church, Methodist Church and Baptist Church.

The final program plans have been revealed and some interesting events are underway.

A feature of the celebration will be a United Nations Booth in front of Mullins & Scott all day on Saturday, Oct. 30, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. sponsored by the Study Club. On display will be objects of UN nature such as a set of UN flags, UN jigsaw puzzle, UN cookbook, a Dialgram which answers questions pertaining to the UN, and other interesting materials. These objects are for sale at a very low price and all the money taken in at the booth will be turned over to The United Nations Children's Fund which gives aid to the world's needy children who are ill, underfed, and underclothed. The Study Club is also using the United Nations as the theme of their programs for the entire year.

Another feature of the UN observance will be a poster contest held among the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades at the Clanton Elementary School. This contest is sponsored by the Garden Club who will give a prize to a student in each grade who makes the best UN poster. The posters will be judged this Friday afternoon and the four best will be displayed downtown next week.

The Home Demonstration Clubs over the county have done a commendable project this year of making a United Nations Flag for each school in the county. They are contacting schools and encouraging the proper display of flags during UN Week and the presentation of programs relating to United Nations.

Another activity will be a United Nations Supper which will be prepared and served by the Methodist Youth Fellowship to members of the church on Sunday night at 6:00

FOREST FIRES COSTLY

In riding over three counties Sunday afternoon we counted at least half dozen forest fires destroying our woodlands. To claim they were started by anything but human carelessness would be a misstatement.

The Birmingham Post-Herald said recently in an editorial: "Each passing day without a soaking rain increases the fire hazard to fields and forests throughout Alabama.

"With the woods tinder dry, the State Department of Conservation is calling on every citizen to aid in preventing costly fires by increased caution.

"Motorists can help by making sure no lighted cigarets are tossed from car windows.

"Hunters, picnickers and fishermen should double-check to see that no live embers are left at cook fires. If water is not available to drench the coals they should be covered deeply with dirt.

"There were nearly 1200 wood fires in Alabama last month. As the trees drop their leaves the danger will be greatly increased.

"One carelessly dropped match or cigaret could do untold damage."

All above cautionary measures are sound and the suggestions should be followed. Chilton County depends on timber for a large part of her cash crop and when anyone is careless in handling fire in the woods they are taking a great chance of hurting themselves, their friends, and their county.

THIS IS NATIONAL BIBLE WEEK

National Bible Week is being observed from October 18th to 24th this year. The purpose of the observance is an effort to reawaken religious thinking in every possible way, and is in line with a year-round campaign carried on by the Laymen's National Committee. Inc., to encourage the reading and study of the Bible.

Among other things, the Laymen's National Committee, Inc., provides graces, of all faiths, in dining rooms of restaurants and hotels, and in railroad dining cars, provides favorite prayers of well known people to the newspapers, sponsors spot announcements over the air throughout the year, and talks by outstanding men and women.

National Bible Week is, however, perhaps the most important of all the organization's activities. It is an effort from which millions of Americans can profit greatly.

The week of October 18-24 is a good time for you to review your study of the Bible, and think about its message, and how much time you have spent studying it recently. Many of us have not read the Bible through completely for a number of years, and the benefits to be gained from a thorough knowledge of the Bible and its lessons, are so great as to make this re-reading well worthwhile.

In fact, life's problems today are little different from those of the times of the Bible, and a study of the Bible will do more to help you meet these problems and arrange your life satisfactorily than anything else we know of.

THE SEGREGATION ISSUE

The momentous decision of the United States Supreme Court was handed down on May 17, last. Since then floods of printed matter have streamed from the printing presses of the nation and many Niagras of words on the subject have cascaded from human lips. Official reactions in the several states, for the most part, have been restrained. The State Board of Education here in Alabama has wisely announced that there will be no change in the status of public school segregation during the current school year.

As we see it, it is extremely unfortunate that the segregation issue was forced through the courts at this particular time. Progress in Negro education in the South during the past five years has been phenomenal. greater progress was being planned and was certain to be achieved when the 1955 legislatures of the several Southern states convened. Everyone was becoming increasingly conscious of the serious deficiencies in Negro education in the South, along with the appalling needs of white children. Together with such realization there was developing, particularly among younger people, decreasing opposition of the idea of one school for both races. Prejudice stemming from such a suggestion was noticeably less pronounced among people under twenty-five than among those older. De-segregation was an evolving concept among members of the younger generation, nurtured for the greater part, perhaps unconsciously, by the impact of vastly expanded means of communication, by war experiences, and by an aroused consciousness. In other words, segregation in education, as in other public services, was facing its exit—not in the immediate future, to be sure, but in the next generation in all probability.

For the states of the deep South the Supreme Court decision applied brakes to this evolving type of social progress. For some time to come, to the difficulty of finding money for school improvement for both races will be added the difficulty of finding public opinion to support additional taxes to make such improvements possible.

The immediate effect of the decision has been to stimulate and irritate Southern prejudices and traditions which apparently were becoming less emphasized in recent years. These reactiviated passions greatly complicate the problem of implementing the decision. That integration of schools has been hastened is seriously doubted.

Social mores are changed through evolution rather than through legislation. Legislation may aid evolution, provided it is not too sudden and does not cut too deep.

The South was not expecting so far-reaching a decision now. It finds some relief in the postponement by the Supreme Court as to when and how the decision becomes effective. In the meantime, each state and each community within each state will study how best to adapt its plans and policies to the federal mandate.—Alabama School Journal.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Joe Williams and I were chatting over the clean-up of a recent collision the other night. It had just rained pretty good, which is somewhat of an unusual thing around these parts lately. Joe said the reason for the wreck was simple; those folks just weren't used to driving on wet streets. He just might have something there. But, too, a yellow light doesn't mean everybody go, it means everybody look out.

If you believe you're in a class all by yourself, you are; but it's not the one you think.

Took a trip to the State Fair and learned something that I wouldn't have believed. We always new Birmingham was dirtier than most places (the atmosphere, we mean, it's a nice town) but we found that it was even dustier than Clanton. They've had rain since we have and it's still dustier up in the big city than it is down here. There's nothing wrong with that as far as the town's concerned, you just couldn't have made us believe anywhere was dustier these days than Chilton County.

* * *

Little cousin Mike Payne says he can't eat candy any more. We thought that was somewhat of a predicament for a feller of his age. When we asked him why he couldn't he said, "It burns my teeth." Guess that's one way of saying you have an old-ashioned tooth ache.

Ralph Johnston down at Unchurch's really has some funny things happen to him. He says during his sale he's been having some folks won't even take the second bottle of something for the extra 1c. In other words you can get 1 for 50c or 2 for 51c and he can't even give the second one to them. Don't know whether that's ignorance or just plain stubbornness, but we say when it comes that cheap, you'd better take it.

See where some "fine citizen" would like to have all the dogs that are tied up and that bark during the night taken out and shot. What kind of an attitude is that?

It isn't even a case of whether you're a dog lover or not, it's just plain being human. What kind of a person is it who would want something killed for their own comfort and pleasure.

The dogs and other animals were put here for a purpose just as you and I, whether it be for the dog lovers or something else. A person thinking along the lines of killing something just because it was causing him discomfort has something missing in their make-up.

We've been on both sides of the tence; we've had dogs and we have talked about dogs bothering us, but we've yet to see anyone who really thought that they should all be done away with.

When it is said that feelings will not be hurt and that dogs serve no purpose it would be good to talk to some of those folks who do benefit from them. We won't name them, but there are innumerable ways in which our canine friends aid us every day.

We doubt that there are too many who share the sympathies of the above mentioned, but for those few who do, we'd hate to make them mad at us for they are liable to shoot us.

For those folks who think politics is nothing but a bunch of low-down dealing by a bunch of self-centered individuals, it would do good for those people to take a long look at their American heritage and at all the great men in politics who made our country what it is today and has been in the past, and then let them pass judgement on the lowly statesmen and politicians.

IT'S MY OPINION

Even more important, than doing things for another is being appreciative when they do something for us.

It takes little effort and certainly less expense to say, "thank you," for something that someone has done in your behalf. Too, "thank you," can be expressed in many, many different yaus to suit the occasion.

Too many times we take things for granted and say to ourselves, "well, they know I appreciate it." The very fact that they know you do appreciate it is the reason you should express your thankfulness. The person who is expected to be appreciative of a favor and then says nothing about it to the giver is doing more of an injustice than would the person who was not expected to be outwardly thankful in the first place.

When someone does you a favor or a good deed show them that you appreciate it, otherwise, they will wonder whether you did appreciate it or not and they might not be as quick to want to do a favor the next time. It is the cheapest thing and will surely be the most appreciated. Anyone likes to be thanked for doing something for others.

Often we ourselves have fallen short of expressing our appreciation for a good deed or a favor and known all the time the person would have appreciated a little outward show of thankfulness. It is one liability that we all should overcome, or at least practice on, whenever the opportunity arises.

Those who are aggressive enough to express their apreciation to others are blessed in that respect. Sometimes these people are too aggressive, but the good points of aggressivenss often tend to overshadow those points that we find unfavorable.

The next time someone does you a good turn, if it is within you, try to show them that you appreciate it, by some outward sign. If you are the type person who says to yourself, "They know I appreciate it," then nobody derives any satisfaction from it but yourself. The person who has done you the favor cannot be completely sure that you did appreciate it unless you let them know by saying so.

DEMOCRATS STILL HOLD LEAD IN VOTE FOR CONGRESSMEN

Would Win Control Of House If Elections Were Held Today

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

Princeton, New Jersey—Despite the fact that GOP and Democratic Congressional candidates have been working around the clock in their efforts to win on November 2, sentiment remains unchanged from what it was four weeks ago.

At that time, Democratic candidates for Congress led GOP candidates in the nation by a margin of five per cent. Today, Democratic candidates in the nation still hold that same five per cent margin over GOP Congressional candidates.

Here's how the vote went in the nation in a United States Poll completed last week when staff workers asked a representative cross-section of the nation's voters:

"If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican or the Democratic?"

The following table shows the nationwide results among those who had an opinion on the above question or who, if undecided, stated toward which party they "leaned."

Nationwide Vote For Congressmen (House of Representatives)

Democrats	53 percent
Republicans	47 percent

Four weeks ago, the vote on the question was exactly the same as today—Democrats 53 per cent; Republicans, 47 per cent.

Today's findings represent a 2.8 per cent loss in GOP strength and a 2.8 cent gain in Democratic strength in the nation since the November, 1952, Congressional Elections.

At that time, GOP candidates for Congress (House of Representatives) polled 49.8 per cent of the nationwide vote for Congressional candidates, and Democratic candidates 50.2 per cent.

It must be understood that today's findings reflect sentiment for the nation as a whole. They cannot be applied to any single Congressional District.

Here's how today's United States Poll "trial heat" vote compares with the official 1946, 1948, and 1952 nationwide Congressional returns.

National Congressional Vote (House of Representatives)

	Repub.	Demo
1946 Election	54.3%	45.7%
1948 Election	46.3	53.7
1950 Election	49.7	50.3
1952 Election	49.8	50.2
Today's U. S. Poll	47.0	53.0

off-year (non-Presidential) election year.

In 1950, the Democrats won control of the House by a margin of 19 seats.

In 1952, the GOP won control of the House by a margin of 3 seats.

It is a matter of record that only once during the 20th Century has the party in power increased its lead in an off-year election. That was in 1934 when the Democrats gained 9 House seats.

Today's survey results indicate that unless the GOP can become more popular with voters across the nation in the next few days, it will very likely lose some Congressional seats on November 2—almost certainly losing control of the House of Representatives.

It must be understood that today's survey results are a reflection of sentiment nearly two weeks before Election Day.

Sentiment can and does sometimes change in the last few days.

For this reason, results of another poll now in the field will be reported next week.

Watch for it in this newspaper.

Judge Tingle Makes Progress Report Of Past Two Years

The fiscal year of 1953-54 closed out September 30, 1954 with the County in excellent financial condition. The County still does not owe any interest bearing debts such as bonds, warrants, or loans. All phases of our county government, in my opinion, are being operated systemmatically and economically. Rapid progress is being made in improving county roads in Chilton County, under the county unit plan of highway management.

Roads To Be Paved Under Construction—

2. Yellowleaf Creek Bridge on Mineral Springs-Lay Dam Road.

Chilton County Constructing And Paving Roads With Own Equipment—

Mr. George Talbert, our new County Engineer, is now blacktopping roads with the county's own equipment. The county now owns the necessary equipment with which to grade, drain, base and blacktop its roads to completion. The county is at the present time blacktopping the Mars Hill-Ala. 191 road; Maplesville to U. S. 82 road; and Billingsley North Road. Other projects under construction will be blacktopped as soon as possible. Preliminary plans on other paving projects will be made in the near future.

Road Maintenance

Over 5,00,000 cubic yards of gravel has been placed on county roads in the past two years. Over 210 miles of roads have been straightened and widened to a 24 foot roadbed, including new drainage structures where necessary and surfacing with gravel. Over 500 timber bridges have been constructed and approximately 50,000 lin. feet of roadway pie has been placed. The drouth has held us back considerably this summer on our maintenance of roads. It has been almost impossible to scrape roads due to the dryness.

Money Available for Paving Roads

In the past two years Chilton County has been able to match State and Federal Funds dollar for dollar. On September 30, 1954 the amount of unobligated State and Federal Funds in Montgomery available to be matched by Chilton County was $111,300.00. Chilton Co. has available money to match this amount. The Board of Revenue and Control deserves praise for their sound management of Chilton County's money and affairs.

Chilton County Hospital

Chilton County's new hospital is well under construction. According to Mr. Arthur Tolbert, contractor, he is now ahead of schedule on the construction. This building, in my opinion, will be one of the most modern, up-to-date, well equipped, hospitals in the entire south. Every citizen of Chilton County should be proud of our new hospital and the fine work that our Hospital Board is doing.

Chilton County Armory

In the near future Chilton County, according to the Alabama Military Department, will receive approval and a contract awarded for the construction of an Armory for the estimated price of $100,000.00. This will be constructed with Federal and State Funds with no cost to Chilton County. According to the Alabama Military Department, the new armory will be open to the public except for four hours per week in which time it will be in use by the National Guard.

Coosa River Bridge Approach

According to the State Highway Department, if the right-of-way deeds are acquired in Coosa County, the contract for the approaches to a bridge across Coosa River will be awarded in November. Chilton County has already acquired the necessary right-of-way in Chilton County and according to Judge Stewart of Coosa County, they are making progress in securing their deeds.

Courthouse

March 8, 1954 the Board of Revenue and Control passed a resolution which reads as follows:

WHEKEAS, there is a great need for an adequate courthouse and jail to serve the people of Chilton County, and

WHEREAS the Board of Revenue and Cotnrol of Chilton County has determined that the cost of constructing the courthouse and jail is approximately $490,000.00, and

WHEREAS, the Board of Revenue and Control feels that the matter should be submitted to a vote by the electors of Chilton County, Alabama.

Now, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED; That the following question shall be submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of Chilton County, Alabama at the regular election to be held in November, 1954, "Shall Chilton County, Alabama build a new courthouse and jail at an approximate cost of $490,000.00, provided that the same shall be built without levying any additional taxes other than those now being levied."

Last week the ceiling in one of the jury rooms fell in and if a jury had been present several lives would have been lost. I am proud that no one has been injured from the falling of the ceiling in the auditorium and jury room. The heating system, the electric wiring, and the roof of the courthouse are in very critical condition. A new courthouse and jail can be built in Chilton County without any additional taxes being levied upon the taxpayers of Chilton County. I would like to invite each citizen to make a thorough inspection of the courthouse before you go to the polls on Nov. 2 to cast your ballot on the Courthouse question.

Chilton County should continue to progress more in the years to follow. Plans are being made in all phases of our county government to continue to progress. A bright future lies ahead.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every citizen in Chilton County for their cooperation you have given me as Probate Judge and as Chairman of the Board of Revenue and Control. If I can be of any service to you, please call upon me at any time.

Thanking you,
-s- M. D. Tingle

Ex-Servicemen, Attention—

The American Legion, Post 206, is sponsoring a fish supper with all the trimmings on the night of November 11, Veteran's Day, At the Thorsby Legion Hall. All members with their 1955 membership cards are eligible to have one chance on the fifty dollar suit of clothes to be given away at that time by the Post. If you do not have your 1955 card get it by that time so that you too may have a chance at this fifty dollar prize.

American Legion Auxiliary—

The Auxiliary unit to Post 206, is working each month at the Veteran's hospital in Tuscaloosa. This is not compulsory and the members who make these trips do so because they want, in some small way, to relieve a few weary, lonely hours for the veterans who gave everything that we at home might enjoy the great outdoors and the freedom we all hold dear. The members making the trip last Wednesday were: Mrs. Helen Smith, unit secretary; Mrs. Emmarene Turner, hospital chairman; Mrs. Viggie Glass, gift shop and finance chairman and Mrs. Marietta Bice, Unit President. A number of articles made by the patients were brought back for the unit, and others who may be interested, to see the detailed handiwork of these men and women in our hospital in Tuscaloosa. Several of the articles were on display at the State Fair in Birmingham and won prizes. Some even got the blue ribbon. Several delicate pieces of embroidery were done by one of the women patients and won third prize at the State Fair. It is indeed interesting to make a trip to the hospital and see the men and women at work on their pet project. They have artists that can paint some of the most beautiful scenes one can imagine. Many are bed patients who keep their easels and paints close by and paint when they want to. None are forced to do these things but are happier when busy with the needle or paint brush.

Remember our bazaar to be held the first Saturday afternoon in December. All members are to bring a pie and an article to sell.

We have exceeded our membership quota already and expect to go far beyond the average number for our unit. All women and girls in this vicinity who are eligible for membership are invited to join us.

Tickets Please

Riding up Broad Street the other afternoon, I saw "Tiny" Fields up ahead directing traffic. I also saw a lady a couple of cars up from me trying to get out of a tight parking spot.

No one stopped to let her out, but I did, because I've been in the same fix myself. When I got up to "Tiny" he stopped me. "Have a ticket, Joe," he said. I was surprised — and a little sore. But "Tiny" explained. "It's a movie ticket—good anytime at the Bijou. We're having a Courteous Driver Week. You qualified by letting that lady go ahead of you." It was another case of how our town gets results.

From where I sit, you've got to be proud of this kind of public spirit and co-operation. In the same way, I'm remind'd of our beer retailers. They voluntarily co-operate with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. They keep their places clean and neat—and good will is their reward.

HAROLD SMITH RUNS ON HIS RECORD OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

When I became a member of your county governing body in January of 1951 the county owed $53,000.00 in Gasoline Tax Interest Bearing Warrants and owed $12,879.86 for lease sale contracts for the purchase of machines. I am happy to report to the citizens of Chilton County that today the county does not owe one cent for any interest bearing debts. Chilton County is one of the very few counties in Alabama which is completely debt free and does not owe a penny. Since I came into office the county paid off all debts and now has a cash balance of $130,519.41. Since January of 1951 the county has paid cash for every thing purchased, including heavy machinery, trucks and equipment. Since I have been in office the county has bought $115,938.43 worth of trucks, heavy machinery and equipment and has paid cash.

When I came into office in January of 1951 the county had the following paved roads:

	Miles
Billingsley Road	9.232
Jemison-Hubbard Road	6.966
Higgins Ferry Road	6.334
Lay Dam Road	6.577
Jemison-Mineral Springs Rd.	6.98

This makes a total of 36.089 miles of roads which were paved before I took office. Since I have been in office the county has paved the following roads:

	Miles
Hubbard Maplesville Rd.	7.0
Isabella Road	1.94
Clanton-Kincheon Rd.	4.702
Sardis Church Rd.	4.786
Maplesville North to Bibb County Line Rd.	3.465
Clanton-Enterprise Rd.	7.633
Thorsby North and South Spur West	5.168
Jemison-Mars Hill Church Rd.	4.015
Montevallo-Wesslngton Rd.	6.399
Stanton to School	.5
Mars Hill to Pleas. Grove Rd.	4.514
Clanton City Limits to Airport	.3
Total Miles of Roads paved	50.422

Roads which are now being paved or are under contract to be paved are:

	Miles
Mineral Sp. to Lay Dam Rd.	4.435
Billingsley Road North	1.02
Maplesville to U. S. 82 Hiway	2.5
Ala. 22 Hiway to Isabella	2.56
Lay Dam Rd. to Pinedale Ch.	4.83
Approach to Waxahatchee Creek Bridge	1.218
Total miles under construction or contract	16.563

The Yellowleaf Creek Bridge on the Mineral Springs-Lay Dam Road is now under construction. The Waxahatchee Creek Bridge is also under construction. Chilton County has secured the necessary right-of-way deed or the approach to the Coosa River Bridge. This approach is scheduled to be under contract in November.

Chilton County now has, as of September 30, 1954, $111,300.00 of State and Federal Funds available in Montgomery with which to continue our paved road projects in Chilton County. Since I came into office the county has been able to match the State and Federal Fund dollar for dollar for paved roads. We now have the money in the bank to match the State and Federal road funds for more good paved roads in Chilton County. The Board of Revenue and Control has bought their own road paving equipment and a great deal of additional miles of roads will be paved in the years to come, in addition to the Farm-to-Market Paved Roads.

Governor Nominate "Big Jim" Folsom has pledged to me that if I am re-elected that he will assist Chilton County in securing the paving of all mail box routes and school bus routes in Chilton County and it is my humble opinion that with the proper cooperation between The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County and the Governor of Alabama all mail box routes and school bus routes may be paved.

I humbly ask you to go to the polls on November 2nd and vote for Harold Smith to serve Chilton County on your Board of Revenue and Control for another term. I will greatly appreciate your vote and support and I pledge to you that I will continue the great progress being made in Chilton County.

Alabama Highlights

Alabama's gubernatorial election of 1894 was another in which the plight of the farmer was a big issue. The depression of 1893 had hit farmers hard.

The Farmer's Alliance joined hands with the larger national peoples party which later was known as the Populists, but in Alabama the group called themselves the Jeffersonians, an attempt to identify themselves as the true Democrats in the state.

The Jeffersonians at a convention in Birmingham adopted a program they said would bring relief to farmers and laborers.

A principle of the Jeffersonians 1894 campaign in Alabama was that more money should be in circulation in order to increase prices of farm products, to pay higher wages and to make it possible for people to pay their debts.

Reuben F. Kolb who had been defeated by Thomas G. Jones for the Governor's seat was nominated for governor by the Jeffersonians in 1894.

Alabama Democrats, who referred to themselves as the "True Blues" in 1894 nominated William C. Oates of Henry County as their gubernatorial candidate. Oates, a member of Congress since 1880, was a one-armed Confederate veteran.

The 1894 race between Kolb and Oates is credited with being one of the most bitterly fought campaigns in Alabama history.

During the 1894 campaign between Kolb and Oates, for governor of Alabama, supporters wore bunches of oats on their hats or coats and Kolb backers used corn cobs as pipes, hung from their walking sticks and wore them on their coats

William C. Oates won the election for governor of Alabama in 1894 and immediately charges of theft and fraud were made by the supporters of Reuben F. Kolb.

After the gubernatorial election in 1894 Kolb supporters threatened to march on Montgomery, seize control of the government and put Kolb in the Governor's office. Nothing so violent happened, however.

Reuben F. Kolb, after his defeat by William C. Oates in 1894, declared himself elected governor of Alabama and had a justice of the peace administer the oath of office. Kolb delivered an inaugral address from a wagon parked in front of the State Capitol. But Kolb realized his was a losing fight.

Adventist Church

Sabbath School 9:45, preaching service 11:00.

When the Savior was dying He said, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit". The word "spirit" is from the Gr. "Pneuma" which means, literally, "wind", "air" of "breath". We speak of pneumatic tires filled with wind. John says the Saviour bowed His head, "and gave up the ghost". Luke 19:30. He surrendered His "life;" committed His "life" at that moment into the hands of God. Peter, who was there witnessing what occured, said: "Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered He threatened not; but commited Himself to him that judgeth righteously." 1 Pet. 2:24. In committing His "spirit," means that He committed Himself. In John 11:33 says as Jesus approached the grave of Lazarus, "He groaned in the spirit". But repeating this in v. 38 it says, "Jesus therefore groaning in Himself cometh to the grave. So, "In the spirit" here meant "in himself". So as He was dying He committed "Himself" to God, just as any dying conscious Christian does. Speaking of such we read, "Blessed are they that die in the Lord". They fall asleep in the sure hope of the Lord's return and the resurrection.

Pilots Sponsor Cooking School To Enlarge Sick Room Loan Service

The community's need is the Pilot Club's opportunity for service. For more than six years the club has maintained a loan closet for the benefit of the sick. Among the items available are three hospital beds, trays, bed pans, linens, hot water bottles, ice caps and a pair of crutches for a child. For the convenience of the public this equipment is kept at the Clanton Laundry. Anyone in need of these articles may secure them by contacting Pilot Lillian Lawson at the Clanton Laundry.

Since the opening of the Loan Closet these articles have been in constant use. The hospital beds have also been used in Red Cross Nursing Courses. It is the desire of Pilots to be of service and anyone in need of sick room equipment may secure it from the Loan Closet without charge.

The Pilot Club has as its goal to enlarge the equipment of the Loan Closet in order to meet the increased need. Sickness strikes without warning and often lingers. How aptly is has been said that, "Illness comes on horseback but goes away on foot." In order to replenish worn linens and to purchase other equipment so badly needed the Pilot Club is sponsoring a Cooking School at the New Wadesonian Theatre on November 2nd at 7:00 o'clock in the evening. Proceeds will be used to purchase needed equipment. Just now the need is greatest for wheel chairs, more hospital beds and adjustable crutches. If anyone has any of these articles and would like to donate them for this cause the Pilot Club will be grateful.

Pilots ask for the support and cooperation of the public in participating in the Cooking School and helping to make it possible to enlarge the Sick Room Loan Closet so that it may be of even greater service to the sick and suffering of the community.

Laura Ann Klinner Is Three Years Old

On Saturday afternoon, Oct. 16, Mrs. Charles Klinner honored her daughter Laura Ann with a birthday party eedebrating her third birthday.

Shasta daises and potted house plants were used in the reception rooms. In the dining room the party table was covered with a cloth of imported linen and centered with a doll birthday cake, mounted on a crystal cake stand. The doll stood in the middle and the cake formed her dress. Her dress was artistically embossed in pastel blue with blue embossed ruffles forming a bustle. There was a redingate - effect of white ruffles down the front of the skirt. The doll held a bouquet of pink embossed flowers that held three tiny candles. Tall pink tapers in crystal holders and pink and blue paper cups and plates and napkins added beauty to the party table.

The little honoree was lovely in a dress of brown cotton silk with an antique neckline.

After Laura Ann blew out the candles on her cake the group sang the "Happy Birthday" song. Then the guests were seated and served ice cream and cup cakes with pink lemonade. The cup cakes were iced with pink and blue, and embossed with flowers with each one having a tiny candle.

After this Laura Ann had the thrill of opening each pretty gift-wrapped package and she was the happy recipient of many lovely gifts.

Colorful inflated balloons and party blow-outs were carried home by each little guest as party favors.

Mrs. O. P. Klinner and Mrs. G. B. Taylor, grandmothers of the honoree assisted Mrs. Klinner at the party.

Several mothers shared in the affair and enjoyed the delicious refreshments.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Ludwig Bemelmans

At the school where the seven-year old is a member of the second grade, the PTA sponsors a hallowe'en carnival every year. The feature of the carnival which the children like best is the costume parade, when the youngsters line up and march around the block in their various disguises. Prizes are given for the best costumes. The children especially like the prizes.

For days now, the seven-year-old has been trying to decide what kind of costume she wants to wear. At first, she thought she'd be a gypsy so she could wear lots of jewelry and make-up. Then, she had the idea of being a hula girl. The hula girl notion was discarded soon in favor of a fearsome witch. Then she thought maybe being a girl from outer space would be nice.

It's a difficult decision to make, but time is growing short, and if she doesn't make up her mind in a hurry she'll have to parade around in one of her school dresses and a sign identifying her as:

"Little girl who suffered from indecision too long".

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank every one of our many friends for their many deeds of kindness in our loss. May the blessings of the Lord ever be with you, everyone.

Sincerely,
The Lucas Family.

The mother down the street, the one with the big family, always has a hallowe'en party for her brood and their friends.

"It's trouble," she admits. But I'd rather the youngsters get the mischief out of their systems here at home."

To put at least some small curb on the mischief, this mother has a variety of games planned for the party, and she sees to it that the children are kept busy.

One of the favorite games is Pass the Cat, which is played like this:

Sides are chosen and each team stands in a straight line beside the captain. Each player is given a large paper, drinking straw, and the captain of each team is given a cat cut from black paper. Each captain holds the cat on the end of the straw by inhaling through the straw, and passes it on to the next player in line by exhaling while that player inhales. In this way, the cat is passed down the line and back again.

The cat may never be touched with hands. If it falls to the floor, the player from whose straw it fell must retrieve it by inhaling through his straw.

Each team is divided into couples, and the couples line up at one end of the room. At the other end of the room are two stacks of paper bags. When the signal is given to begin, the lead couple on each team races to the stack of paper bags, the boy blows up a bag, and the girl bursts it on his back. Then they race back to the starting line, and the next couple repeats the procedure. The fastest team wins.

This mother's parties always end in the kitchen with the guests busily engaged in popping corn and pulling candy. They fill small bags with the popcorn and candy and make a tour of the neighborhood, handing out treats to surprised (and pleased) people who answer their knocks at the doors.

Then it's back to the scene of the party again to wind up the evening with steaming cups of hot chocolate and devil's food cake squares decorated like witches faces.

MERICA!

This article is written on Columus day.

At daybreak on October 12, 1492, excited voice of the sailor on atch resounded throughout the ip, "Land! Land! Land! O, it is beautiful land."

He was right: It is a beautiful nd. Its iridescent fields, green forblue hills, purple mountains and ure skies; its broad rivers, fertile kes and peaceful valleys—all are surpassed in picturesque beauty nd grandeur.

It is a good land. Its tranquil llages and bustling cities and isy factories and busy forges and stless turbines and humming powlines— all attest to the industry nd ingenuity of its people.

It is a bountiful land, providing abundance of the things that ake us happy and comfortable.

Four hundred sixty two years nd a hundred sixty million people go, when the dauntless Columbus st beheld this goodly land, little id he dream that he was gazing on the physical setting of the acle that is America.

It is a miraculous land. There is gic all around us. We have surised all other peoples of the eld in scientific progress and the velopment of the techinques of ilization.

But the most magic thing of all the fact that we still enjoy both redom and abundance in the midst a world that has neither. This, truth, is the miracle that is merica. A land in which every n can attain to his fullest staze of dignity and self respect—a nd in which these precious qualis can be neither bestowed upon r witheld from men by any offial act of governmenment or roup. In no other land—under no her form of government—is the credness of human personality so ghly regarded. In America, the ividual has sacred rights simply cause he is a person. His dignity d worth are not measured by his aterial possessions or by accident birth or lineage. In America ery man counts.

America is a land of dreams. It the only land in which men can ake their dreams come true. Here eedom of enterprise permits every n to work toward the fulfillent of his own destiny.

America, the melting pot of all ations. It is fitting that Columbus y is followed so soon by United ations Day. Truly America is the tion of United Nations where ople of all nations come and nd freedom.

May God bless America! Keep r strong and pure, let freedom ng and reign.

ARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and everyne for their kind and generous elling during the sickness and ath of our beloved husband and ther. Words cannot express our anks for all the food and beauful flowers, and for the many nd words of sympathy that were oken. May God bless all of you.

A Letter To The Voters Of Chilton

This is my first time to ask for a public office. In my canvassing of the county I realize I have missed many people. Some were away from home.

Some homes were missed as time and opportunity were limited. I am asking you to please take this letter as my personal appeal to you and yours for your support and influence.

I am the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus L. Glasscock of Jemison, route 2. My wife is Nellie Burnett Glasscock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J G. Barnett of Jemison, route 2. She teaches first and second grade at Jemison school. I attended school at Union Grove Junior High School. I am a member of the Union Grove Church. I have had about two years experience in road construction work and operated a dosier about two years.

I was born and reared in Chilton County and have the county welfare at heart. I have a great desire to see our county grow and prosper.

If elected as a member of the Board of Revenue and Control for District one I will do my best to be one of the best members the county has ever had. I will try to give the taxpayers as near full value for every tax dollar as is possible. I will cooperate with the road supervisor and other members of the Board to improve our county and spend the tax money where it will help the most people. I am in favor of every citizen having a good road to his home.

Those of you who do not know me feel free to ask any one that knows me. Your vote and help in any way will be greatly appreciated

Please voters consider me as your candidate before you cast your vote on November 2.

(Pd. pol. adv. by Marvin M Glasscock, Jemison, Ala.)

YOU ARE URGED TO CONTACT DEPT. OF COMM. BEFORE SENDING GIFTS OVERSEAS

Chilton countains who plan to send Christmas gifts to relatives and friends overseas this year, either than those in the armed services, are urged first to get in touch with the Atlanta field office of the U S. Department of Commerce for copies of regulations covering the importation of gift packages into foreign countries.

According to information received here from Merrill C. Lofton, manager of the Commerce Department office in Atlanta, nearly every country in the world has some kind of regulation of that kind, and if the package does not meet those regulations it may be held up.

Lofton suggests that all shippers of Christmas paskages to other countries get in touch with the U S. Department of Commerce, 336 Peachtree-Seventh Street Building, Atlanta, for further information

Oats May Be The Answer To Chilton County's Feed Problem

Fields of oats like this could help Chilton County farmers in their present feed shortage.

The big need on practically every Chilton Counoy farm is feed of any kind--grain, grazing, hay, silage. Oats can help meet this feed need. Oats, have made fair yields of grain practically every year. When managed properly and not set back by killing freezes or diseases, the crop has made high yields.

But in addition to grain, oats also produce excellent winter pastures. Oats furnish more early forage than most fall-planted crops, and when you figure the grazing value plus the grain yields, oats are one of our top producing pasture plants.

For example, in a three-year test conducted by the API Experiment Station in North Alabama the eight top oat varities averaged 66.2 bushels per acre when plants were clipped as they would have been if grazed by animals. The value of clipped forage was equivalent to 29.7 bushels of grain per acre. Thus the grain and grazing value of the oats equaled 95.9 bushels per acre. clipping did not reduce the yield of harvested grain.

In a similar test conducted in Central Alabama, the yield of harvested grain on clipped plots was 49.7 bushels per acre. In addition, grazing value of the clipped forage was equivalent to 49.6 bushels per acre. Thus total feed produced on an acre was equal to 99.3 bushels of grain. In this test, clipping reduced harvested grain by 14.2 bushels per acre.

In south Alabama the top 12 varieties of oats averaged 26.7 bushels of grain per acre over a three-year period when forage was clipped. But the grazing value of clipped forage was equivalent to 56.8 bushels of grain per acre, thus the feed equivalent amounted to 83.5 bushels of grain per acre. Clipping to simulate grazing reduced the yield of harvested grain 15.1 bushels per acre in ohis test.

Oats and vetch make one of our best combinations for grazing. And cattle can be removed in spring in time for this mixture to produce large yields of good quality hay or silage.

Whose Farm Is This?

Do you know who owns this farm? We're sure you've seen it many times. It's somewhere in Chilton County. Come in to the Chilton County News office before noon Saturday and tell us who owns it. If your answer is correct you'll win two free passes to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre and you will be eligible to win the grand prize drawing next Monday.

If the owner of the above "Mystery Farm" will come in to the News office as soon as possible he will receive a beautiful framed enlargement of this aerial photograph of his farm absolutely free.

We had 30 lucky folks come by the office last week to guess on the farm. The County was well represented on one side, but not on the other. We hope the folks around Thorsby and Jemison and other communities around don't get the idea that we're overlooking them in our contest.

You might say we were saving the best till last, but that isn't the case either. The photographer took different sections of the county at different times and they send us the photos in different lots, so you see we have to run them when we get to them. We can assure you that no section of the county will be overlooked, remember we've got a long way to go yet, and try to think of all the things you can learn from and about your neighbors from across the county when their farm is run. You can learn how long they've been on their place, all about their family, how many acres of what they have, and many other interesting things that are nice to know about our neighbors and acquaintances. You keep watching, we'll get around to your neck of the woods.

Getting back to this week's contest, you might be interested to know that there were 74 guesed from Clanton, 14 guesed from Maplesville and routes, and 2 from Stanton. Well represented and shows that interest is up throughout the vicinity.

Now, we tried to get out of the vicinity we've been in for so long this week. We don't know what kind of success we will have because you know the farm better than we do. Be sure and come by the News office this week if you think you know the above pictured farm. There's something in it for all of the folks so why not be one of the people who have the fun? Remember it doesn't obligate you in any way so if you miss this week or you don't win the drawing then come back until you do win something. In the week's to follow you're bound to know someone's farm by sight, the county isn't that big. We'll see you the week end, bring us a right answer.

ALABAMA GAS CORP. TO GIVE CUSTOMERS A REFUND

Montgomery, Ala. — Customers of Alabama Gas Corporation are scheduled to receive a refund of $158,087.

The refund was ordered by the Alabama Public Service Commission after the Southern Natural Gas Co. was granted the rate increase it had petitioned the Federal Power Commission for.

Alabama Gas Corp. had been granted a tentative rate increase based on Southern's request, but when ohe latter's increase was less than requested, that of Alabama Gas was cut back by the PSC, and the difference was ordered refunded.

Commercial and Industrial consumers will get approximately $54,000 with the balance going to some 175,000 residential users. Refunding of the money is expected to be completed by January of 1955.

George Gray Plans Farm Improvements

This one was trouble, boy. Not trouble to us or Mr. Gray, but to those folks who have already joined in on the contest here at the News it really gave trouble.

Mr. Gray and his family settled on their farm three years ago. It was purchased from the former tenant and owner, Mr. A. L. Bearden. The Gray family consists of Mr. Gray, the Mrs., Louise Wilson Gray, and three fine young children. The children are: George Jr., who is six years old and attends school at Enterprise; Mary Esther, who is four and Dorothy Louise, who is three years old.

The Grays are members of the Bethsalem Baptist Church. Mr. Gray says his favorite pastimes are hunting and fishing. His favorite method of farming is truck farming and his money crops are cotton and corn. He has approximately 115 acres of land part of which is cultiviated and the rest in pasture land that he intends to use when he purchases new livestock in the near future.

Evidently Mr. Gray is turning ward cattle from his conversati because he has remarked that is going to turn 15 more acres in pastureland and fence in the acreage of his place when he c financially stand it.

He has already done some re modeling on the house and adde two cement porches, and intend to do more in and around th house. He says he also wants stain the barn to preserve it an hopes to accomplish some of the things in the coming year.

Even though the Grays' farm difficult to find and hard to rec nize, we recognize them as an one of Chilton County's progress farm family's and are proud to ha made their acquaintance.

The Basic Idea Behind the All-New 1955 PONTIAC

On Display October 29 and 30

ABOUT 30 years ago General Motors Corporation presented to America a new car called Pontiac. This new car was the direct result of a very specific idea.

The idea was this: to create a car which took its style, its engineering principles and its features from the very best and most expensive in America—and to build these into a car priced just above the very lowest!

Naturally, such an idea produced a wonderful and highly popular car—a car which millions of satisfied owners have driven with outstanding pride and pleasure.

Now, nearly three decades later, an entirely new Pontiac has been created for 1955—a car completely new from the ground up!

One thing, however, about the 1955 Pontiac remains unchanged—its basic idea—to offer the American public the very finest car that can possibly be built to sell at a price within easy reach of any new-car buyer.

When you see the new Pontiac on Friday or Saturday—Oct. 29 or 30—you will be immediately impressed by its remarkable new styling. No other car in the world looks like this new Pontiac!

When you drive it you will be astonished at its performance. For the 1955 Pontiac introduces the powerful new Strato-Streak V-8, an all-new engine that has already been proved in more than 3 million test miles!

When you price the new Pontiac you will come face to face with the basic Pontiac idea—you will be agreeably surprised that so much car, so much sparkling newness, so much luxury, so much downright goodness can be priced so near the very lowest.

We cordially invite you to come in on Friday or Saturday and see for yourself what a superb all-new General Motors masterpiece has been created to carry the wonderful name "Pontiac" for 1955.

Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As

The SHERMAN MOTLEY Farm

Last week's "Farm of the Week" was identified as the Sherman Motley farm on the Selma highway south of Maplesville by 30 winners in the contest.

Mr. Motley does not work his place himself as he is connected with the county as a member of the Board of Revenue and Control. He has 4 houses on his 160 acres that he rents to farmers who work his farm for him throughout the year. So his is a productive and prosperous farm even though he hasn't the time to tend it himself.

He has found time, in his business life, however, to build the present home which he and his famiy now live in together. The Motley farm was purchased in 1947 from Roy Peace. Mr. Motley says he has papers showing the farm in production since way back in 1800, then it was the old Bolden place.

Mr. Motley married the former Elaine McKinney. They have been married going on 20 years now and have 2 children. A daughter who is aotending Wheeler Business College in Birmingham and one son. Mr. Motley Jr. attends school at the Maplesville High School and is a member of the football squad. He will graduate next year.

The Motley farm has all the conveniences of modern living such as gas, bathroom facilities, television and the like. He expects to make improvements as the need arises.

The Motleys' are members of the Baptist Church at Maplesville where they attend as regularly as possible.

They are another example of Chilton County progress and the kind of folks we like to grow here. They are welcome members to the club of "Farm of the Week" families.

On Education—

Surveys Sent To Capitol; Chilton Estimated To Get $3 Million

Montgomery, Ala. — State Education Superintendent W. J Terry has told the education subcommittee of the U. S. House of Representatives that it will take approximately $345,000,000 to get Alabama's public schools up to date by 1960.

Meanwhile, in Alabama, it was revealed in the new Public Relation in Alabama bulletin approved by the State Board of Education that fine estimates in the Federal School Facilities Survey, Phase II, had been sent to Washington

The bulletin said that the estimated cost of school plant facilities needed in Alabama totals $344,787 000. The figures sent to Washington replaced earlier tentative estimates.

The bulletin said the estimate for Chilton County schools was in the amount of $3,17- 500.

"We believe in an immediate program of construction of school building facilities with joint participation of state and local government," it was stated in the Public Relations Bulletin adopted by the board.

These, Terry told the House education sub-committee, are Alabama's needs.

New schools — 144 new elementary schools for 42,240 pupils, $31,000,000; 13 new secondary school buildings for 9,690 pupils, $8,000,000; 58 new combined elementary-secondary schools for 41,370 pupils, $39,000,000. Additions to present plants — 309 elementary schools to take care of 67,170 pupils, $52,000,000; 29 secondary school additions to take care of 5,520 pupils $5,700,800; 363 combined elementary-secondary additions for 192, 360 pupils, $167,000,000. This colored man has not returned home. His wife's body was carried to Clanton early Monday where they will await word from relatives. It is thought this colored man was originally from Georgia, however, correct address was not known. This information came from the man that hired the colored man as he stated the colored and joined the workers in Georgia. Some years ago we read of these happenings from afar, but it seems that more and more crimes are being committed in our own communities.

Sr. II Girls Of Maplesville Came Home From State Fai With 2nd Place Red Ribbon

The Alabama State Fair will be remembered by many this year as one of fun and thrills and just plain spending money to have a good time, but the girls of the Sr. II Class at Maplesville High School will have other memories to cherish and that will last them through the years. They came from the fair this year the proud winners of the second place red ribbon for their exhibit on F. H. A. affairs.

The exhibit displayed two cleaning closets and followed closely the theme of management in and around the home and safety measures that could be taken. Title of the exhibit was: "Out of the Shadow of Danger and Inefficiency Into the Light of Safety and Management."

The idea of the exhibit was to produce evidence of the measures of safety that could and should be taken around the home and what could be done to prevent accidents that shouldn't, but so often happen.

Girls participating in the affa were: chairmen, Juanita Harg Billie Joan Burnett, and Louc Smith. Those appearing on comm tees were: Sue Mitchell, Joyce M Afee, Otha Lee Wright, Lois Og ley, Betty Barnes, Peggy Seal Patty Lovelady, Maudine Madd Geraldine Boggs, and Sara Nichc

The girls worked hard on th project and to take second place the entire state contest was qu some task to undertake and w when finished, to be proud of. Th show true Americanism throu their efforts and their neighb Chilton Countians are proud ne alongside them.

A STUTTERING CHILD

One of the impedients to good speech and delivery is stuttering. This habit usually shows up in the tot of two years or a little older. Sometimes the child tries repeatedly to say a word, only to stammer or stutter in pronouncing it. Very often a syllable or the entire word is never completed at all.

Stuttering has an emotional basis and ordinarily appears when the youngster is faced with new adjustments. For example, the two or three year old is very anxious to make himself understood. It is this inborn anxiety that is one seat of the trouble, for the little one is anticipating his need mentally before the thought is expressed.

A child who stammers or stutters should not be fussed at or corrected harshly. This procedure only tends to make the youngster self-conscious and more retarded in attempts at speech. He should not be made to talk more slowly, nor should someone else be held up as an example. These efforts call more attention to what appears to be a deficiency.

And then too, because children are great imitators, it is not wise for them to have for constant companions anyone who also stutters.

When stuttering occurs only occasionally, and perhaps under circumstances of excitement or tension, a change in the child's schedule may be all that is necesary. A little more rest may be required if the stammering is noticeable when the child is tired.

Provided no physical or emotional defects exist, speech will come naturally. A parent should not repeat the child's baby talk, but use the proper pronunciation instead. A Child who is read to clearly and with the words properly sounded will soon imitate the correct expression.

Be certain that your child does not have any defect that will impede his speech. Then when you are sure, give the youngster the attention and affection every child requires for good emotional adjustment. Also help your child to good speech by speaking properly yourself.

HIGHWAY PATROL STILL ON THE MOVE TO STOP KILLING ON OUR ROADS

Montgomery — Ajabama's 1954 traffic toll was counted last week (Oct. 15) at 607.

Acting public Safety Director, W. C. McKinney said the score of 607 dead was five lower than the toll recorded during the same period of 1953.

Alabama highway patrol radar enforcement crews, meanwhile, continued their war against illegal speeders, armed with mobile radar speedmeters at scores of locations over the state.

To say at war, means with the killing fast speeds, not the man behind the wheel. The highway patrol is the motorist best friend.

Arrests began Oct. 1 after a two-month warning period. Through last week, 12 motorists had been arrested and another 31 released with written warning citations.

Recommendations—

1. In view of the above findings, the excellent financial condition of the County, the present low interest rate, the current favorable construction costs, a new well-planned, well-sited Court House that will provide space for all the necessary services of county government should be built, as soon as practicable.

2. The site should be large enough to permit ample, convenient off-street parking, of sufficient area to permit the construction of any forseeable necessary or desirable county buildings considered properly near a Court House.

3. That the new Court House be built on a well-drained site 5 to 10 acres in area, not too far from the center of the City, conveniently accessible from highways, streets and to water, sewer, power and gas lines.

4. That neither the site of the old Court House or the present jail be used for a new Court House because neither are large enough for building, either would increase an already serious parking problem, and would tend to retard rather than contribute to the development of the business district.

Please do not hesitate to call on us if you feel that we can be of service on this or any other county building problem.

Yours very truly,

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Gen

The circular letter sent out by the "Talladega Abernathy for Governor" Headquarters says "The Talladega Citizens for Abernathy group represents no one political party." In other words, they don't stand for anything—they just want their man to be elected.

A good point regarding voting on the courthouse question was brought up today by one of our civic minded citizens. It was his plea that regardless of how the people of this county cast their ballot on next Tuesday they should forget politics when they mark their ballot on the courthouse referendum. In his opinion the need for a new courthouse was aside from politics and whether it was occupied by democrats or republicans for the next fifty years was beside the point. We thought he had a point and we hope you feel the same way about it.

See where John Richard Kemp III is getting married. He is the son of the late Dick Kemp who was killed in World War II, and Mrs. Ophelia Brausa of Phenix City, Alabama The Kemps have many relatives here and are well known throughout this section of the State. We wish for the young couple many years of happiness. Oh yeah, young Kemp is instructing in mathematics at the University of Alabama now, while working on his master's degree.

Mother, her arms filled with packages, got on a bus with her small daughter. The little girl had the fare for both and she dropped it in the fare box. Then she seemed to feel that a word of explanation was in order. "I'm paying the money" she said "my mommy is loaded," and she said it loud enough for all the passengers to hear.

Tuesday, November 9th, is the day to remember. That's the day the Ladies of the Methodist Church have their annual Bazaar. Mrs. Otto Jones and Mrs. Chick Fiquette want all the old wore out candles you have lying around so they can make some new ones for the bazaar. They have lights down there in the basement of the church, we don't know why they want candles but if you have any good candle material call Mrs. Fiquette or Mrs. Jones and they will light out after same.

Saturday is the last day you can buy your business licenses without paying a penalty so it behooves each and every one of us to go to the proper office at the proper building at the proper time and buy the proper license—or else your name is mud. Old Raz Langston will be right on top of your neck early Monday morning should you fail to get your license. Raz would come a day earlier than that but it's Sunday.

Just a few reminders: Sam Powers will have a Magician Booth at the Methodist Bazaar on Nov. 9th, and some of the ladies will have a "surprise" booth. There will be coffee served all day with doughnuts for those business people who enjoy and are allowed a coffee break. Mrs. S. A. Jones is ticket chairman if you haven't got yours yet.

B. B. Comer Whips CCHS Tigers By A Score Of 20 - 6, Tigers Will Observe Homecoming Fri.

The annual homecoming football game for the Clanton Tigers will be with Jemison Friday night at 7:30. To reign as Homecoming Queen for Clanton will be Miss Julie Sheppard. Miss Shirley Cox and Miss Edna Ruth Wyatt will serve as the Queen's Maids. The Clanton band, which put on a very spectacular show last week, will again perform during the half-time ceremony.

The B. B. Comer Tigers of Sylacauga outclawed the Clanton Tigers here last Friday night by a score of 20 to 6. Clanton played a very good game but was outclassed. Fullback Layton and left half back Danley were the big guns for Comer. Layton accounted for 173 yards and Danley 127. Roy Mims and Edmond Littlejohn starred for Clanton. Roy accounted for 199 yards and Edmund 31. Littlejohn received a shoulder injury and may miss seing action this week against Jemison. He was the Clanton defensive star. Obra Wilson, Jimmy Powell, Jimmy Oaks, Jimmy Puckett, Boyce Comer, Billy Jo Ingram, Norman Glasscock, Charles Payton, Edward Billingsley, Curtis Baker, Terry Jones, Raybon Mims and Lonnie Jones all played good football.

In the first quarter, after Littlejohn picked up a B. B. Comer fumble on his own 30 yard line, Clanton began to roll. Edmund flipped a pass to Roy which was good for 41 yards. Roy then snake-hipped his way for 18 more wards and another first down on the 14 yard line. Runs by Wilson, Littlejohn and Mims made it another first down on the one-foot line. Roy crashed over left tackle to score. Littlejohn's try for the extra point was not good. B. B. Comer received the kick-off on their five yard line and began marching. Layton and Danley supplied the spark and Comer drove down to Clanton's two yard line for a first down. The Clanton defense tightened and held for four downs. On fourth down Obra Wilson recovered Bradford's fumble back on the five. Clanton punted out of bounds on their own 37 yard line and Comer drove back down to the seven. From a spread formation, Howell passed to Williams for a TD. Danley kicked the extra point and Comer went out front 7 to 6.

In the third quarter Comer scored on a 17 yard run by Danley. Mims blocked the extra point place kick.

In the fourth quarter Clanton stopped a drive on their own 12 yard line and gained down to Comer's 46 yard line before Lonnie Jones fumbled on an end sweep and Layton picked up the pigskin and

Notice To Water Users In Clanton

We have temporarily removed restriction on the use of water. There is ample water in the creek now, but our facilities for preparing the water for use, is inadequate for our demands, and we cannot remedy this until the planned addition to our filtering plant is built. It is, therefore, very necessary that we all economize in the use of water because if we do not, the restriction will have to be enforced again. We consume water faster than we can filter it.

Respectfully,
-s- C. Fenn Jones
Mayor.

Bank of Thorsby Held Banquet For Stockholders

The Bank of Thorsby entertained its Stockholders and their guests at their Annual Banquet on last Wednesday evening at the Institute Dining Hall. About 100 were served a delicious dinner by members of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby Institute. Tables were arranged banquet style and were decorated with large and small yellow Chrysanthemums and yellow snapdragons with ferns. The floral arrangements were flanked by tall yellow candles. Other banks represented were the First National Bank and Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton, First National Bank of Montgomery and First National Bank and Birmingham Trust National Bank of Birmingham. The main speaker was Judge R. B. Carr of Montgomery, and he was introduced by J. Archie Ogburn, Executive Vice President and Cashier of the Bank of Thorsby, who presided over the program for the evening. Also on the program was a quartette from the FFA Club of Jemison who sang several selections, also vocal selections, by young Vickie Matthews, accompanied by little Joanne Northcutt. These youngsters displayed unusual talent and delighted their large group of visitors. The Thorsby Institute Glee Club also sang. Judge Carr gave a talk on "Fragments of Fear" and interwoven in his speech, befitting his subject, were humorous stories which kept his listeners in an uproar of laughter from beginning to end. He certainly created a lot of fun and sent people away feeling highly exhilirated from having a hearty laugh. Judge Carr paid tribute to Mr. Ogburn for the outstanding and untiring efforts that he has put forth in helping the farmers in his town and County. To this statement he received lou applause. It was certainly the nicest banquet that the Bank has yet had.

Democrats Present Full Slate Of Candidates Next Tuesday

Whatever is said of the Democratic Party in Chilton County they don't do things half-way. In the general election to be held next Tuesday the Democratic Party offers a full slate of candidates and those candidates have been chosen by a majority of the voters in two primary elections.

Most of the candidates offering in the general election on the Democratic Ticket are newcomers to politics. Among those candidates to be elected who have never before held public office are Lawrence F. Gerald, Jr., for County Solicitor; R. Odell Payton for Sheriff; Lonnie Cost for membership on the Board of Revenue & Control; James Duke Heflin for membership on the County Board of Education; Francis W. Speaks for Representative in the State Legislature from Chilton County; George D. Smith for Tax Collector; Charles L. Patterson for Tax Assessor. J. Howard Boockholdt and A. H. Harold Smith are seeking reelection. Smith as a Member of the Board of Revenue & Control where he has served for the past four years and Boockholdt as Superintendent of Education.

Pre-election predictions are that a large vote will be cast next Tuesday with probably seventy-five percent of the electorate trecking to the polls.

PARTY CANDIDATES WERE SELECTED BY THE PEOPLE IN TWO PRIMARIES

A last minute switch of sentiment towards a new courthouse for Chilton County seems in the air largely due to the Civic Clubs of the County taking the controversy out of politics and appealing to the businessmen and public spirited citizens to cast their vote for the welfare of the county instead of being swayed by party affiliations.

But—like all elections you never know until the votes are in and counted. Results will be tabulated on this page in our next issue.

To The Veterans Of Foreign Wars And To The Ladies Auxiliary To The VFW—

The time has now come when we must begin planning our donations for the Department's Annual Christmas Parties. To be able to carry forward this program, it is up to each Post and Auxiliary member to do their part, not on the efforts of the Hospital Chairman alone, but the combined efforts of each Post and Auxiliary working toward a definite and worthy objective. Let's each try and work toward making this the happiest and best Christmas for the boys in our Veteran's Hospitals.

Remember, these boys in the hospitals are not there by choice but from fighting a bloody war for your and my freedom. Remember, this could have been you or I—so let's get behind the wheel and make these boys have a joyous and happy Christmas.

This is just a reminder to keep in mind because you will hear more from me later with more details of the Department's plans for these parties. Loyally, Jessie Gillespie, Department Hospital Chairman, Maplesville, Ala.

—To All VFW Members And Prospective Members—

The 1955 membership drive is underway in Alabama, so veterans let's all join up and be able to wear the beautiful Cross of Malta. The Veterans are for community service to help the youth of today to be prepared for tomorrow and to help curb juvenile delinquency; to help the younger generation to be able to take over tomorrow where we lay down. Let us all unite together to make a better community for the youth than we found. Let's honor the dead by helping the living. There are lots would join if they could, there are lots can join if they would, so let your nearest Quartermaster or Commander join you up for 1955. If in Clanton see Commander Erskin Popwell, Commander of Clanton Post 3193; if in Maplesville see Mr. Curtis Rucker, Commander of Post 6331 or Mr. Ed Clapp, Quartermaster. Join together to make this a hundred percent year. Loyally, George D. Gillespie, Commander District 6, VFW, Maplesville, Ala.

WHO OWNS THIS WEEK'S "MYSTERY FARM"?

Whose Farm Is This?

Do you know who owns this farm? We're sure you've seen it many times. It's somewhere in Chilton County. Come in to the Chilton County News office before noon Saturday and tell us who owns it. If your answer is correct you'll win two free passes to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre and you will be eligible to win the grand prize drawing next Monday.

If the owner of the above "Mystery Farm" will come in to the News office as soon as possible he will receive a beautiful framed enlargement of this aerial photograph of his farm absolutely free.

We had another misfire on last week's farm so we'll run it again in a few weeks to give you "not so sure" folks a chance at it.

The one pictured above should be an outstanding one and we hope to get good response from it.

You can win if you just come in and try.

For those of you who either never heard the facts on the contest or you who need a little brushing up here it is:

We run the farm, you come in to the News office before the following Saturday noon and take a stab at it. Just put your name in the pot, that's all you have to do. All the correct names will be given two free passes to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre. A drawing will be held Monday from the winners' names and one will win the grand prize. The grand prize is your choice of an electric popcorn popper or a beautiful standard version of the Bible. The prizes are valuable enough that we have had as many as 65 guess in one week. It doesn't cost you a thing to win, it's strictly all in fun.

By the way, the grand prize winner also wins a year's subscription to the Chilton County News.

All the prizes put together make it worth your while to join us and you can ask any of the participants so far and they'll tell you it's a heap of fun.

See if you can guess this week's "Farm of the Week."

NEW PLAN SEEKS TO BRING INDUSTRY INTO CLASSROOM

Educators and businessmen alike this week expressed intense interest in the beginning of a new experiment to "bring industry into the classrooms as a means of better preparing youth to understand and contribute to the strength of the American economy."

The experiment, launched by teachers in the Newton, Mass., High School, is designed to determine how the scientific, economic and sociological lessons learned from the actual operations of an American industry can be fitted into current high school teaching.

The first objective of the project, which is being sponsored by The Aluminum Association and will have the cooperation of the aluminum industry, will be to develop a format for a "family of film strips" especially designed for easy and effective adaptation to high school curricula throughout the country. These strips will be planned as visual teaching aids in a wide variety of study courses so that students throughout the nation may be reached, regardless of whether they go on to college. Each strip will contain one or more actual business practices by the aluminum industry from research to production to sales.

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of this project has come the disclosure that the country's top educators, with aid from business, labor and industry, will seek to determine what knowledge and understanding are essential to the average person's economic competence and how much of this knowledge can be effectively taught in secondary schools.

This will be a long-range study undertaken by the Council for Advancement of Secondary Education and financed through contributions and grants from business and industry, labor, foundations and individuals. The entire project will function through the national Association of Secondary School Principals. The National Better Business Bureau will aid in obtaining funds to defray costs and in providing proper liaison.

It has long been generally agreed that a greater understanding of economic functions among high school and college students would provide a vitally-needed stimulus to the over-all American economy; would enable young men and young women to advance more rapidly in the business and industrial world; and could help reduce business failures and depression cycles.

An urgent need in high schools in particular is for students to be able to view actual illustrations taken from industry operations with regard to such aspects of business life as marketing, government regulation of industry, labor-management relations and the like. It is felt that a project which will enable the realization of this goal will do much to improve the nation's economic health as well as to provide for the growing needs of business and industry for trained manpower.

The projects initiated by the Newton teachers and the Council for Advancement of Secondary Education are expected to do much to overcome existing deficiencies in these respects among the nation's secondary school students.

Questions & Answers Concerning Courthouse

Question: Where can we get the money to build a new courthouse without new taxes?

Answer: From a 2¼ Mill Ad Valorem Tax which can be used for buildings.

Question: Where has this money been used in the past?

Answer: To pay rent on County offices beca use there was no room in the present courthouse and to retire old debts of which we are now free.

Question: Will building a new courthouse affect our school program?

Answer: No, it will not. The County Schools get their money from three other sources which is explained in another article in this issue. School monies and the County government monies are derived from different sources and the two departments are two seperate and distinct units of our government.

Question: Where will the new courthouse be built?

Answer: The Board of Revenue & Control have agreed to appoint a non-political advisory board to choose the site of construction should the people vote for a new courthouse. This board would appoint capable members from all sections of the County regardless of their political belief.

Question: Is the present building adequate?

Answer: According to the report from The State Building Commission it is not. A report from the State Fire Marshal called it a fire trap.

Question: Couldn't the present building be repaired?

Answer: The present building could be repaired and used for possibly five or ten more years according to H. H. Houk, State Building Commission. This would be expensive according to Houk and cost us much more money in the long run than construction of a new building.

Question: Would local labor be used?

Answer: Yes. A clause would be included in the contract that all local labor possible be used. This was voted by The Board of Revenue & Control several months ago, should a courthouse be constructed.

Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As

Nope, Not Yet

Well, you did it again. Nobody guessed it. But, this time we'll tell you what we'll do. We're gonna run this same farm in a few weeks and give you until that time to look it up. Now that's fair. Besides, there's a car in the garage, so it should be simple. Just look until you find a car in a garage and you have it.

We'll give you some clues to kinda help you along, just to show our heart's in the right place.

It is somewhere in Chilton County, it has a mailbox in the front yard, it has a barn behind it, it is lived in, they have a car, just look at all the clues, practically telling you.

Now that we've made it easier, come in and guess in a few weeks.

The above farm will not be eligible for guessing this week. The one at the top of this page is this weeks "Farm of the Week". We'll give another try on this one in a few weeks so be on the lookout... you can still win.

E. P. 'Edd' Littlejohn Makes Statement To Citizens, Friends

I do not deem it necessary for me to send in an extensive write-up to my friends, citizens, and voters of the County, however, I do wish to make a few final statements.

As I said in the beginning it has been impossible for me to make a thorough canvass, and see each one of you personally. I'm sure that you understand this, and that seeing everyone was an impossibility.

To you, whom I have seen and talked to, it has been a genuine pleasure to see you and talk with you, and the encouraging and cooperative things you have said to me are deeply appreciated.

At the same time, I can think of many of my personal friends and acquaintances that time and opportunity did not permit me to contact, as my time has been very limited, but as I said in the outset, your friendship is valued just as highly and your support and influence just as necessary to my success as the ones I have been able to see.

I have tried to keep my campaign honest, and refined, as I am a firm believer in fair elections and I'm sure my supporters will be conscientious people, as I had no money to spend on a campaign, even if I had stood for things of that kind.

Regardless of rumors that might have been circulated concerning deputies, etc., I have made no promise to anyone.

All the promise I have to make is to the citizens of the County as a whole, and that is, should I be your choice as Sheriff, I will to the best of my ability give you a clean, upright and impartial administration.

Your support and influence on Nov. 2 will be deeply appreciated.

HIGHLAND NEWS

We had a large crowd out for church Sunday morning. We had several visitors and we are proud you came out to worship with us and we want to extend to you a cordial invitation to come back any time. Also some of our members who have not been attending services. We miss you and the Lord needs you to work in his vineyard to help carry on His Kingdom's work here. The pastor, Bro. Vester Bice, brought a wonderful message Sunday morning and also on Sunday night. The ones who missed these services missed a blessing.

We still have some in our community who are unable to attend church. Let's remember them in our prayers.

Thursday night is prayer services and family night. Don't forget these services as it is your duty as a christian to attend all the services of your church. If we go seeking the Lord we are sure to find Him.

Remember Sunday School every Sunday at 10:00 o'clock and B.T.U. at 6:00 o'clock. Come and bring someone with you.

We were very glad indeed to have Mrs. Marshall Baker with us Sunday night. Mrs. Baker has been ill for some time and unable to attend church services.

Let us continue to pray for her that she may soon be completely well again.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

One Alabama hero of the Spanish American War won fame not in fighting the enemy but in his battle against disease. He was Dr. William Crawford Gorgas.

Dr. William Crawford Gorgas remained in Cuba following the end of the Spanish-American War to aid in a further study on yellow fever and its cause.

The results of Dr. Gorgas' experiments on the cause of yellow fever and how to prevent it were too late to help U. S. troops who fought in the Spanish-American War but they were to be of great service to mankind.

Social Security Agent Changes Schedule

The Social Security Administration announced today a change in the schedule of the representative for Chilton County in order to give better service, J. W. Overstreet, Jr., manager of the Birmingham District Office, added that the change will be effective in November. The representative will be at the 2nd floor of the Courthouse in Clanton Thursday afternoon, Nov. 4, and each Thursday thereafter from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Mr. Overstreet stated the change was made to enable the social security representative to devote more time to people seeking information or wishing to file claim for old-age or survivors insurance.

Effective January 1, 1955 farm operators, some professional self-employed persons, ministers, and employees covered by State or local retirement systems will be eligible for social security coverage.

Also effective January 1, 1955, farm workers will be eligible under a much simplier plan. The farm workers who are paid $100 or more in cash wages in a year by one farm operator will then be covered by the law.

The 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act remove the requirement that household employees must work a certain number of days in order to be covered. The only special requirement beginning Jan. 1, 1955, will be for them to be paid at least $50 cash wages in a quarter by one employer.

For further information on the changes in the Social Security Act contact the social security representative at the Courthouse in Clanton any Thursday afternoon between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Local Groups Are Observing UN Week

A community-wide program in observance of United Nations Week was begun Sunday and is continuing through this week. The aim of the program, which marks the ninth birthday of the United Nations, is to increase public knowledge and understanding of the UN.

TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY

The noble task is almost completed. Sir Winston Churchill has brought forth the sixth and concluding volume in his magnificent series of war memoirs. It records in brilliant fashion those stirring events which filled the scene between the Normandy landing on June 6th, 1944 and the surrender of all the enemies some fourteen months later. Written in what Sir Winston called, "that noble thing, the English language," and, with consummate skill, one feels him well worthy of the recent award of the Nobel Prize for Literature.

The title of this last volume is interesting and significant. He has called it "Triumph and Tragedy." Sir Winston has chosen this title because, as he declared in the preface, the overwhelming victories of the Grand Alliance have failed thus far in bringing anything of general peace into our anxious world.

In other words, whatever there might be of that triumph which is engineered of man's hopes and plannings, it is but the short-lived flower, which soon passes away before the cold, biting wind of another conflict's tragedy.

There is one thing that Sir Winston' cares about above and beyond all other things—it is both a noble and pitiful thing; noble in the eyes of men, but pitiful in the light of God's inerrant Word. Said he, "that I may have an influence on what I care above all else—the building of a sure and lasting peace," Many echo that sincere desire. Never have so many longed and laboured so earnestly for such peace. This is true of nations and of individuals.

But there is also a spiritual war, intense conflict raging in the depths of every human heart under the control and operation of the good of this world. Against every life which has not come to a personal acquaintanceship with the Lord Jesus Christ, that great Prince of Peace, this title, "Triumph and Tragedy," may be etched with letters burning deep and pitch black. What seems to satisfy is but for the brief season, then comes the tragedy of disappointment, disillusionment and despair. That is cold fact, stamped fast by bitter experience, upon every heart not sheltered in Calvary's haven of rest.

Peace! Genuine peace which satisfies the soul, hushes the heart, links life with real drive and purpose; guaranteed peace which blesses with the cup of joy and adds the benediction of assurance for eternity! What a word! What a dream! If such peace were a matter of man's seeking and grasping, of his own unaided efforts, there would have been triumph without tragedy long, long ago. That sea of restfulness which rages like a foul and angry thing through life would have been dried up for good.

Is it not time to come to the fre ing of facts, as revealed in the one authority on the vital subject, the Word of God? It is the testimony of the Word that this absence of peace is due to the presence of sin, and until the Sinbearer is received by repentance and faith there will always be the tragedy of its curse. The one tragedy leads to another, and far deeper; the greatest of all tragedies is the personal neglect of Calvary's triumph. What a tragedy if you miss the triumph of Jesus Christ's salvation, for nothing can restore such a loss.

The Holy Bible rested at the foot of the globe and the United Nations official flag hung above it. On each side of the banner was the Christian flag and the flag of the United States.

Harold Smith Writes To The Voters Of Chilton County

It has been impossible to see all the voters of Chilton County during the recent campaign as much as I would liked to do so. However, as I have stated before, I am running for reelection on my record as a public official and I believe my record will prove that I have served you well.

After four years as a Member of the Board of Revenue & Control the county is in far better financial condition than it has ever been before. We have better roads, better machinery and better working conditions for our county employees.

If you will reelect me I will promise to faithfully serve you during the next four years as I have in the past—placing the county's welfare first in all of my dealings.

Your interests are my interests and I am never too busy to discuss your problems with you or to help you find a solution for them.

I want to make a personal appeal to you to go to the polls and vote on November 2. Your support in my behalf will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
A. H. (Harold) Smith

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

A farm pond was surveyed for Mr. J. M. Dunlap last week for livestock watering and fish production.

Lloyd F. Mims, District Cooperator of Verbena, stated that he did not think too much of Costal Bermuda Grass until this drought came. Now he says it is the only grass he has that he is getting any grazing off of. Lloyd said, "I am starting at the lower side of my field and setting it solid to the top."

District Cooperator, Arley E. Guy likes Sericea in his orchard. This year part of his orchard had an old stand of Sericea on it and part was cultivated clean. Mr. Guy states that the part of his orchard that had Sericea sod was the highest, driest and poorest part of the orchard, yet from this part with the same variety and treatment, he gathered more peaches and better quality peaches. Mr. Guy also stated he had more peach wood on the trees and better looking fruit buds, indicating the possibility of a better crop from these trees another year. Mr. Guy intends to set more orchard this winter and plans to seed all of it Sericea. We think this is a very good conservation practice. It protects our soil from erosion and slows up the run-off water, causing more of it to soak into the ground. The Sericea can be cut and used for hay or a mulch on the land if it is not needed. We believe we need more of it, especially on some of the orchards located on steep lands.

Sie Foshee has just completed sowing 15 acres of Pennsacola Bahia grass in oats. The oats will be hayed next spring and the Bahia left ungrazed the balance of the year so it will be better established.

To The Voters Of Chilton County

You have been most courteous and very encouraging to me during my campaign for District 2 Board of Revenue and Control. I would like to take this opportunity to thank one and all for this.

It has been my desire to get around and see all of you personally, but due to the short period of time alloted, it was impossible. I have conducted a clean campaign on my own merits and refrained from mud-slinging or calling the attention to my opponents short comings, if any.

Please be assured that if you elect me to represent you on the Board of Revenue and Control I shall do everything in my power to make one of the best members you have ever had.

I will not show favoritism or partiality to any clicque or clan, regardless of pressure. I will do everything within my power to see that every dollar of your tax money is spent to your best interest and fairly distributed over the county.

Again I thank each and every one of you for being so nice to me during my campaign. May God bless each and every one of you.

Grille Blends with New Design

Front-end styling conforms with the low, rugged appearance that characterizes 1955 Chevrolet bodies. The lattice-work grille is low and broad. Fender surfaces between bumper and hooded headlamps are broken by individually styled parking lamps. Form of the bumper follows closely the contours of the sheet metal.

OFFEND NOT

We have learned that Jesus Christ is the only God that ever spake in the Bible: That He is the lamb slain from the foundation of the world: His testimony is the spirit of prophecy. He spake by the mouth of his Holy Prophets which have been since the world began.

One thing very many people have not learned is that we have to keep ten points in God's law, not only keep, but do and teach.

If you keep the whole law and yet offend in one point you are guilty of all, James 2:10.

Friends, I cannot believe you will keep nine points then fail in one, and miss Eternal life. If you do, that will be an awful price to pay for your pride.

Yours in Christ,

Lee A. Popwell

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Jim Walsh, Vinton, Virginia: I remember when Billy Murray and his partner, Ada Jones were the most popular makers of phonograph records. Ada Jones, who received proposals of marriage from masculine admirers of her recorded voice, died in 1922, but Murray is living at Freeport, Long Island, New York, and still has a good voice. I also remember when Thomas A. Edison's Diamond Disc phonograph was the sound reproducing marvel because its tone was so natural artists sang on the stage in direct comparison with its reproduction and the audience couldn't tell when the singer stopped and the instrument took up the song. Since I was six or seven years of age I have been collecting information about the history of the phonograph and the lives of recording artists.

From Lonnie E. Legge, Lewisburg, West Virginia: I remember when my father used the almanac for planting as faithfully as he used the Bible for religion. Many of our superstitions and beliefs were handed down from generation to generation. Some they believed were: Always plant corn when the sign is in the arms, and the ears will hand down like arms; potatoes planted in the light of the moon will grow so close to the top of the ground they will sunburn, but planted in a full moon a full crop, deep in the ground.

FOR a quick supper, keep some cooked chicken on hand. Blend with chopped celery, green pepper and mayonnaise. Spread thickly on halved, buttered buns and toast in broiler until bubbly.

Need two cans of soup and have only one of several kinds? You'll find that tomato soup can be combined with any one of the following for true deliciousness: bean, clam chowder, chicken-rice, chicken noodle or green pea.

Chili con carne makes a good hearty supper. To dress it like new, bake corn bread in an oiled ring mold, and serve chili in the center.

Soak your dried herbs in milk and then add them to your meat ball recipe for a savory treat.

When the man of the house is hungry for a super sandwich, cover thick slices of bread with ham, spread with chili sauce and top with a slice of processed American cheese. Broil until cheese browns to a golden color.

Fruit juices make a wonderful appetizer. Simply chill the cans, pour the juice into glasses and top with a spoonful of sherbet.

Fold some cooked, chopped walnuts into your favorite spice cake mix. The cake is wonderful frosted with chocolate or creamy lemon icing.

NEW BROOM SWEEPS CLEAN

By Sally S. Eads

HIS new game warden's uniform made Larry Guinn look like a model for a clothing store advertisement. Larry felt important.

"I understand," he said to the men standing on the courthouse steps," that Burgess county has not had a real game warden in years."

"What? Oh, yes," a farmer contradicted. "Tom Cross was a good game warden. Of course, a few fellers got around gittin' hunting licenses."

Larry ignored the remark. "By the way, can you tell me where to find Thomas J. Smith, the District Attorney?"

"Out of town," the farmer answered.

Larry walked away smiling. He was sure he had impressed these farmers with his importance. All he wanted with the District Attorney was to make his acquaintance. He had learned that the D. A. was a big shot. A new man in town is judged by the company he keeps.

When he turned off the highway onto a dirt road, he saw fresh car tracks. "Hunters!" he said to himself, and picked up speed.

"I'm trailing a friend," Larry used to a woman he saw in the yard. "Can you tell me whose car this is?"

"Don't know," the woman replied. "He's gone up into the woods a buntin'."

"There's a log-wagon road," the woman pointed, helpfully. "Guess your little roadster can pull it."

The rutted road was rough and Larry drove slowly. Squirrels scampered around him. He wished for his gun.

Larry had parked his car when he heard a gun boom. He ran down the hill, briars scratching him and ugly tears holes in his new pants. On and on he stumbled, until at last he saw a tall, slender man in a drab-colored hunting coat.

He walked up to the stranger and showed his badge. "Hunting, I see," he said. "May I count your squirrels?"

The stranger nodded, and Larry counted.

"You have your quota," Larry told him with an air of importance.

"I know," the man said, irritably.

"Your license, please," Larry demanded. "It's the law."

The stranger searched his pockets, but found no license. "Must have left it in my car," he said, and started walking.

"Not so fast, stranger," Larry ordered in a voice of authority. "We'll walk up the hill to my car, then ride down to your car."

The stranger shook his head. "I don't want to climb that hill. I'll cut across to the wagon road and wait for you."

Larry reluctantly nodded. "What's your name?" he asked.

"Smith," the stranger answered, smiling.

"All right, Mister Smith." Larry put great emphasis on the Mister Smith.

He watched the stranger a minute, then rushed up the hill to his car. He was in a lather of sweat when he reached his car, but he jumped in and dashed down the wagon road. To his surprise, the stranger was waiting for him.

The man got into the car. "Thanks for the ride," he said. "This squirrel meat's heavy."

Larry nodded and began talking. By the time they reached the stranger's car, Larry had told all about himself, even his ambition to know the D. A. "His name really is Smith," Larry said with a grin.

Just as Larry expected, there was no license in the car. "Wouldn't this be a joke to tell the D. A.?" They'd have a good laugh.

"Mister Smith, maybe you forgot to get a license," Larry suggested.

The man laughed and brought his bill fold from his pocket. He laughed again when he handed the license to Larry for inspection.

Larry felt himself turn cold. The name on the license read, "Thomas J. Smith, D. A."

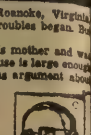
DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

JULIAN FORBES, 1431 Wellsley Street, N. W., Roanoke, Virginia, says that five years ago he got married and his troubles began. But he gives thanks that they were short lived.

At the time of his marriage he was living with his mother and was her only support. Soon he found the old axiom, "No house is large enough for two families" to be true. There was a continuous argument about something all the time, not about matters that counted, but about petty things such as where pictures should be hung, where the dishes were to be put and where the furniture was to be placed.



CARNEGIE

And he was in the middle of this friction. He was obligated to his mother, but he was also obligated to his wife. Trying to analyze the trouble, he found the only way out was for him and his wife to move to another apartment. He talked to his brothers, letting them know his decision and asking their help in the support of their mother.

They were lucky to find an apartment soon. Since that time they have built their own home. He says the interesting feature of his story is that his wife and his mother are the best of friends today. They belong to the same bridge club and church circles.

Two weeks ago when his wife was sick with the Mumps, his mother not only came and took care of her but also, even though she disliked animals, she fed and looked after three dogs, one with four puppies.

WASHINGTON Guinn

Q—What function does the Library of Congress play in Congressional action?
A—Originally the Library of Congress was instituted as a repository of books for convenience of members of Congress. It was established near the Capitol in 1800 with an original appropriation of about $5,000. Today it's appropriation runs more than $9 million annually and it's most important function is a legislative reference service for gathering of statistics, the writing of bills for the benefit of members. It occupies two huge buildings and serves the public as well as Congress.

Q—Can an appropriation bill originate in the Senate?
A—The constitution provides that all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House. But some bills carrying appropriations for a specific purpose have originated in the Senate.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1954 CLANTON, ALABAMA

ELECT R. ODELL PAYTON SHERIFF

A MESSAGE TO THE VOTERS

As this is the last issue of the county papers before the General Election November 2nd, I wish to thank everyone for the way in which you have expressed your confidence in me by your kind words and encouragement.

As you know I am no stranger to Chilton County. Having been a life long resident here, I feel I am acquainted with many of the problems of our people and I will work faithfully, for better law enforcement. I will make every effort to aid the old and needy of our County and will at all times cooperate with all our County Officials in these endeavors.

I want to be your next Sheriff. By having submitted myself to you in two Democratic Primaries I received 96 per cent of the votes cast in both primaries in my home beat. Therefore a man's reputation speaks for itself when the community in which he lives voices their opinion as they have in the past two primaries.

If elected Sheriff, I will work along with the wishes of the people as a public servant.

I believe in a wise and careful consideration of you the taxpayers of Chilton County.

I have not made any promises to anyone, I am not tied to any group or sponsored by anyone in any way. In regards to the idle rumors that fly in political campaigns you can ignore. Like mud, if you let them dry they fall off. It has been my policy to run a clean campaign, because what is needed in Chilton County is builders, not knockers. I do promise honest, efficient, and courteous law enforcement to all with special favors to none.

Again I say thank you voters of Chilton County for your most appreciated support in the past primaries, and I humbly ask any and all for your support and influence in the General Election November 2nd.

My friends whom I have not had the pleasure of talking to in person please accept this as a personal message from me to you, and please go to the polls and take somebody with you on November 2nd and vote.

PLEASE GO AND VOTE.

I sincerely solicit your vote and influence.

Your friend,
R. Odell Payton

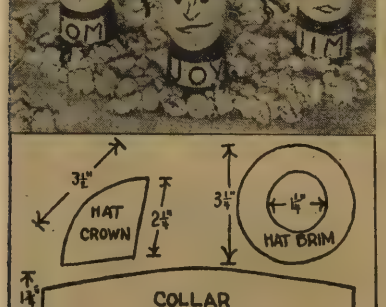
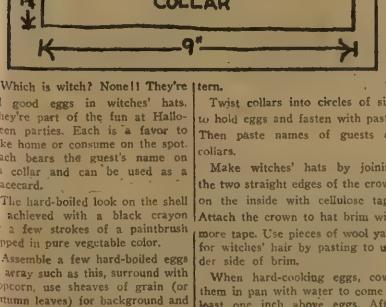
Eggs for Halloween Favors





Which is witch? None!! They're all good eggs in witches' hats. They're part of the fun at Halloween parties. Each is a favor to take home or consume on the spot. Each bears the guest's name on its collar and can be used as a placecard.

The hard-boiled look on the shell is achieved with a black crayon or a few strokes of a paintbrush dipped in pure vegetable color.

Assemble a few hard-boiled eggs in array such as this, surround with popcorn, use sheaves of grain (or autumn leaves) for background and presto! you have a centerpiece to radiate magic for halloween.

Here's how it's done:

Cut witches' hats and collars from black paper, using above pattern.

Twist collars into circles of size to hold eggs and fasten with paste. Then paste names of guests on collars.

Make witches' hats by joining the two straight edges of the crown on the inside with cellulose tape. Attach the crown to hat brim with more tape. Use pieces of wool yarn for witches' hair by pasting to under side of brim.

When hard-cooking eggs, cover them in pan with water to come at least one inch above eggs. After bringing rapidly to boiling, turn off heat. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Then cool promptly and thoroughly in cold water. This helps prevent dark surface on yolks.

Citizens Committee Says New County Courthouse Can Be Constructed Without Additional Taxation To Us

A committee of Chilton County citizens, headed by Reedie Taylor, chairman, says that the county can construct a new courthouse without additional taxes. Facts and figures obtained by this committee show this to be true and a letter from H. H. Houk, State Building Commission stresses the need for such a building to house the county offices.

Chilton County is one of four counties in the State of Alabama which it debt free and does not owe any interest bearing indebtedness whatsoever.

Chilton County can pay for the new courthouse out of the Buildings, Road and Bridge Fund. This fund receives approximately $36,000.00 per year from the 2½ mill Ad Valorem Tax, which can all be used for buildings. This will in no way affect the amount of State Gasoline Tax which is available for the maintenance of dirt roads and the maintenance of paved roads. The Gasoline Tax Fund receives approximately $220,000.00 per year of gasoline tax for the maintenance of dirt roads. The Paving fund receives approximately $113,000.00 per year of gasoline tax for the maintenance and construction of paved roads. Another $113,000.00 per year of gasoline tax money is set aside in Montgomery in State Funds to be used only for paved roads. Another $37,300.00 (which will be greatly increased under a new law) of Federal Funds is available each year for paved roads in Chilton County. Chilton County has been able to match State and Federal funds out of their own funds available and has sufficient funds to match future funds for paved roads. Chilton County also has available approximately $20,000.00 per year from motor vehicle licenses which can be also used for paved roads. It has been able to pave short roads from their own funds.

The question has been asked as to whether or not a new courthouse would affect the schools money derived for school purposes? The schools in Chilton County get their money from three sources: 1. There is a 7 mill school tax in Chilton County that goes direct to the Board of Education for Schools. 2. The State of Alabama provides more than 75 per cent of the funds used in Chilton County for school purposes. 3. Federal funds are provided for vocational education. The funds of the Board of Revenue and Control and the funds of the Board of Education are entirely seperate and no funds can be transferred from one to the other. The funds are deposited in seperate banks. To the contrary, the Board of Education and school funds will be benefitted in the amount of over $1,000.00 per year which is now being spent for office rent and janitor service.

After considering the amount of rent saved each year, the cost of paying for a new courthouse would be approximately 2 per cent of the total expenditures of Chilton County each year.

These facts and figures were obtained by a committee of non-partisan voters and taxpayers of Chilton County who are interested only in the general welfare of Chilton County.

It's no trick at all to button a stiff tab collar if you wet the tabs slightly.

If shoes air for ½ day between wearing, perspiration will not have as much chance to wear them out.

Wed Fifty Years

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. G. White of Jemison, Ala., recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary with their daughter and family, Mrs. Winford Jackson, and two of their sons and families, Mr. J. O. White and Archie White, present for the observance, together with a host of relatives and friends of the happy couple.

They have eleven grandchildren and two other sons who were not present for the celebration, Arnold, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and S-Sgt. Reuben C. White now of Montgomery, Alabama.

They have been residents of Chilton County their entire married life.

Chilton Farmers To Benefit From Social Security Amendm'nts

The 1954 Amendments to the Social Security Act extend old-age and survivors insurance to over three and a half million farm operators—people farming for themselves—beginning January 1, 1955. This announcement was made today by J. W. Overstreet, Jr., Manager of the Birmingham Social Security Office. Practically all farm operators who clear as much as $400 in a year will begin to earn social security credits in much the same way as the self-employed business man has been earning them since the beginning of 1950.

For the farm operators, the new amendments provide a special simplified reporting procedure. Those farmers who report on a cash basis and who have a gross income of $1,800 or less for the year may report either their actual net earnings or 50 percent of the gross income. A farm operator who has an annual gross earnings over $1,800 must figure his actual net earnings for the year. If that net is less than $900 for the year, the farm operator may either report $900 or the actual amount for his old-age and survivors insurance purposes. The self-employed farmer who has net earnings of $400 or more in a taxable year after 1954 must report all such earnings up to $4,200 for social security purposes. His net earnings—or profit—is the amount left after subtracting his farm expenses from his gross receipts as determined for income tax purposes. He will pay the three percent social security tax on these net self-employment earnings once a year beginning with 1955.

Mr. Overstreet said that the self-employment social security tax on farm earnings applies to taxable years after 1954. If a self-employed farmer's first report covering any 1955 earnings is for the entire calendar year 1955, he will make the report early in 1956 as part of his Federal income tax return. If a farmer's net earnings for the year are more than $400, he must file a self-employment report and pay the social security tax of three percent even if his earnings have not been high enough to require the payment of any federal income tax.

Mr. Overstreet said that his office has a free booklet, "Facts for Farm Families." If you would like one of these booklets or have any questions about social security, contact your local representative who is in Clanton on any Thursday from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

ONE LESS KILLED IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS TO DATE THIS YEAR

Montgomery—Alabama's '54 traffic toll was counted last week (Oct. 22) at 625.

Acting Public Safety Director W. C. McKinney said the score of 625 dead was one lower than the toll recorded during the corresponding period of 1953.

State highway patrolmen armed with mobile radar speedmeters kept up their fight against Alabama's major highway killer, speed, last week, stopping another 62 motorists at check points over the state. To date, 18 have been arrested and another 87 released with written warning citations by the radar enforcement crews.

NEXT TUESDAY IS "D" DAY

Let's make next Tuesday "D" Day in Chilton County. "D" is for Democratic.

Go to the polls and vote a straight Democratic ticket. The Democratic party in Chilton County has gone far toward making our county a model so far as road building and finance is concerned. We are one of only four counties in the state absolutely free from debt of any kind. It didn't just happen—the members of your county government worked hard to accomplish this and will continue to see that Chilton County moves progressively forward along with the changing times. You know we never stand still. If we are not progressing we are slipping backward—Chilton County is progressing.

By electing the present slate of candidates who are running on the Democratic Ticket this year headed by Governor-nominate James E. (Big Jim) Folsom, the party presents a capable, sincere and honest group of men who seek to serve their state and county well. They need your support and it is to your best interest to vote the Democratic Ticket.

BUSINESS REPORTED IMPROVING

Roy A. Foulk, vice-president of Dunn and Bradstreet, Inc., said recently that sales and profits by American business in this—the last—quarter of 1954 will represent an improvement over the level of a year ago. This is an optimistic expression, since 1954 has not been the business year 1953 was, in most fields.

Foulk, addressing the annual convention of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, in New York, said that business was still experiencing a slow reduction of inventories, which was one of the most surprising features of the recovery now being experienced. He said that it was highly unusual for a recovery to be made while inventories were still being reduced.

He attributed the fact that the recovery had started—even though inventories were still going down—to very great inherent strength in the economy at this time.

Foulk's prediction for business for the last quarter of this year parallels that of most of the economic forecasters, and is an encouraging one. The fact that so many economic experts are predicting a better Christmas this year than last is something surprising. Most of these experts also predict that the pick-up in business, which is expected in this quarter, will continue over into 1955. A majority of them believe that by the middle of 1955, the pick-up will be over. Marion Times Standard.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

We've seen some industrious fellows in our day, but our newspaper boy takes the cake. If any predictions were to be made we'd bet on Mr. Cobb. He delivers the Birmingham News to our door every day and with him it's a matter of great importance, and it rightly should be. It's just that you don't see too many 10 or 11 year old boys with that much business sense. If he runs out of papers he rides his trusty steed back to town and gets the 2 or 3 he was short. He makes sure you get your paper rain or shine and for our money he's the best paper carrier in the business. He takes great concern in the pleasing of his customers and you can tell it pays by looking down the block and seeing very few yards without a paper in it. He's a good business man.

We see a fellow driving around over town these days with a "Vote no on the new courthouse" sign on his car. He should have to work up there a few days like some folks do all the time and then we wonder what tune he would be singing? We haven't yet talked to any of those "progressives" who are against everything that's started, but we can't understand some folks being so backward. Instead of just bellowing "we don't want a new courthouse" we wonder why they don't produce some substantial reasons for not having one in Chilton County? If there is a substantial reason for not having one then they should come out with it so they'd have some sort of an argument.

We'll have to hand it to our neighbor Montgomerians. They put on a bang-up festive time at the Fair this year with all the smaller communities doing their share to help out. It was something new and different, guess that's partly why we enjoyed it so much. It was fun we hope they made a lot of money for the kids and we hope they have another next year.

And since we're on the subject. An even closer neighbor of ours here in Clanton that took part in the South Alabama Fair was the community of Concord. We'd hate to overlook anyone else who might have contributed to it in our locals, but Concord was the only booth we recognized. We're sure that they'd be interested to know that the night we were down there more folks had gathered around their booth than any other in the entire area. There was something simple, but fascinating about the exhibit and whoever put forth the effort of setting it up deserves a vote of thanks from his fellow Concordians for putting them in the "spotlight" at the South Alabama Fair.

Don't know wether or not congratulations are in order or not, but we want ole Ralph down at Upchurch's to know that we saw where he had been appointed something or other in the W. O. W. organization and we want him to do a fine job. You can see for yourself, elsewhere in this issue are the details on the new chapter here, and the Boys organization which the Woodmen are sponsoring is getting off to a fine start. Anyone interested can see Ralph Johnston at Upchurch's or attend a meeting as a visitor. The meetings will be announced in the "News."

It's the time for all the hob-goblins and spooks to don their scary attire and go trick-or-treatin'. Halloween comes but once a year and we can remember when it was a mighty long year before it got around to time when legal scaring and general messing up came around. We don't recommend that anyone do any damage on the night of the witches and stuff, but we do recommend a good time for all the youngsters because after you get just to the point where you know who Santa Claus is Halloween an all it's fun flys out the window too. It's a sad day when you can no longer whoop it up on Halloween. But you do get over it in time for Thanksgiving turkey... that's something you never get too old for.

We just can't seem to give that old Clanton Fire Dept. enough credit for their readiness and speed with which they carry out their duties when a fire breaks out. It's true that we seldom have big fires around Clanton, thank goodness, but brush fires could cause damage if not taken care of at once. Too, it would seem that having nothing but small insignificant fires would tend to make the firemen a little sluggish about getting there because it is probably a routine trash fire. Such is not the case with our boys. They treat 'em all as if they were the middle of town burning down and it sure makes a taxpayer feel a lot easier when he sees them take over so handily. We still say we're proud of them.

IT'S MY OPINION

Was talking to a fellow just the other day about this and that and the subject got around to what's right and wrong, and what's good for us and the people we deal with. Particularly the influence we have on our every day acquaintances.

It's odd sometimes that our bad influence works much better than our good intentions do. We suppose that's because anything that's worth anything isn't easy to acquire.

The gentleman we were talking with mentioned also the fact that it's the boosters and not the knockers who really get things done. He's right, too. The funny thing is, we all know that's right, yet there are still a few of us who will sit back and criticize and tear down everything constructive that is tried to be accomplished.

It's the knockers that start wars and keep the world in an uproar these days. It's the knockers that keep communities and towns from thriving and prospering. It's the knockers that make the neighborhood a place unpleasant in which to live. Yes, it's even the knockers that make the family unhappy some of the time.

But, it's the boosters that make the family happy and useful, that make the neighborhood one to be proud to live in, that make the towns and communities places in which to live better lives.

It's the boosters that try to stave off war and depression and bad government. It's the boosters that make your church one which you can be proud to attend and to carry your family to and that's a church that will grow and be recognized.

So, why be a knocker? Try to look at things different. When you are given the opportunity to choose whether to knock or boost listen to your conscience... it can tell you more than anything you read or hear anytime, anywhere. Then, if you're honest with yourself, you'll feel like being a booster. You can say you've done all you can to help.

WELL-FED "GOBLINS" WILL PULL NO PRANKS

Tasty "treats" served to goblins and ghosts who come to visit you on Hallowe'en, will save you from "tricks".

Miss Mary Hulsey, API Extension foods specialist, says you can make friends with all the spirits if you'll serve them doughnuts topped with colorful, delicious icings.

Children love doughnuts, and chocolate is their favorite flavor. Have some on hand, and try a new recipe too, Miss Hulsey suggest.

Orange, for instance. Make white fudge icing and use orange juice as the liquid. For a finishing touch, shred some orange rind, mix with sugar, and dip the doughnuts in it.

Talk about good! You'll really have the ghosts and goblins smacking their lips when you greet them with this delicious treat for them tricks.

On New Courthouse-

Finds And Recommendations By Building Commission

In a letter from H. H. Houk of the State Building Commission, to the Probate Judge of Chilton County recently, it was made evident that the county is in dire need of a new building in which to house its official offices. The letter from Mr. Houk was written after a thorough investigation of the present courthouse by the State Fire Marshall. His findings are related in the letter from Mr. Houk to Hon. M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama:

Judge Maynard Dave Tingle
Judge of Probate
Chilton County

Dear Sir:

As requested an inspection was made of the Chilton County Courthouse, October 13, 1954, in company with J. V. Kitchens, State Fire Marshall.

In the light of the State Fire Marshall's report and my inspection the following findings and recommendations are submitted.

Findings—

1. The Court House has served the better part of a century which is beyond the economic and efficient life of such a building in a growing and progressive County.

2. Continuance of its use will require repairs to the chimney, roof, stairs and other deteriorated parts; replacement of certain ceilings, certain plumbing lines and fixtures; almost the entire electric wiring system; and the removal of existing fire hazards to the extent possible in a building of its type and condition.

3. If replacements, such as wiring, are made their full cost will not be obtained since construction of a new Court House in the near future cannot be avoided because it is impracticable and would be wasteful to attempt to prolong its service life by remodeling and-or adding additions or annexes.

4. Irreplaceable records in the Court House are subject to the hazard of loss or damage, which should it occur, could in the future cost the people and the county more than a new Court House.

5. There is not enough space in the Court House for the units of county government which now occupy it and private buildings are being leased by the County to house other units, which for proper functioning of the units and efficient, convenient service to the people, should be located in the same building. Working conditions in the building cannot be brought up to recognized health standards for all the people working in the county government units which now occupy the building due to lack of space.

Recommendations—

1. In view of the above findings, the excellet financial condition of the County, the present low interest rate, the current favorable construction costs, a new well-planned well-sited Court House that will provide space for all the necessary services of county government should be built, as soon as practicable.

2. The site should be large enough to permit ample, convenient off-street parking, of sufficient area to permit the construction of any forseeable necessary or desirable county buildings considered properly near a Court House.

3. That the new Court House be built on a well-drained site 5 to 10 acres in area, not too far from the center of the City, conveniently accessible from highways, streets and to water, sewer, power and gas lines.

4. That neither the site of the old Court House or the present jail be used for a new Court House because neither are large enough for buildings, either would increase an already serious parking problem, and would tend to retard rather than contribute to the development of the business district.

Please do not hesitate to call on us if you feel that we can be of service on this or any other county building problem.

Yours very truly,
State Building Commission

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

BODY LICE

Pediculosis or lousiness is a condition ordinarily associated with filth or uncleanliness. Often thru personal contact, however, lice are found on the bodies of persons who live under the cleanest conditions.

Of the many types of lice, only three attack human beings—body, head and pubic lice. So far as is known, head and pubic do not transmit disease; but body lice have been found to carry the germ causing typhus fever.

While the three types of lice differ somewhat in shape, their one common characteristice is feeding on the blood they suck from their victim. This causes a stinging sensation and itchiness. When the victim scratches the point of the wound, he is apt to break the skin over a wider area, often producing infection. Various skin conditions such as boils or eczema may develop, while the lice continue their activity beneath the crusts and scales.

Overcrowding and uncleanliness are the two principal reasons why lice spread. The former makes it easier for personal contact, while uncleanliness creates a haven for the parasites.

Personal cleanliness is most important in preventing lousiness. Frequent bathing and shampoos with soap and water are necessary, as are frequent laundering and cleaning of clothes with particular attention given to the seams. One should avoid using combs, brushes and headgear belonging to others and be wary of resting head on the backs of seats in public places.

While some simple remedies are available to rid the body of lice selection and application should be done on the advice of a physician. Some are of inflammable content and if used carelessly could end disastrously. Others can produce a severe dermatitis in some persons. Skin disorders caused by the scratching must be treated only after the delousing has been finished.

And, whereas, it appears from said petition that Earl R. Gore is the rightful owner in Fee Simple of said lands having acquired it from M. A. Gore, deceased and Elwyn S. Gore, deceased, and whereas, it appears that title has not been conveyed out of Chilton County, Alabama, and whereas, it appears that in Commissioners Court, Record book 1, at page 389 the Commissioners Court on July 8, 1901 directed the Judge of Probate to convey said property, and whereas, it appears that said deed was either not recorded and delivered to the then owner or purchaser or was lost or misplaced without being recorded and, whereas, on January 23, 1933, as shown by Commissioners Court record 17, page 31 that there was an attempt to convey part of said property to M. A. Gore the then owner of said property and to W. J. Easterling which were partially an heir and, whereas, said conveyance was either never executed and delivered or the same was lost without being recorded at said time.

And now in compliance with the former orders of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County and with the facts as alleged in said petition which are found to be true and correct by this Honorable Court.

It is therefore, resolved, ordered, adjudged, and decreed by this Court that M. D. Tingle as Judge of Probate of Chilton County execute in the name of Chilton County and deliver to Earl R. Gore the present owner of the property a deed conveying whatever right, title, interest of Chilton County has now or has had in and to the following described property, to-wit -

A lot or parcel of land described as follows: Comencing at the Northeast corner of lot no. 1 in block no. 10, according to map or plat of the Town of Clanton, and run thence South along the West boundary line of 6th street 75 feet, thence at right angles West a distance of 23 and one-third feet to a point, thencerun North parallel to 6th a distance of 75 feet to the North line of lot no. 1, and to the South side of 2nd avenue north or main street in the city of Clanton, thence run East along the South side of 2nd. avenue 23 and one-third feet to the point of beginning, said lot being in the Northeast corner of lot no. 1, block no. 10, in the City of Clanton, Alabama, East of the Louisville and Nashville RR Company right-of-way. Certain to share the beauty spotlight in Chevrolet's latest line of passenger car models is the Bel Air sport coupe, completely re-styled for 1955. Among noteworthy features in the above view are the broad, low grille and hood lines, appreciably increased vision through the new sweep-sight windshield, and the effect of fleetness imparted by chrome molding strips. This special two-tone color styling will be available on Bel Air sport coupes and convertibles among the 14 models.

OAK GROVE

Our attendance for Sunday and Sunday night was especially good. The Lord is blessing in many ways. We are so happy to report two wonderful sermons brought to us by our new pastor, Brother Glover of Bessemer. The ones who were not present missed a blessing. We were glad to have so many visitors and we welcome everyone back.

We are thankful to be able to reorganize our Training Union with around 50 enrolling. We know there are many more who want to help in this work. Please be present at 6:30.

The Young People's Sunday School Class visited Little Jerusalem in Cullman, Ala., and all reported a wonderful time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Martin and son were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Northcutt.

Mrs. Dot Griffin and children of Selma spent last week with Mrs. Griffin's mother, Mrs. Ruth Matthews.

We were glad to have Mrs. Anis Cobb at church Sunday. Mrs. Cobb is making her home in Birmingham.

The Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Collins and Darlene were Brother and Mrs. Glover and children, Linda, Jane, Wayne, and June Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Satterwhite and children, Penny and Jan, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pierce and son, Leon.

Please don't forget our monthly singing the Saturday night before the first Sunday. We are expecting visiting singers and quartets along with Mr. Jones an dthat ever popular radio announcer of gospel singing, Jack Jackson of WLBS. Everyone is invited.

Please don't forget Prayer Meeting Tuesday night at 7:00.

Mrs. Ruth Matthews, Betsy, Vicky, and Hellen Jean Lane visited in Selma Sunday afternoon.

Everyone remember our services for the coming week end. On Saturday night at 7:00 Reverend Flannigan of Tuscaloosa will preach for us. He will also bring the sermon Sunday. On Sunday afternoon, we are going to have a fellowship meeting. Everyone bring a lunch and come spend the day with us at church.

We were very glad to have Mrs. Pearl Hagler who has been visiting her daughter in Tampa, Fla., for some time, with us Sunday night.

Local Guard Unit Brings In Annual Salary Of $81,438

Montgomery, Ala.—The most remarkable fact about Alabama's National Guard program is that not a single unit has been inactivated for lack of support from the community, Gov. Gordon Persons has declared.

And that is in spite of a tremendous expansion that has gone on since late 1950 and early 1951 when the entire Alabama National Guard was placed on federal active duty.

Today, there are 170 Army Guard units in Alabama compared to 96 at the beginning of the Persons administration. They have an authorized strength of 18,402 officers and men. And there are 25 Air Guard units with an authorized strength of 2,073 compared to 11 units at the beginning of the administration.

These Guard units bring approximately $13,000,000 annually into Alabama in drill pay, summer field training pay and pay to full-time workers. In addition, the value of armories and air installations and other installations constructed during the present administration or programmed amounts of over $11,700,000, and that doesn't count the many millions of dollars worth of equipment sent to Alabama by the federal government for the Guard.

The 96 Army National Guard units assigned to Alabama in 1950 were located in 60 municipalities within 46 counties throughout the state.

Since that time 86 new units have been assigned to Alabama and 94 have been returned from federal service, giving a total of 170 units actually that had to be organized or reorganized.

Those 170 units are located in 102 municipalities which are located in 63 of the 67 counties. The four counties that don't have Ground Guard units are Winston, Lamar, Franklin and Fayette, but they do have Engineer Aviation units.

"Every city or town offered a unit has accepted it and agreed to furnish free temporary quarters to the State Armory Commission until a permanent armory could be built," Persons said.

Furthermore, he added, each city and/or county agreed to furnish the necessary site of three acres or more to build the armory.

The governor said that a few other state municipalities have requested National Guard units. "These will be organized in the near future when units are made available by the National Guard Bureau," he continued.

Major units in the Army National Guard are the 31st (Dixie) Division (Alabama part), 142nd Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group, 226th AAA Group, 1169th Engineer Group, 135th Transportation Group and 152nd Transportation Group.

There are 21 Alabama counties that have Guard units today that did not have them at the beginning of this administration. They are Cherokee, Cleburne, Clay, Coosa, Shelby, Bibb, Perry, Lamar, Pickens, Greene, Sumter, Choctaw, Marengo, Washington, Clarke, Lowndes, Macon, Bullock, Barbour, Monroe and St. Clair.

According to Governor Persons, an estimated $10,486,394 is coming into Alabama annually in federal funds for armory drill, summer field training and full-time empoyees of Army Guard units. This is exclusive of material, supplies and armories. Of this amount Chilton's Guard payroll amounts to $81,438 annually.

A&P Cuts Coffee Prices Lowest In 6 Months

Price reductions of from four cents to six cents a pound on all three of its own brands of premium quality coffee were announced today by A&P Food Store. The nations leading coffee retailer.

These reductions, which become effective Thursday in all the Company's stores throughout the nation, bring all three brands below the dollar mark for the first time since increased wholesale cost sent retail prices surging upward more than six months ago. The new slashes will bring the price of 8 O'Clock down from 99 cents to 95 cents a pound. Red Circle will go down from $1.03 to 97 cents, and Bokar will drop from $1.05 to 99 cents a pound.

These reductions were in keeping with the Company's long-standing policy of passing along to consumers the benefit of reductions in wholesale costs as soon as possible. Rapidly rising wholesale prices for Green Coffee earlier this year sent the Company's three brands above the dollar mark in March. The peak was reached June 14 when all three sold for the same price of $1.19 per pound.

Under the new reduction program, the Company announced that prices in three pound bags would be 8 O'Clock $2.79, Red Circle $2.85 and Bokar $2.91. This brings cost to consumers down to 93, 95 and 97 cents respectively when purchased in the three pound bag.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Like schools throughout the country, ours is terribly overcrowded and understaffed. Classes have been divided and redivided, partitions have been put up in basements, hallways and cafeterias to provide additional rooms, and some schools even are operating on a split schedule.

In all the shifting about, it turned out that the seven-year-old would have a choice of her second grade teacher. So we asked her one day which of the two teachers she would rather have.

She stopped playing and sat down to give the important question proper thought. She had friends who had been taught by each teacher, and she seemed to be mulling over all the comments she had heard about each one, trying (I thought) to make a wise choice.

When I asked her what she had decided, she replied:

"I decided I want to be in the class that goes to lunch first!"

School time means blue jean time again for most boys. Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, reinforced the knees of her boys' blue jeans by sewing a strip of denim (saved from worn-out jeans) across the knee areas in each pair. She sews the strips to the side seams so that the stitches are not noticeable at all.

"Iron-on patches for jeans are wonderful," she says. "But I like to postpone their use as long as possible, and those reinforcements for the knees help me to do it."

This busy mother has a lot of mending and darning to do, especially during school months.

"Wool shirts and sweaters will wear out at the elbows," she sighs. "Some days, I have such a pile of darning to do, I'm tempted to cut all the sleeves off above the elbow!"

She has found that tops saved from boys' old socks are a big help in darning worn elbows in wool shirts and sweaters. She matches the colors as well as she can, and then she sews the top of the sock under the worn spot. Then, on the right side of the garment, she darns over the patch.

The sock tops are very elastic and will stretch when the children bend their elbows, making the darn both comfortable and practicable.

The mended wool shirts are put on hangars and placed in the proper closets along with the children's other clothes.

"I always shut the closet doors," this neighbor says. "But I despaired of ever teaching the children to shut them. Scolding, rewards, punishments did no good, I'd find closet doors open every day. And I hate to see open closet doors!

"Finally I hit upon a solution so simple I could have kicked myself for not having thought of it before. I just attached a screen door spring to each door. Now, the doors shut themselves no matter how forgetful the children are."

On busy days, this neighbor serves her family temale pie made by putting alternate layers of canned chili con carne and crushed corn flakes in a baking dish and heating thoroughly. To serve with the dish, she spreads slices of eye bread with pimento cheese spread, puts the bread together like a loaf and heats it in the oven.

REDUCE POTATO LOSS, SPRAY ALL EQUIPMENT

Auburn, Ala. — Sweet potatoes will soon be plowed up and gathered into storage places. But remember, says John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, before they are dug and hauled in the curing houses, crates, and machinery should be sprayed.

A pound of copper sulphate dissolved in 25 gallons of water or a formeldehyde solution of one pint of formalin (40 percent) in 30 gallons of water may be used, explains the farm leader.

Bagby advises second spraying, 24 hours after the first. Or he says one good coat of winter-strength lime-sulphur whitewash will give about the same results. However, he points out that it is a little more complicated to use. To make these mixtures add 15 pounds of sulphur, boiled until dissolved and seven and one-half pounds of stone lime to the whitewash.

ARMY SAYS "TAKE YOUR CHOICE" BEFORE ENLISTING

The carnival "barker" used to say, "You pay your money and you take your choice." That's all right for entertainment, but it doesn't fit when thinking of your future. The United States Army offers you the chance to "take your choice" first. You can choose your branch of the Army before you enlist. The Adjutant General's Corps, Army Medical Service, Signal Corps, Ordnance Corps, Military Police, Engineers, or any one of the various Army branches is yours for the asking. So, don't "stick your neck out." Know where you are going. See you local recruiting sergeant who is Sgt. Gibbens and his office is located in Clanton over the Western Auto Store.

DEMOS INCREASE LEAD OVER GOP IN NATIONAL VOTE FOR CONGRESSMEN

Would Win If Congressional Elections Were Held Today

Princeton, N. J. — In a nationwide survey completed Wednesday Oct. 20, Democratic Congressional candidates across the nation were running ahead of their Republican rivals by a margin of 7 per cent.

The survey included only registered or eligible voters who said they were going to vote on Election Day.

"If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican or the Democratic?"

The following table shows the nationwide results among those who had an opinion on the above question or who, if undecided, stated toward which party they "leaned."

Nationwide vote for congressmen (House of Representatives)

Democrats	53.5%
Republicans	46.5

One week ago, the vote an the question was Democrats 53%; Republicans 47%.

Today's findings on Congressional sentiment in the nation as a whole thus represent a gain of one-half per cent for the Democrats and a loss of one-half per cent for GOP candidates over the past week.

It must be understood that today's findings reflect sentiment for the nation as a whole. They cannot be applied to any single Congressional District.

Here's how today's United States Poll "trial heat" election vote compares with the official 1946, '48, '50, and '52 nationwide Congressional returns.

National Congressional Vote (House of Representatives)

	Rep.	Dem.
1946 Election	54.3	45.7
1948 Election	46.3	53.7
1950 Election	49.7	50.3
1952 Election	49.8	50.2
Today's U. S. Poll	46.5	53.5

In 1950, the Democrats won control of the House by a margin of 19 seats.

In 1952, the GOP won control of the House by a margin of 3 seats.

It is a mater of record that only once during the 20th Century has the party in power increased its lead in an off-year election. That was in 1934 when the Democrats gained 9 House seats.

Princeton Research Service's experience over the years in making many re-election forecasts show the importance of last minute shifts of sentiment.

For this reason, a re-election survey can only report as of the time the interviewing was conducted.

Today's findings must not, therefore be construed as a forecast of the election outcome.

Another survey now in the field of covering all but the last two days of the camaign will be in the hands of this newspaper before Election Day.

Backyard Death Traps Are Still Seen In Alabama

PLANT STRAWBERRIES FOR SPRING HARVEST

Auurn, Ala. — Set strawberry plants during the next few weeks for an early fruit crop next spring.

Horticulturist John Bagby of the API Extension Service suggests that the plants be put out before the end of November. Not near as dilicate as they appear, Bagby reports, strawberries will stand winter weather and make some root growth before warm days come.

Lay off rows three and one-half feet apart and space plants 18 in the drill. Apply two quarts of fertilizer on each 100 feet of row.

Klonmore and Blakemore are the best varieties for South and Central Alabama, the specialist says. And Blakemore and Tennessee Beauty do best in the Northern part of the state. Sewanee may be planted for home use anywhere in Alabama, Bagby concludes.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

R. L. (Dick) SCOTT

Many of the state's sport fishermen are very much opposed to the conservation Department's change in regulations, legalizing commercial fishing for rough fish in public streams. Some of the sportsmen say that the commercial fishermen will take, and are taking, any species that becomes ensnared in their gill and trammel nets. Some say that the rough fish, especially the catfish, have a definite purpose in the streams and that it is necessary to have them around to provide a healthy balance where so many large shad are present. You can get many theories pro and con concerning legalized comercial fishing in any sporting goods store, where fishermen exchange tales in Central Alabama.

Your individual stand on the question is entirely your business, and again, thank goodness that we live in a country where a man can choose his own way of thinking without committing a crime. However, there are two sides or two trains of thought on this subject and most sportsmen are willing to lend an ear to the other side of the argument if it is presented in a conscientious and sincere manner.

Those that believe in the merits of legalized comercial fishing for rough fish will tell you that nothing but good future game fishing can be the results. First, the State Conservation Department is staffed with competent men that have made a career out of the study of fish, and having worked with some of the outstanding fish biologist of the country, and being employed as fish conservationist, you can bet on their good judgement. Second, the clencher is to watch some of the commercial fishermen run their nets. There are five of these fishermen wintering at Trousdale's fishing Camp, near Holtville, on Lake Jordan. They are using tramel and gill nets, and catching large rough fish is strictly their business. You should see the fish they are catching. Buffalo, Carp, Sturgeon, Gar, Turtles, Blue and Yellow Catfish are being caught by the tons. One six-pound Bass was caught during a seven-day operation and that was handled expertly and promptly returned to the lake for the lucky hooks of some sportsman. You may consider this, sure enough commercial fishermen have too much invested in expensive gear to get on the wrong side of the law. Also, what advantage would there be to entertain a small haphazard market for a few game fish while there is such a lucrative market for easy to catch rough fish?

Well, so much for that, let's talk about what game fish are being caught and entered in the Alabama Power Company fishing contest.

Lake Martin—

E. V. Estes Store, near Eclectic, on Highway No. 63, reports: W. O. Kent, Shawmut, Alabama, trolled near Adam's Boat Landing on Little Kowaliga Creek with an L. & S. Pan Master and boated a fair string of Largemouth Bass. The whopper catcher winner weighed in at 7 pounds and 1 ounce. Robert Crowder, Shawmut, was Mr. Kent's companion and together the total catch was 11 largemouth and 2 white bass.

J. A. Powell, Eclectic, the August prize winner, tried trolling but had little or no luck, then switched to casting top water plugs and on his first 9 casts, boated the creel limit of ten Largemouth Bass. How about that?

Fred Wilder, Southside Standard Station, Dadeville, reports: T. R. Lane, Sylacauga, fly fished a Mel's Green Frog Popper on Sandy Creek and his best was a 6 pound 14 ounce Largemouth Bass.

W. L. Pemberton, Lake Hill Inn, six miles south of Alexander City, at the river Bridge, reports: L. J. Hutchins, Fairfax, used a Black Dive Bomber on Elkahatchee Creek and reeled in an 8 pound 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

Lake Mitchell—

Traywick's Boat Landing, at the mouth of Yellowleaf Creek, near Clanton, reports: John L. Wilson, Birmingham, picked up four Largemouth Bass, with a Red Head River Runt as bait, weighing from 3 and one-half to 5 pounds 5 ounces.

Payton's Store, Higgins Ferry Road, near Clanton, reports: Robert W. Lowery, Birmingham, fished from the pier at his sumemr cottage with a spinning rig and landed a 5 pound 1 ounce Largemouth Bass.

Lake Jordan—

Trousdale's Fishing Camp, near Holtville, reports: J. C. Martin, Montgomery, trolled a no. 2 spinner and the best catch of the day was a 1 pound 12 ounce Crappie. Louie Hart, Montgomery, had little trouble with the schooling Stripes. He boated the creel limit of 15 in short order.

"7. To levy and collect annually, in addition to all other taxes now authorized or permitted, a special tax or taxes of not exceeding two per cent on the value of all taxable property therein as determined for state taxation, in the same manner as other county or municipal taxes are levied and collected. "The recital in any bonds, warrants, notes or other obligations or evidences of indebtedness that they were issued pursuant to this amendment or that they were issued to provide funds to be used in furtherance of any power or authority herein authorized or that any special tax may be upon and has been pledged to the payment thereof shall be conclusive; no purchaser or holder thereof need inquire further; and the levy and collection of such tax shall continue until the principal of and interest on such obligations or evidence of indebtedness shall have been paid in full. The bonds, warrants, notes or other obligations or evidences of indebtedness issued hereunder shall not be considered an indebtedness of the municipalities of Haleyville and Double Springs nor the purpose or determining or borrowing capacity of the county under Section 225 of the Constitution; and the taxes herein authorized shall be in addition to those provided for or permitted in Section 216 of the Constitution and all amendments thereto.

"This amendment shall be self-executing; but the Legislature may provide such laws and power by general, special or local act to accept laws supplemental to this amendment or in furtherance of the purposes and objectives hereinabove set forth.

"10. The municipalities of Haleyville and Double Springs shall not make any engagement or commitment or undertake any project under the provisions hereof unless and until the proposition has been approved by a majority of the qualified electors of the respective municipality. The governing body of each of the two municipalities may provide for holding such elections, but in no case shall an election be held until notice of the election and of the proposition to be voted on has been published for at least three successive weeks.

LOW-COST CATTLE FEED SUGGESTED BY EXPERTS

Many Alabama cattlemen may have to feed their brood cows until grass comes out next spring. But it needn't be an expensive ration, says W. H. Gregory, API Extension livestockman, and Dr. W. B. Anthony, animal nutritionist at the API Experiment Station.

These experts have sent county agents a list of feed that they believe to be cheapest complete rations for drouth-stricken herds. They recommend using cottonseed meal and molasses along with low-grade roughage, such as ground corn stover, cottonseed hulls, or ground corncobs.

Suggestions from the specialist include special rations for pregnant or suckling cows. Contact your local county agent for information on the feeding program, Gregory urges.

GET FIELDS LIMED NOW FOR HIGH CROP YIELDS

Auburn, Ala. — Most Alabama farmlands need lime, and this is the time to apply it where fall crops are to be seeded.

Extension Agronomist, J. C. Lowery lists two ways in which lime helps increase crop yields. It counteracts acidity, preventing fertilizer from being tied up and held in the soil, and supplies calcium for plant growth.

As lime is removed from the soil by growing crops and through leaching, it must be replaced to maintain high yields. The right amount to apply is best determined by a soil test. Guessing is risky business and sometimes costly, the farm leader explains.

In conclusion he says that lime is especially needed on land where legumes and pasture are to be planted.

Adventist Church

Sabbath School at 9:45 a. m. with preaching service at 11:00

When man was created there was something that came from the 'dust' and something which came "from God". This we find in Eccl. 12:7, "then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit return to God who gave it." The word "spirit" here is from the Heb. "ruach" and is translated "breath" in Gen. 2:7, "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the earth". There he is "formed" but with no breath nor consciousness. The verse continues, "and breathed into his nostrils the breath (ruach) of life, and man became a living soul.". Before he started breathing there was no consciousness. At death, what happens? We find the answer in Psa. 146:4, "His breath (ruach) goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish". This is the meaning of "spirit" in Eccl. 12:7, "then shall the spirit (breath) return to God who gave it". And then, "the dead know not anything" Eccl. 9:5. But the promise of Jesus is, "and I will raise him up at the last day", Jno. 6:54.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Never before have we seen dirtier or filthier politics resorted to than were used by some during the recent political campaign.

The Democrats in Chilton County should band together and cry to high Heaven for guidance and redouble their effort to see that no such condition ever exists again.

The slime that oozed from the pen and the typewriter of some so-called God fearing citizens could hardly be believed unless you were an eye witness to the dirty tactics.

Even some of our "staunch" democrats are guilty of trying to sabotage their party after having "fed at the trough" for more than a decade. How a man could receive support from his party for so long a time, and then turn his back upon that party, and say he owed it nothing, is more than we can understand.

The Democrats won the election. They won it fair and square using no tricks or without mud slinging. This in spite of some of the filthiest propaganda it has ever been our misfortune to see. But we have always known that you cannot improve a bum by getting into the gutter with him—you must try and raise him to your level. This cannot be done with some of the opponents we have under present circumstances we are afraid.

For the past 17 years we have made Chilton County our home and we have tried always for honest and clean politics. For this we will continue to fight. But we refuse to stoop to dirty or unclean methods to help elect any man to public office.

James Wilson Named Goodyear Manager Here

Mr. James, D. Wilson was named store manager of the local Goodyear Service Store last Monday.

Up until this time Mr. Wilson, a resident of Chilton County for the past three years, had served in the capacity of Office Manager at Goodyear here.

A native of West Virginia, Mr. Wilson married Miss Jo Ann Baker, a Clantonian, and they live on Clanton Route One. They have one son, James David.

Mr. Durward Minor, former Store Manager here, has been transferred to the Goodyear Service Store in Pensacola, Florida. He invites all his friends to drop by to see him when in Pensacola.

Mr. Wilson, better known as Jim, extends a cordial invitation to everyone to do their shopping with him at the Goodyear Service Store on Seventh Street in Clanton.

Revival Services To Begin At The Adventist Church

Mitchell R. Garrett

Revival meetings continuing for two weeks are scheduled to begin in the new Adventist Church in Glencoe Sunday evening 7:15, Nov. 7th. The church board feels fortunate in having secured Evangelist Mitchell R. Garrett of Orlando, Fla., to do the preaching. Le Roy Leiske of Meridian, Miss., will lead out in the congregational song service each evening.

Evangelist Garrett will be remembered as the preacher who conducted a meeting in a large tent near the Winningham Hotel a few years ago. This was reported to be the largest attended religious campaign ever held in Chilton County. The evangelist will be glad to meet his old friends as well as new ones at the church at the opening meeting Sunday evening.

The church has recently installed a gas heating system and 100 extra chairs are being taken to the church this week. All the local ministers are invited to attend the services and to assist in the meetings.

In the two hardest fought campaigns Harold Smith won over his opponent Cormen Mims by 3141 to 2530; R. Odell Payton won the race for sheriff by 3207 to 2752.

Ex-Governor James E. (Big Jim) Folsom carried the county by a wide margin as did all other democrats running for state office.

In the referendum for the new courthouse the issue was defeated by 1166 votes even though during the last few days of the campaign many of the businessmen and civic leaders made a concentrated effort to get the new structure.

PEDESTRIANS SHOULD BE COURTEOUS, TOO

A lot of editorials have been written on the subject of careful driving, but few are written on careful walking.

And with today's motor traffic as heavy as it is careful walking is a must.

Pedestrians should remember that they should show the motorist the same courtesy that they expect of the motorist, that they should obey traffic laws just the same as if they were driving a motor vehicle.

And you can go out on Main Street at almost any time of the day and see a violation of traffic laws by pedestrians.

They fail to obey stop lights, they jaywalk. These are the most noticeable violations.

Then there are others that, while possibly not covered by law, are covered by rules of safety. These include getting out of a motor vehicle on the street side, especially without watching the traffic while walking across the street.

Remember Mr. Pedestrian, you, too, can save a life by observance of traffic laws and safety rules. And when you do—that life is yours.—Selected.

RISKY SEGREGATION QUESTION

While powerful totalitarian nations threaten Western civilization involving the security of the United States, it is a bad time for friction and disunity to spring up in this country. But a well-financed outside organization seems determined to force upon the school systems of the Southern States a condition that a majority of the people of the South, both white and black, do not want.

Anyone who thinks school desegregation can be forced upon the South without repercussion must be a professional optimist. We might as well face the facts about the desegregation question.

Unlike most of the other states of the nation, the white population of the South is composed almost entirely of descendants of the early settlers of the nation. With very few exceptions they have English, Irish and Scotch names. They are proud of their race and proud of their ancestors.

The real cause of race segregation in the South is the natural instinct of a vast majority of the Southern white people to preserve their race—self preservation. We have man-made laws against natural law. There is a vast difference between the two races here, in color, hair, noses and other physical features, and natural law calls for every distinct group to retain its kind.

The white people of the South fear mongrelization of the population of the Southern States and the Negroes have no reason to want their race mongrelized.

If the schools are desegregated it would be the first step toward mongrelization. The student bodies of schools have their fraternities and their class plays. Would they be exclusive white or colored affairs or mixed ones in case of integration?

Alabama has numerous school buildings that are not well equipped, white schools as well as Negro schools, but progress is gradually being made in giving the state a better school system.

The Negro school in Jasper is housed in a new and up-to-date building, has a capable principal and well-trained teachers. The school has its own football team and its own brass band, and there has been no hint of dissatisfaction over segregation in the school. In fact, if it were left to a vote of the colored people of the South, they would probably vote in favor of keeping the present segregation law. Most of the outcry against segregation comes from an organization outside of the Southern States.—Jasper Mountain Eagle.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Fella here at the office was checking copy the other day and asked me if there was any such place as San Antonio, Florida. I told him I didn't believe so that I had never heard of such a place. (Texans will hear this and weep). He said just as serious as anything, "I imagine it's supposed to be San Antonio, California."

Some folks should start themselves a club. They could call it the WWLAN Club. (We Worry a Lot About Nothing.)

See our good friend Michael Haywood is in town this week on a 14 day pass. Mike has been in San Diego, California for the past few months in boot camp. He is now to go to San Francisco, Calif., where he will be in school for some few weeks before reassignment. Mike says he never thought he'd get what he wanted when he entered the service this year, but it seems they were better to him than he expected. We wish him well, now and later, in his navy life.

We were blessed, well you might say blessed, his old man, called us at 2:30 in the morning to shout the glad tidings. Anyhow, with a 7 lb. something or other nephew this past week. He was born to Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Edwin Culp of Cleveland, Tennessee and he was named Michael Erwin. We're proud of him, but we're not proud of the fact that he woke us out of a sound slumber telling us he was here. We saw daddy for a few minutes Sunday, (morning again, by the way) and if he was a sample of how mother and "new addition" are doing then maybe we'd better go see about them. No, seriously, he looked about the same . . . just about!

A man using dirty politics is like a man cleaning out a dirty well; they're both slinging mud.

We coulda got killed! Those signals down at the crossing at the railroad are just a wee mite late to safely warn a fellow that a locomotive is approaching. We crossed the thing the other night and had gotten to the other side before the signals ever got into action, by that time the train wasn't more than a half-block from the crossing . . and it wasn't slowing down. Guess they changed the time on the signals to see what kinda power these new cars have got, but, seriously, if they're trying to scare us across in a hurry we wish they'd use some other method, that one's kinda risky. We don't mind them not even slowing down for Clanton, but they can sure as heck give us fair warning before they get here so we can run for cover.

See the Clanton Drive-In is doing some redecorating or whatever you might call it. Seems they're going to widen the screen by some few feet. We don't know whether that's to help those in the back row who are near-sighted or those in the front row who are far-sighted, but we do know it's one whale of a project and we're anxious to see what the thing is gonna look like when completed.

What it is really, is a screen so wide that even if you're necking you won't have to turn around to see the screen; just look over her shoulder.

We have heard arguments both pro and con as to whether Christmas is just around the corner or not. The weather tends to turn us toward the argument that it is; our pocket book, however, shows every indication that it isn't by a long shot, time for the holiday spirit, and what with some of the bills we're behind on . . . well, Christmas will rightly come to us about the middle of next spring, that is if it were going by our pocket book, which it ain't.

IT'S MY OPINION

Worrying takes a lot of practice. It doesn't matter what class of worrier you might me, whether the graduated "it probably won't ever happen anyway" worrier or just a plain "new at the game" worrier. Not too many folks are in the latter class, because most of us worry about something, whether it be the-mother-in-law or having a toothe pulled.

Seems like most people are born worriers, anyway, some are just a little more advanced than others. Some of us just worry about everything in general while others tend to pick out particular things to brood over. There is no question about it, worrying affects our personality greatly. It stands to reason that if you occupy your mind with worry you can't concentrate on other things that are probably by far, more important.

Worry is a great robber of time and health. It wastes hours upon hours of our time thinking about what we should have done and didn't or what we're going to have to do later. It affects our health in that it gives no time for complete relaxation thus making us tired and irrtable.

You might even term worry in the class with the diseases which are so common to mankind. Though it doesn't always show up physically it tends to deterioate us mentally in such a way and to such an extent that it is as dangerous to our health and happiness as a dreaded disease.

Sometimes we practice being worriers when we aren't even conscious of it. We may even have the intentions of overcoming it and still be feeding it by worrying about little tihngs that are unimportant.

If we lived from day to day and never looked to tomorrow, in the worrying respect anyway, we would never have cause or reason to worry. It is something we all have and all could do better without.

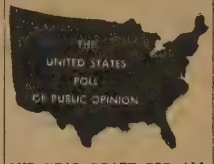
When you have an unsurmountable task or problem think of all the things that could happen to you and finally the very worst that could happen. Then start thinking back about those things and the improbable ones and your problem will partly dissolve or at least not be so gigantic as in the beginning. —THE PHILOSOPHER.

SET PECAN TREES OUT SOON AFTER DIGGING

Pecan trees can be planted any time during the winter, but do best when set out soon after they are dug.

API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby points out that nurserymen dig young trees in November when they become dormant. Although the trees are heeled in, says Bagby, they may dry out considerably by the time you receive them in shipment, especially if you order late.

Get your young trees in the ground around the middle of December, advises the specialist. He suggests Stuart, Desirable, Elliott, and Farley as the best pecan varieties for Alabama.



ONE YEAR DRAFT FOR ALL YOUNG MEN FAVORED IN NATIONWIDE SURVEY

Princeton, New Jersey—Drafting all young men for one years' service in the Armed Forces is approved by seven out of every ten voters questioned in a recent nation-wide survey.

To find out how the adult men and women of the nation feel about a measure that would affect all families with young men 18 years of age, United States Poll staff reporters asked a nationwide cross-section the following question:

"Would you favor or oppose a young man in this country, when law requiring every able-bodied he reaches the age of 18, to spend one year in military training and then join the reserves?"

The results:

Favor	74 per cent
Oppose	21 per cetn
No opinion	9 per cent

Analysis of the various population groups on the question of drafting all young men for a one year period brings to light some interesting findings.

First of all, sentiment for having every young man in the country give one year's service cuts clear across political party lines. The vote by political parties:

	Repub	Dem.	Ind.
Favor	67%	71%	73%
Oppose	25	20	17
No Opinion	8	9	10

The survey also finds virtually uniform sentiment among all educational levels.

The vote by amount of education:

	Col.	HS	G-School
Favor	72%	70%	69%
Oppose	21	22	21
No opinion	7	8	10

Worthy of particular mention, too, is that more than three out of every five in every population segment in the nation examined are of the opinion that every young man who reaches the age of 18 should spend one year in the Armed Forces and then go into the reserves.

These groups include people in all age and educational levels, city sizes, sections of the country, occupations, political parties, and labor union members.

DALE CARNEGIE
AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

AFTER leaving college, P. W. Treleaven, 8213 Milan Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, made a vow that he would become rich and he set out to do just that.

He left New Orleans because it was a slow uninteresting place and went to New York where he thought fortunes could be made in a hurry.

His first speculations were modest; he had beginner's luck; he won. Plunging more heavily at every turn he won and won and won.

CARNEGIE

His winnings afforded him all the pleasures he could desire. Travel, night clubs, high priced cars, an apartment in New York, home on Long Island, a boat on the Hudson River. The more he got the more he wanted — he was living in a mental whirl.

October 1929 came and with it the collapse of the stock market and the speculator's dream. What followed was a nightmare for Peter Treleaven. A complete reversal of plenty, hounding of creditors, despair, remorse, more or less of a black void, coupled with great effort to find an answer.

By and by the answer came. A voice said, "Peter become useful, try and help others in this world of trials and tribulations; stop worrying and forget the easy road to riches."

Surprisingly enough he began to live and he enjoyed life far more than he ever had. Above all he found his fortune in his wife, who, he declares, is worth far more to him than all the gold in the world. Today he considers himself a very rich man.

Whose Farm Is This?

Do you know who owns this farm? We're sure you've seen it many times. It's somewhere in Chilton County. Come in to the Chilton County News office before noon Saturday and tell us who owns it. If your answer is correct you'll win two free passes to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre and you will be eligible to win the grand prize drawing next Monday.

If the owner of the above "Mystery Farm" will come in to the News office as soon as possible he will receive a beautiful framed enlargement of this aerial photograph of his farm absolutely free.

See how simple it is?

Mrs. J. I. Bone, of Verbena Rt. 1, guessed who owned last week "Mystery Farm" and won everything—the show passes, the grand prize, and a year's subscription to Chilton County News.

Fact is, Mrs Bone was the only contestant entering last week

But, just for coming in and giving us that correct name of last week's "Mystery Farm" Mrs. Bone was the recipient of a total of $12.50 worth of awards. She didn't have to buy or sell anything At she had to do was guess

You can be the winner of this week's puzzle and be eligible for this week's grand prize by merely coming to the News office before noon next Saturday and telling us who owns the above pictured "Mystery Farm." It's that simple

If you own this week's "Mystery Farm come by the News office as soon as possible We have for you a free framed enlargement of this aerial view of your farm

Don't miss the fun and prizes. If you don't guess right it won't cost you anything, but if you do guess right you are automatically a winner.

WHO OWNS THIS WEEK'S "MYSTERY FARM"?

News Is Better When It Is About You. Right?

To those of you who have had their farms identified in the "Farm of the Week" series, the "News" would like to ask a favor

We are sure the other folks around the county, as well as ourselves would be interested to know anything unusual that might happen to you or your farm.

What we're getting around to is this: if anything interesting happens to your farm we have the picture of your farm filed away here at the office for just such purpose. Now, as we have no way of checking on who grows the biggest watermelon, or the best cotton crop, or the most peaches, we have to depend on you to give us the information so we can pass it on to the folks.

As the list of "farms" grows we want each one to remember that we want the facts if anything happens to them or their farm It is good news and interesting news when something happens close around home. That's what we're after. It doesn't matter if it's the hog with the most pigs, we're interested about the farm with the largest pig family on it and we're sure there are others that feel the same about it.

Remember, it doesn't matter what it is, if you're proud of it, it surely must be interesting, so why not let the rest of us in on it. It'll be good reading and people will get to know you and your farm better.

This does, by no means, disclude those folks who's farm has not been pictured yet or will not be pictured. It's just that a picture draws more attention and will be seen by more. If we don't have the picture of your farm, send in anything you wish, we'll see that the folks see and hear about it.

Why the Census of Agriculture Is Important To The Farmers

The Census of Agriculture is taken at 5-year intervals to provide reliable and up-to-date statistical information about the more than 5 million farms on which a Nation of more than 163 million people depend for food and raw materials for the manufacture of goods. In large part, the efficiency of American agriculture depends on this information.

The Census of Agriculture data provide the foundation for the entire structure of the Nation's agricultural statistics.

The Federal government, Congress and the executive agencies use the information to develop and administer farm programs.

Crop and livestock reporting services and other statistical activities of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which provide estimates on farm industry trends that guide farmers, the government and others in their decisions, depend on benchmark data provided by the census.

State and local agencies, farm organizations and others serving the farmer use the census data in their analysis of the farm situation in their areas.

Manufacturers and marketers use the statistics to measure resources for agricultural raw materials and, conversely, to determine the farmers' needs for machinery, supplies and services which farmers buy for efficient farm operations.

Newspaper promotion departments, advertising agencies and advertisers of products and services used by farmers and farm families study agricultural statistics for counties and other areas in laying out camaigns designed to reach potential customers.

Bankers and other financial services employ agricultural census statistics in evaluating conditions and factors which govern their decisions in farm credit for the areas they serve.

Farmers themselves apply census data to their problems, although these data usually come to them indirectly through many different channels of information. Statistics published in farm periodicals, in reports of marketing services, in radio farm information programs, and in other media that influence the farmers in making important decisions are taken either direct from census reports or are based on them.

The information supplied by each farmer is treated as confidential by the Census Bureau and assurance is given that the information will be published only in statistical totals for each county so that operations of an individual farm are not revealed. The Census law requires the farmers to supply the information officially requested by the Census Bureau but also provides that this information cannot be used for taxation, regulation or investigation. The Census enumerators, f ntaking their oaths of office are sworn not to reveal the information obtained from the farmers and the law provides severe penalties including fines and imprisonment if the confidential restrictions are violated.

Veterans Day Observed In Alabama Nov. 11

Montgomery, Ala.—Nov. 11 has been proclaimed Veterans Day in Alabama by Gov. Gordon Persons, who also has appointed all the state's mayors and heads of the various veterans' organizations in Alabama to membership on a Veterans Day Committee.

This year Nov. 11 is Veterans Day instead of Armistice Day. The legal holiday, which was first set up to mark the end of World War I, was changed to Veterans Day by Congress this year to honor the nation's veterans of all wars.

In a telegram to the leaders of the veterans' organizations, Persons said:

"As you probably know the legal holiday heretofore known as 'Armistice Day' has been changed to 'Veterans Day' in order that our nation can pay tribute to all our veterans as well as rededicate ourselves to the cause of peace."

Purpose of the Veterans Day Committee "will be to assist in the formulation and coordination of plans for proper observance of Veterans Day in every city in Alabama," the governor said.

He asked for joint action between the mayors and veterans' group officials to make the occasion a success in every Alabama municipality.

In proclaiming Veterans Day, Persons declared: "By thus commemorating the occasion and paying tribute to those who participated on land, in the air and on the sea they shall know they have the eternal thanks of a grateful people and that their efforts have not been in vain."

Declaring that it is fitting and proper that Alabama honor her veterans, Persons said that "only good would come out of a rededication of ourselves to world peace and understanding through proper homage paid to our veterans."

"These are still perilous times when the peace so earnestly desired by so many for so long is still not an accomplished fact and the forces of evil are still seeking to destroy everything that freedom-loving nations hold dear," he stated.

Meat Hogs As Cheap To Grow As Fat Ones

Auburn, Ala.—Many hog growers still wonder it porkers having a high percentage of lean cuts can be produced as cheaply as fat animals.

G. B. Phillips, API Extension specialist in animal industry, says there is little difference in cost of growing the two types so far as gain is concerned. Fat or lean, same age hogs generally eat about the same amount per pound of gain.

The key to producing lean hogs is selecting meat type gilts and boars with market-animal characteristics, the expert says.

The farm leader reports that figures from a midwestern experiment station test show that hogs with less than 37 per cent lean cuts ate a little more per 100 pounds gain than hogs with 41 per cent lean cuts. All animals tested weighed 227 to 229 pounds at five months of age. As the amount of lean meat increases, fat decreases. But rate of gain and the amount of feed the hog uses stay about the same.

Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As

The BELLE BURKHALTER Farm

Last week's farm was brought to us as Mrs. Belle Burkhalter's place on Rt. 1, Verbena, Alabama.

The Burkhalters' have been on the farm of 270 acres for 40 years, six generations, which, in our book. The farm has been in the family for is a long time.

Mrs. Burkhalter says that the place was put to the plow more than 100 years ago, that's when the redskins weren't quite all gone.

It seems that the Burkhalters' are very noted for their prize watermelons. They have been growing fine watermelons for the past 25 years and are still growing some whoppers. The farm recently won a cash prize for the biggest watermelon grown. They sell their melons at the curb markets in Montgomery.

These progressive farmers are members of the Farm Bureau, Home Demonstration club and they attend the Pleasant Valley Baptist church as regularly as possible

Her farm is also stocked with prize poultry. She has some 15 turkeys and approximately 50 chickens.

We are sure the past "Farm of the Week" families will agree that this is a very progressive and versatile farm and the farmer is to make Chilton County justly proud of its past good reputation and future better reputation.

DAIRY CALVES DO BEST IN THEIR NATIVE HERDS

Alabama dairy cows outlast herd replacements brought in from other states, says API Extension Dairyman John Parrish. He quotes a report from Dean R. S. Suggs of the API School of Veterinary Medicine, who said that Alabama-raised replacements stay in the herd 6.9 years whereas animals brought in last less than three years.

Good calves, and many of them face necessary to maintain a milking herd, says Parrish. He urges Alabama dairymen to save their good heifer calves and raise them in portable pens for best results. Continued breeding to proven bulls to get replacement calves is a sure way of raising milk production, the dairy specialist concludes.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

In the last half of the Nineteenth Century more and more Alabamians began pressing for a primary election to decide a party's nominees as opposed to the convention that was being used.

Because, after Reconstruction Days, Democratic candidates for top state offices always won in the general election in Alabama and because the candidates were picked at a convention, the result was that a few persons actually decided who would hold important state offices.

So great because the demand for a party primary that Alabama Democratic leaders were forced to give in and the first one was held in 1902.

Alabama's first governor to be chosen by the party primary method was William D. Jelks.

Alabama law provides for political parties to choose their nominees by either convention or primary and sets up the procedure to be followed. The party itself determines whether the primary or convention method shall be used.

While William D. Jelks was governor of Alabama the fight on railroad rates became a major public issue.

Braxton Bragg Comer, who later was to become governor, took the lead in the fight on high railroad rates and was elected to the State Railroad Commission where he served while William D. Jelks was governor.

Alabama's Legislature, shortly after the turn of the century, had, with the approval of Governor Jelks, given the Railroad Commission power to fix rail rates in the state.

As a member of the Railroad Commission, B. B. Comer found that he could do little in his fight on railroad rates without the cooperation, which he did not have, of the other members of the group.

B. B. Comer was a Democratic candidate for governor in 1906 to succeed William D. Jelks who could not succeed himself under the provisions of the new constitution that had been adopted in 1901.

Dr. Russell Cunningham vigorously opposed B. B. Comer for governor in 1906 but the latter won a clear victory. He had made regulation of the railroads the principal issue in his campaign.

What's new with Chevrolet?

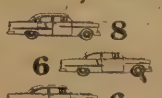
And look what you see from the driver's seat
Chevrolet's new Sweep-Sight Windshield curves around to vertical corner pillars, giving you a wide, full view. And you can see all four fenders from the driver's seat!

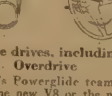
Wonderful new Glide-Ride Front Suspension
New spherical joints flex freely to cushion all road shocks. New exclusive Anti-Dive Braking Control, assures "heads up" stops.



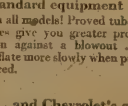
New Outrigger Rear Springs
Rear springs are longer—and they're attached at the outside of the frame. This means they're spaced wider apart, outrigger-fashion, to give you greater stability in cornering. And Chevrolet's new Hotchkiss drive cushions drive-line shocks through the rear springs!

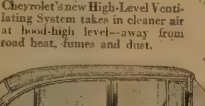
Even Air Conditioning, if you wish
Air is heated or cooled by a single unit that fits compactly into the front of the car. Requires no trunk space! (V8 models only.) And that's only one of the wonderful extra-cost options you can get!

Great new V8—two new 6's
New "Turbo-Fire V8" delivers 162 h.p. with an ultra-high compression ratio of 8 to 1. You can choose from two new 6's, too—the new "Blue-Flame 136" with Powerglide (optional at extra cost) and the new "Blue-Flame 123."



Easier steering, stopping, clutching
The new Chevrolet steers with ball-bearing ease, thanks to new friction-cutting Ball-Race Steering. New Swing-Type Pedals pivot at the top.



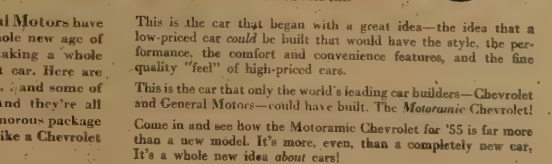


Three drives, including Overdrive
There's Powerglide teamed with the new V8 or the new "Blue-Flame 136." New Overdrive teamed with the new V8 or the new "Blue-Flame 123." (Powerglide and Overdrive are extra-cost options.) New standard transmission, too!

Tubeless tires as standard equipment
On all models! Proved tubeless tires give you greater protection against a blowout . . . deflate more slowly when punctured.

A ventilating system that really works
Chevrolet's new High-Level Ventilating System takes in cleaner air at hood-high level—away from road heat, fumes and dust.

. . . and Chevrolet's got that long, low "let's go" look
It's a show car from the word go! Longer looking—and lots lower. There's plenty of room inside, too—plus more room for hats, hips and shoulders!



The Bel Air 4-Door Sedan

Chevrolet and General Motors have started something—a whole new age of low-cost motoring—by taking a whole new look at the low-cost car. Here are new ideas, young ideas . . . and some of tomorrow's ideas, too! And they're all rolled up in the most glamorous package that ever wore anything like a Chevrolet price tag!

This is the car that began with a great idea—the idea that a low-priced car could be built that would have the style, the performance, the comfort and convenience features, and the fine quality "feel" of high-priced cars.

This is the car that only the world's leading car builders—Chevrolet and General Motors—could have built. The Motoramic Chevrolet!

Come in and see how the Motoramic Chevrolet for '55 is far more than a new model. It's more, even, than a completely new car. It's a whole new idea about cars!

'Come in and meet the motoramic Chevrolet
—more than a new car—A NEW CONCEPT OF LOW-COST MOTORING

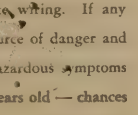
IF any part of your house wiring looks like this

...it needs to be MODERNIZED at once!

Pictured here are examples of dangerous and inadequate wiring. If any part of your house wiring looks like this, it is a source of danger and should be modernized at once. But even if such hazardous symptoms are not evident — and your home is more than 10 years old — chances are that the wiring is inadequate for the appliances you now have or plan to get. If you must use "strangler" plugs to connect them, that may be an indication your wiring should be rearranged and more outlets supplied.



Your electrical contractor, or our office, will gladly explain a convenient plan whereby you can modernize your home wiring and pay for it in 24 monthly payments with your light bill. Inquire about it today.

An Open Letter To The Farmers And General Public Of Chilton

From: R. O. Williams, District Supervisor North Central Soil Conservation District.

This letter is an appeal to every farmer and citizen of Chilton County to think seriously about the conservation of their soil and water. Each individual has a different problem in solving his conservation needs; and should start by taking an inventory of the soil and water resources of his farm. After the inventory comes the selecting of the crops to fit the farm needs and desires.

Now in order for each farmer to get this information, he should contact the District Supervisor or the Soil Conservation Service office, because it is thru a memorandum of understanding from the Secretary of Agriculture that the Soil Conservation Service workers are assigned to the District

As you may know, I am the District Supervisor for Chilton County, and I am interested in every farmer in the county. I would like to see him get all the help the District can offer.

Governor Gordon Persons has issued a proclamation declaring the week of October 31st-November 6th as Soil Conservation Week. Let me urge every farmer to find out what he can about his District and how it is set up to help him do a better job of conservation farming.

The District asks the aid of all agricultural agencies, organizations or groups in helping to carry out the District program of Soil and Water Conservation farming.

The Soil Conservation personnel devotes its full time to aiding the District. Your workers in Chilton County are Olin G. Fields, T. T Bradford, and Ivan W. Smith.

The North Central Soil Conservation District was organized in 1937 and is composed of Chilton, Shelby, Bibb, Jefferson, Blount and Cullman counties. There are 829 District Superators in Chilton County and 5,506 in the North Central District, of which we are a part.

Those in authority tell us that there are 7000 new mouths [illegible] every day. At the same rate of increase, by 1975 there will be 200,000,000 mouths to feed where we now have 150,000,000. Now, ask yourself this question, will my farm feed my family and the increase twenty or twenty-five years from now?

FARMERS COOPERATION WITH CONSERVATION DEPT. CHANGING LANDSCAPE OF ALABAMA

The Alabama Soil Conservation Districts Act Became effective Mar. 18, 1939. This week throughout Alabama, you are giving recognition to Alabama's twelve districts for their accomplishments. This public recognition is part payment to farmer district supervisors who serve, without pay, in administering district affairs. It is also recognition of good work done by farmers in planning and applying sound conservation practices to their land in cooperation with their soil conservation district.

Alabama's good farmers have cared for their land the best they knew with resources available to them. The Districts have made available to all Alabama farmers the assistance of Soil Conservation Service technicians to help them plan and apply adapted soil-saving and improving practices.

Before districts were organized, farmers did not have available on-site technical assistance needed to do the job of planning and applying practices needed to conserve soil and water on their farms. The districts brought to Alabama farmers new methods and plants useful in conserving their soil and water resources.

If you talk to a farmer who has applied a district plan, he will tell you why the districts are so deserving of the recognition they are getting during this week. If you will visit one of these farms, you will be even more convinced.

Soil Conservation Districts have made and continue to make a lasting contribution to Alabama agriculture.

U. S. Census Bureau Asks Support Of All Farmers

America's more than 5 million farmers are being asked to cooperate iwth the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, in the 1954 Census of Agriculture which is now under way. This census is the 16th in a series of nationwide farm canvasses since the first farm census in 1840, over 100 years ago.

November 8th, the starting date for the census, has been set for the close of the normal crop harvesting season in this area. Questionaries to be used in different areas hav been designed to cover the crops commonly produced in these areas, while a number of questions common to all farms will be included in each variation of the questionnaire. In seven Southern States where the sharecropper system is followed, the questionnaires will be delivered in person by the enumerators to assure the consolidation of reports for multiple-unit farms.

The Census questionnaire is designed to collect information about the number and size of farms, tenure, acreage of land in various uses, crops harvested, livestock inventory and production, expenditures for selected items (labor hire, machine hire, feed, fertilizers and lime, gasoline and other petroleum fuels and oil), inventory of selected facilities and equipment (televisions, food freezer, piped running water, tractor, harvesting machines, automobile, truck, etc.) irrigation, conservation practices, farm value, mortgage debt, and cash rent. Regional variations of the questionaire will be used so that inquiries about crops, for instance, will be limited in each area to the crops comon in that area. On an average, each farmer will be asked about 100 questions, many of which can be answered by checking "yes" or "no."

Carol Ann Scott Host At Neighborhood Party

Carol Ann Scott's back yard was the scene of a gay Halloween party on Saturday night when the neighborhood children gathered for a weiner roast.

Colorful Halloween hats were given to each boy and girl as they gathered around the big camp fire. Before roasting the weiners the group had lots of fun singing, playing games and telling scary ghost tales. Toasting marshmallows finished the evening's entertainment.

Fifteen boys and girls from the neighborhood were present for this delightful occasion.

G. I.'s Get Protection In Home Building

Immediately after World War II hundreds of thousands of veterans throughout the country secured GI loans and built what they thought were homes constructed of the very best materials and according to the very finest specifications. A short while later, thousands of them were very much disappointed in the purchases they had made. In many cases inferior materials were used in construction and poor workmanship also began to take its toll on poorly constructed homes. Naturally, these former GIs who were making substantial monthly payments out of their incomes had to shell out more dollars for repairs on their investments. In most cases, they found that they had no recourse against the builder and many of them lost their homes.

According to R. L. "Bob" Fullen, County Veterans Service, State Department of Veterans Affairs, the new National Housing Act, which went into effect October, 1, 1954, the Veterans Administration cannot guarantee a new home loan unless the veteran gets a warranty from the builder certifying that the home was built in substantial conformity with plans and specifications approved by the VA. Keep in mind that this law applies only to new Homes for which the VA guarantees the loan after October 1st. The warranty will remain in effect for twelve months after the veteran moves into his new home.

A sympathetic Alabama Legislature aided Gov. B. B. Comer with his program to regulate railroad rates in the state by adopting laws that helped bring about the regulation.

Sunday was state Missions day in all Baptist churches. State Missions is the united effort of Alabama Baptist to reach all people in all Alabama for Christ, and to teach and train them, enlist them in Christian service, and minister to their needs. We had a short program given by Archie McTaylor and Crayton Taylor, Victor Davis, and Bro. Atcheson. Our offering was $25.00 and this will go to help make up the $15,000 that is expected from the October special State Mission offering.

Our attendance was good Sunday and Sunday night. We had several visitors in the congregation and we gave them a special invitation to come worship with us at any time.

Last Wednesday night was family night and all the organizations were well represented. The W. M. S. planned to have their mission book, "Pilgrimage to Brazil" taught on Monday night, November 1st at 6:30 in our church. This book will be taught by Rev. L. D. Brookshire, the neighboring churches are especially invited.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

IMMUNIZATION

Active immunization can give a long-lasting protection against a number of contagious diseases, yet many parents choose to ignore this by refusing to permit their children to be vaccinated. This is hard to understand when one realizes that immunization has been largely responsible for preventing epidemic disease.

Smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, lockjaw and typhoid fever are the diseases now preventable by immunization. With advance in knowledge and research, undoubtedly many more will be added to the list.

In a general sense the body is in an immune state when it can resist the invasion and growth of a germ or virus. This occurs when specific substances or weapons against a particular disease are present in the body. If these substances, which are called immune bodies, are injected into the body, the result is passive immunity, which is a temporary state, calling for reinjections at various intervals.

However, active immunity is gotten when a person is injected with the germ of the disease in a modified and harmless form. After a series of carefully controlled injections, the person manufactures his own immune bodies which, in turn, create a resistance to fight the invading germ. The modified germ used for this purpose is called an antigen, and the resultant resistance is called an active immunity.

Parents would be wise to insist that their children be given protective injections. They should not wait until the child is ready to start school. Remember that protection against these diseases consists in a series of immunizations and reimmunizations starting at three months of age and continuing at least through high school.

If your baby is three months old, take him to your physician so that he can start these vital protective measures. If your child is older and did not receive this protection in infancy, have him immunized now.

November has been spoken of as "Gateway to Winter." The trees bare, the birds have flown to warmer climate. This season of year is not an end to growth, an interlude, in which after a son of rest and preparation, the th will again bring forth the ele- nts to feed mankind.

November brings election time. It oves every man and woman of to ponder well on these things, exercise the right of ballot as conscience dictates.

Let everyone re-dedicate them- lves daily to the great principles national strength and unity, with- which no nation can survive. e are told that "where your asure is there will your heart be lso" and may all hearts be in the b of defending a free way of life r all mankind. I Cor. 8:9, "Take ed lest by any means this liber- of yours becomes a stumbling ock."

November brings the realization all the bounties received and en- oyed; of the harvest just past that ll help to fill the needs of winter; the joys of home, companion- hip, health and happiness.

It was William Bradford who, fter a year in a new land at Ply- outh, Mass., after the harvest as gathered, ordered a feast for he colonists, Mossasoit and 90 per ent of his Indians were united. The colonists thanked God for the ood things of this world, thus kept he first Thanksgiving. This cele- ration gradually extended to other tates and was recommended by governors of other states.

Abraham Lincoln was the first president to proclaim the last Thursday as a national holiday. It is usually observed by religious ser- vices and reunions.

Let us be truly thankful for our many blessings and our prayer be, "God Bless America."

The American Legion Auxiliary—

With this nippy weather our thoughts naturally turn to our gift shop, which we are now preparing for the patients at Tuscaloosa Veterans hospital. This Christmas Gift Shop is not limited to members only but everyone is invited to contribute to these men and women, who gave that we might be free, a chance to send a gift home to a loved one. Gifts for this purpose should be in the hands of the Unit president, Mrs. Marietta Bice of Thorsby, Alabama on or about the middle of November in order to get them to the hospital in time for the patients to "shop" and mail their gifts home for Christmas.

Articles solicited for the Gift Shop are for men, women, boys and girls. They are shirts, sweaters, ties, socks, slips, billfolds, handkerchiefs, cosmetics, (not in glass) costume jewelry, pillow cases, sheets, tablecloths, aprons, hose and small mailable toys in packages. All gifts will be deeply appreciated by the unit and the men and women who are not able to even get to a store to see the Christmas decorations much less buy a gift. The minds of our hospitalized veterans are made much easier and more contented with life when they know their loved ones are not forgotten at Christmas. Won't you give a gift for someone of these veteran's to send home?

If you plan to attend the next unit meet at the Legion Hall in Thorsby on November 16 you may bring your gift then.

Remember the Auxiliary members are invited to attend the big fish fry on "Veterans Day" Nov. 11 at the Legion Hall at 7 p.m. Get all men who are eligible for membership in the Legion lined up, with their families, for this big event. All eligibles are invited. Your membership card for 1955 in the American Legion, Post 206 gives you a chance on the fifty dollar suit plus hat, shoes, shirt, tie and socks. But you must be a paid up member of this post to get in on this drawing.

Baskets of food were brought by each family until there was room for no more. After a prayer of grace and thanksgiving by Bro. Daniel the WMU President, Mrs. Grover Knight, presented to him and his family, from the church family, a set of 1847 Rogers silver as a token of our love and appreciation for them.

The dining room was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. One table was centered with a lovely arrangement of pumpkin, fruit, vegetables, etc. portraying a bountiful harvest.

After dinner, many went into the auditorium for about two hours of good singing.

Lutheran Church—

The services next Sunday will be conducted by Rev. J. Russell Boggs of Montgomery. You will enjoy hearing this Pastor, so plan to attend. The time is 3 p.m.

Those who failed to attend the services last Sunday, whether morning or afternoon, missed so much. At the 11 o'clock Methodist service, Rev. Montgomery of Deatsville, Ala. preached. The young man preached an inspiring sermon, and a choir of ten, with Mr. J. Hudson Williams as director did the singing. They sang a special number, with Mrs. Thos. G. Rogers as leading soprano. The same group sang for the Lutherans in the afternoon. A nice crowd attended both services, and it was indeed a day of good Christian Fellowship for the two congregations. Rev. Sox of Birmingham preached the Reformation sermon.

Life if you keep the commandments of God. Death if you do not keep the commandments. Jesus is the one who spoke these words, the Holy Spirit inspired and Moses wrote.

For had ye believed Moses ye would have believed me for he wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?

When you fail to believe Moses' writing, Jesus Christ will fix you to where you cannot believe his words.

(Listen to this: Jesus Christ speaking, the Holy Spirit inspiring Isiah writing). Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes, lest they see with their eyes and hear their ears, and understand their heart and comest and be ed.

This life or death means same thing today as it meant Jesus spoke, the Holy Spirit spired and Moses wrote; it ap to you today, as it has to all g rations.

Jesus Christ the same yester today, and forever.

Under The Study Lamp

By William Crowe

The Truth Above All Other Truths

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." John 8:32.

However, much we are hearing about liberty in these days, too many people are thinking of it as a kind of omnibus license to do as one pleases. Even in certain educational fields the notion prevails, and this Bible sentence is often quoted in support of the idea. So the impression gets around that religion is a thing of mere culture, that secular education is the path to liberty, and that from them on the mind is final authority.

There are truths, plenty of them. But beyond the mass of truths about this and that, there is one that should be labeled THE TRUTH. That is what was in the mind of the Lord when He uttered the sentence quoted here, and it is paramount.

Please note that Jesus emphasized the little word "the," which our English grammar lists as a definite article, referring to only one thing, or one idea. For example, we admit that the multiplication table is absolutely true, and cannot be revised; so with the slide rule, the law of gravitation, and so on. But, true as it is, the multiplication table has nothing whatever to do with the most important thing in life—the interest of the soul; nor does the secular curriculum of any college in the land, all of which means two things, namely: that a college course, though essential to human progress, and though based on perfectly sound truths, can offer nothing more than mental development; and secondly, that the only truth that sets the soul free is that which was in the mind of Simon Peter when he exclaimed, "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life."

Therefore we may ask, have we any license to act in accordance with our personal desire, exclusive of moral principle? There is nothing further from the truth than that. For, be it remembered that: there is no benefit within the range of human privilege more complete), hemmed in by restraint than what we think of as freedom. In no degree therefore can individual liberty displace one's responsibility to the law, or to a moral standard, or to ordinary decency, though some seem to think otherwise. So we are driven to the conclusion that nobody can be a good Christian, or a good citizen, or a good neighbor, who imagines that he can act according to his own will, regardless. If he does, he is on the way to the penitentiary, and the sooner he arrives the safer will organized society be.

The really free person is he who seeks the truth as it is in Jesus, and who willingly submits to the restraints of that truth. Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven, of whom Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world." "Therefore whosoever heareth these saying of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock." (Matthew 7:24). There is the topmost lesson in all education.

FARM BRIEFS

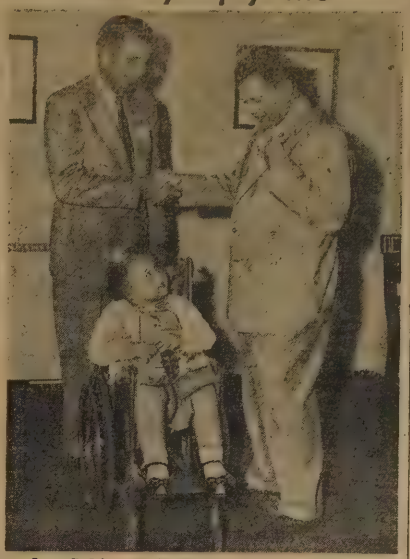
According to the Department of Agriculture, 80 percent of all the nation's commercial farms are family-size, and they produce 75 per cent of all farm products sold.

Rancidity in fat pork is usually caused by a combination of four things: light, heat, air, and time. Proper storage will prevent this off flavor.

Hog-killing time is just around the corner, and farmers should make plans to process their meat properly to prevent loss.

Back Dystrophy Drive



James P. Johnson (left), Birmingham letter carrier and president of Jefferson County Muscular Dystrophy Chapter, pledges local letter carriers' cooperation in 1954 Fire Fighters March for Muscular Dystrophy to Jack Bostick, vice-president, International Association of Fire Fighters (AFL). Looking on approvingly is campaign poster girl Bessie Bazan of Grand Rapids, Mich., four-year-old dystrophy victim. U. S. fire fighters will visit homes during Thanksgiving season to collect contributions for research into this mysterious disease from which more than 130,000 children and 75,000 adults are crippled and dying.

Johnson is a member of Birmingham Branch No. 530, National Association of Letter Carriers (AFL), which last year raised more than $3,500,000 to fight muscular dystrophy. Letter carriers in many cities have voted to repeat their 1953 turnout in support of this year's "march" by fire fighters.

A Pint Of Blood Insures You And Your Family

Chilton County Chapter, American Red Cross, will be visited again by the Birmingham Bloodmobile Unit, November 16th. The local blood center will be First Baptist Church from 12 noon until 6:00 p.m.

A donation of one pint of blood to the Red Cross Blood Center every 8 months insures you and your immediate family in time of need, without replacement. The "Insurance Program" means that if a blood donor or member of his or her family is in need of blood anytime within the specified time limit, after she or he has donated blood—that person and family will receive Red Cross blood by only showing their blood doner card to the hospital authorities. Besides helping the donor and his family by donating blood regularly—we are also able to furnish Gamma Globulin through blood donations to the Office of Defense Mobilization without charge, which blood is shipped at Red Cross expense upon order of the United States Public Health Distribution Officer. The Red Cross will continue to contribute approximately 1,000,000 C. C.'s of G. G. annually to the ODM pool from the normal blood program operations. A further significant fact is that all G. G. (200,000 C. C.'s(used by the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis in its polio field trials in 1951 and 1952 was provided to National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis Foundation of ODM by Red Cross without charge. At no time has National Foundation or ODM paid Red Cross for GG or for raw material for which GG is processed. Also a great need for whole blood still exists for treatment of military personnel and their dependents in both the military and non-military hospitals.

Perhaps we, the people of Chilton County, had not realized that if we did not have a Red Cross Blood Program our local Hospital would not be able to keep a supply of serum albumin on hand for emergencies or any serious automobile accidents occurring in our county. As we all know, the Doctors now are using whole blood as medicine to build up a patient. You in Chilton County are playing a big part in furnishing blood to take care of your community needs. The important thing to remember is that we never know when someone in our own family may need this life-saving blood; and that if commercial blood is used—this runs into lots of money. Red Cross blood is free—the only cost in this connection is the fee for giving the blood, which is not a Red Cross charge.

We now have the following blood donors who have donated one gallon each since our blood program in this County began in September 1951:

Mr. J. D. Wilson, Goodyear Store, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. James M. Mims Postoffice employee, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. Ralph Johnston, Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. O. N. Esco, Sr., L. & N. office, Verbena, Ala.

Mrs. Sarah Wells, Route one, Clanton, Ala.

We note from our records, there are other donors who will soon reach the gallon mark. Make your appointment now to donate a pint of blood. The need for blood is urgent. Life depends on it.

Merit System Now Works 200 less Than It Did This July

Montgomery, Ala.—The number of state merit system employes dropped over 200 from the July 1-15 period, the State Personnel Department has reported.

The state had 8,626 employes, excluding exempt and daily and hourly paid workers, during the first half of July and only 8,413 in the first half of October.

The payroll for the 8,413 worker was $1,078,653 and for those on the employment list in July's first pay period $1,087,080. The average monthly salary for the July period was $252.04 and for the October period $256.42.

Big drop in employes during the period came in the Highway Department, the state's biggest employer by far. The July 1-15 payroll listed 2,769 who received $319,142.27. In October, 2,594 received $308,788.

After oiling a sewing machine, stitch through a blotter several times to soak up excess oil and protect material from stain.

PEANUT CROP FAILURE BRINGS SEED SHORTAGE

Auburn, Ala. — Around planting time next spring Alabama's peanut growers are going to discover that seeds are hard to find. A recent survey among seed peanut growers in the Wiregrass area indicates that this year's seed crop will be less than one-third of what it was in 1953, reports R. R. Jones, seed crop specialist at the API Extension Service.

The farm leader says that most growers harvested only 400 to 500 pounds per acre this year, instead of the usual 1,500 pounds. And in addition, he says, the crop shows a high percentage of immature kernels and concealed damage.

All southeastern states were hit like by this year's drouth, so there is no place for Alabama's 40,000 peanut growers to get Dixie Runner seed next year, says Jones. Therefore, he advises farmers to save good planting peanuts, or make early arrangements with dealers before the planting season comes.

Expert Says Game Is Good, But Expensive

Game makes good eating, but it is expensive!

Earl Kennamer, API Extension Service wildlife specialist, says that a mess of quail for your family will run about six dollars per plate. A good pound of deer steak is figured at six to eight dollars. And, it is estimated that every duck on the table is worth five dollars.

At these prices, Kennamer states, its a good idea to make the most of the birds you bag or the deer you kill. And he has some suggestions for taking care of game meat to preserve or improve its flavor.

Birds should be cooled, plucked, and dressed as soon as they are killed, says the wildlife expert. But go easy on the dressing; overwashing destroys flavor.

Bird, either quail, dove or snipe, may be eaten immediately after dressing. Or they may be preserved by freezing as soon as they are dressed. Other game is sometimes improved by aging in a 35 to 40 degree icebox for several days. Deer, for instance must be aged, Kennamer warns, to bring out best flavors.

The specialist says that poor venison is caused chiefly by failure to bleed the animal after killing it and wailure to age the meat.

The throat of a freshly-killed deer should be cut, so that blood in the veins will drain before it clots. The animal should then be taken to a safe place, hung up, and its entrails removed. Kennamer advises that the deer's belly be propped open while it is being taken home.

Monosodium glutamate—the 3rd seasoning— will improve any game meat, and tough pieces can be worked on with a commercial meat tenderizer, the expert concludes.

Praise for Russian cotton has come from Swedish buyers who have imported about 250 tons of Russia's crop on a trial basis.

The Department of Agriculture says that the nation's honey crop this year will be five per cent less than in 1953.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Pat Hamilton didn't get to go fishing Tuesday even though it was one of the prettiest days we have seen in a long time. Pat had to calk windows at his house all day and when night came he and wife attended the Bazaar at the M. E. Church. Pat couldn't hardly close his fist on his knife and fork he had squeezed that calk gun so many times. Pat says that it proves he is a mighty good husband when he works at home all day instead of going fishing but in spite of his claim to so high an honor we believe the word is "henpeck".

Confucious say: "He who get too big for his britches will be exposed in the end."

We think that the young men of this generation are much smarter than they were when we were young. Much more intelligent. We know that our two boys are. When we were of that age we were very stupid in comparison. Then we started getting worse. To change your opinion the younger generation is going to the dogs just think back to when you were the same age. The next time you start to criticize them —— just take that halo off your head, its probably fallen over your eyes and caused you to see things a little lop-sided.

It seems a young negro couple were very much in love. "Mandy, what would you rather be if you weren't what you are", asked Rastus. To this Mandy replied: "If I weren't what I is, I'd rather be a red, red rose. What would you rather be Rastus?" Rastus said, "I'd ruther be one of them big octopussies that has a lot of arms and I'd hug you wif every one of 'em." Mandy looked at him scornfully and said, "you lying rascal you you ain't using the two you's got."

Women are like baseball umpires—they make quick decisions never reverse them, and they don't think you're safe when you're out.

Kip Burnett, Dick Hayes, Dent Williams, Troy Maddox and L. A. Lambert have other received their new 1955 automobiles for display or are about to receive them. They are all beauties of course and in recent issues we have tried to publish photographs of the new models to give you an idea as to what to expect. There will be more pictures coming up, as we receive them. Visit the show rooms of the automobile agencies. The above mentioned dealers will be glad to have you and we know you will get a big kick out of inspecting the beautiful new cars.

A note from Mrs. J. D. Robinson informs us to inform you that a hot dog, pie and cake supper will be held at Concord School Tuesday night, Nov. 23, 1954.

Serving will start at 5:30 Mrs. Robinson says and the supper is sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association.

Episcopalians To Celebrate Holy Communion, 14th

News Feature Predicted Vote on Congressional Seats

Hit Number of Congressional Seats Within .01 Per Cent

Princeton, N. J.—With the 1954 nationwide Congressional returns in, the United States Poll has again lived up to its reputation as the most accurate public opinion barometer in the nation.

The latest unofficial returns show that the Democrats have won 232 of the House of Representatives' 435 seats; the Republicans, 203.

232 out of a total of 435 seats shows that 53.55 per cent of the House of Representatives are Democrats.

And 203 out of a total of 435 seats shows that 46.67 per cent of the House of Representatives are Republicans.

1954 Nationwide Congressional Vote—

Democrats: U. S. Poll predicted 53.3 per cent; 53.33 per cent won; deviation was .93 percent.

Republicans: U. S. Poll prediction was 46.7 per cent; 46.67 per cent won; deviation was .03 per cent.

The actual results of the election show that the United States Poll came within three-hundredths of one per cent (.03) in predicting the number of Congressional seats.*

Just think of it—the number of Congressional seats predicted within three-hundredths of one per cent.

The United States Poll is a weekly feature sponsored and paid for by a group of the nation's independent newspapers. It's reports are presented exclusively in this area by the Chilton County News.

*As soon as the actual nationwide vote for Congress is available, Princeton Research Service will show the nationwide vote in terms of its prediction. Unquestionably the United State Poll should be well within the range of expected statistical variation.

Selden Supporting Cotton Acreage Increase

U. S. Representative Armistead Selden said today that the cotton farmers of Ala. are again faced with a heavy cut in cotton acreage unless Congress takes some positive action after it convenes in January. The Secretary of Agriculture, under existing legislation, has set the 1955 allotment at 18,113,208 acres which compares with a 1953 acreage of 25,284,600 and a 1954 acreage of 21,379,358.

"This heavy cut in total cotton acreage will be reflected in large acreage cuts to individual producers, Congressman Seldon Said, and will come at a time when many areas of Alabama have suffered crop failures due to a disastrous drought."

According to Rep. Selden, legislation will be introduced when Congress reconvenes that will increase the acreage allotment. "I will not only support such legislation," he said, "but I shall urge early action by the Congress so that any acreage increase will be available well before the 1955 crop is planted."

Congressman Selden pointed out that the cotton producers were faced with a similar situation last year but that Congress pased Public Law 290 in January increasing the 1954 allotment from 17,910,448 to 21,379,358 acres.

Lest We Forget

Big Parade And Large Crowds Honor Veterans Day Here

Thursday was the first Veteran's Day and honored as such in Clanton with a big parade featuring the Chilton County High School Band, National Guard, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion of Clapton, Thorsby and Jemison, Disabled American Veterans and the Maplesville Post of the V.F.W. Other Civic organizations also took part in the big celebration.

The parade started at 10:30 o'clock and large crowds lined the streets to commemorate the day.

Known But To God--

(This message is a digest of the address made by Father Flannery, National DAV Chaplain, at the Miami Beach National Convention Memorial Service.)

The citizen's heart wells up with pride as he journeys through the streets of the Nation's Capitol Whether he hails from the prairies of the Midwest, the mountains along the Coast, or the cotton fields of the South, he feels a glowing pride as he looks at the Capitol and the white array of buildings that line the spotless streets of Washington. The monument to our first President and general stands in proud salute over the seat of the great center of the States.

As he wends his way down to the Shrine of Shrines at Arlington a hush seems to surround the hallowed hills of the heroes. The white from Old Glory flying above dips down from the red of battle wounded across the blue horizon and scatters a field of crosses and the stars of David over the green waves of grass.

Thousands and thousands have been decorated for valor through the years, but the outstanding ribbon for bravery is still the white ribbon or cross on the field of green, the cost of his life in the cause of his country.

As the American walks through these whitened fields he comes upon the most impressive of all the monuments in our land of freedom the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier with the sentry pacing back and forth in steady solemn step in the presence of a hero who symbolizes all the men who gave their all for our Country.

On that white marble he reads in glowing letters the most beautiful epitaph ever to come from the lips of man: "Here lie the mortal remains of an American soldier known but to God." From the lips of the God Man we hear his citation, "Greater love than this hath

Boy Scout Fund Drive Launched Here This Week

The Annual Boy Scout Fund Campaign was launched with a breakfast meeting for the solicitors Tuesday morning. C. C. Craig is heading the campaign in Clanton. Craig is assisted by Gordon Robertson, Ott Miller and Reedie Taylor.

Dr. Joe Edgar and Bill Eiland are heading the special gifts committee.

Team captains who each selected ten members include Howard Boockholdt, Leo Thompson, Ben Studdard and Hollis Jackson.

Hearquarters will be located in Craig's office at the Western Auto Store. The committee urges all citizens of Clanton who are missed by the solicitors to mail or bring your contribution to headquarters

Craig has asked the generous support of the citizens of Clanton in making this drive a success. A successful drive will aid us in bringing the youth of Clanton a better scouting program. The present program can be extended with the help of your liberal contribution.

Craig pointed out that the scouting program offers to the boys and young men of Clanton a well rounded program of skills, comradeship, recognition, out-door experiences, character training, leadership training, comunity service and fun.

FHA Loans Reach Record High Says Supervisor Murphree

Farmers home administration lending operations in Alabama reached an all-time high in fiscal 1954, it was announced by County Supervisor Joe M. Murphree, Clanton.

Approximately 5,000 Alabama farm families received loans from the Agency during fiscal 1954 compared to about 4,700 in fiscal 1953. Including farmers who already had loans, some 6,550 families worked their farms during 1954 with farmers homer administration credit.

About 20 per cent of the money advanced during 1954 was used by small farmers to improve their farms and farming operations.

Loans are only made to farmers who are unable to secure adequate credit from other lending agencies. A large portion of total advances were made to veterans and other young farm families whose greatest needs were adequate credit in estabishing sound systems of farming.

Loans totaling $2,569,885 were advanced to small farmers for the purpose of purchasing workstock, machinery, equipment, fertilizer, seed and other farm operating costs.

Loans totaling $1,772,042 were made from appropriated funds to help small farmers buy, enlarge, or improve their farms and farm buildings during the year. Another $280,990 in real estate credit was advanced for similar purposes by private lending agencies through the insured mortgage program.

Farm water facilities and irrigation system loans, formerly limited to the 17 western states, are now available to farmers in Alabama and will include loans for both water and soil conservation purposes.

Curtis Baker

Curtis Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Baker of Clanton, Rt. 1, has just returned from Kansas City, Missouri where he attended the National F. F. A. Convention there. There he represented the Clanton F. F. A. Chapter in the National F. F. A. Chorus. He received a chorus uniform from the Alabama F. F. A. Organization, and the many different civic clubs of Clanton sponsored his trip. This is Curtis's second year of membership in the F. F. A. and he is a member of the senior class of the Chilton County High School.

There were one-hundred twenty five boys selected out of the United States to sing in the chorus. There were three boys selected from Alabama: Curtis Baker, Clanton; Larry Durden, Mobile; and Walter Tatum, Auburn. The boys were selected on the basis of past experience in music, their ability to read music, and any musical instrument they might play.

He had a very interesting and successful trip and made many new friends, which was worth the trip in itself.

FOOD FOR KINGS—

Along about this time of year a lot of people in this neck of the woods are dining on a luscious dish known as squirrel pie.

Good friends of the writer gifted him with a bountious supply of squirrel last week and we are still licking our chops in sweet memory of the succulent dish set before us by our good spouse.

To those who have known the pleasure of such a repast understanding is assumed, but to those poor mortals who have never known such a delicate luxury we can only feel pity. Truly it is food for kings.

JUST LIKE CLANTON'S KIDS—

Comes this from the Opp News; "We are pleased to observe that Halloween has just passed and pranks were of a harmless type. There were no soap-smeared windows, carrying of furniture from porches and turning over lawn furniture. Not even sand bags thrown on the porches. Congratulations to the youngsters. Maybe you are growing up to watching witches flying saucers or hoping for the opportunity of taking a space ship to Mars where pranks might be more acceptable."

We did see a few soaped windows in Clanton but they were few in comparison to what we have seen in the past. We lay the good behavior of youngsters on Halloween these days on one thing. They are so busy trick or treating every house they come to that they have little time to waste turning over furniture or putting lawn furniture on top of the house or barn.

IT DOESN'T MAKE SENSE—

Would you gamble your very life to save one single minute?

That sounds like a foolish question. But, believe it or not, thousands of Alabamians take that gamble every year, and lose tragically. Nearly five thousand of us will gamble and so lose during these last months of 1954.

Watch our actions in traffic for an indication of the terrible odds we put our lives against. Perhaps we're dashing to the office, or rushing home to dinner, or late for an appointment. Whatever the alleged reason, we're pressed for time and we begrudge the minute it would take to keep us alive and uninjured.

So to save that minute we take stupid chances — cross against lights, cross between intersections, dash out into the street from behind parked cars, speed on wet pavement, stretch amber or red lights, bulldoze into thoroughfares, drive on the wrong side of the street or road.

Very often we don't make it. Nearly five thousand times we won't make it between now and New Year's Day. We chance-takers very quickly become quiet figures on mortuary slabs, or macerated, tube-fed hospital patients.

This isn't a pretty picture. But it's one that needs painting for every Alabama citizen who ventures into traffic via automobile or foot.

This month and next(176 men, women and children can expect to die in Alabama traffic, and another 4610 can anticipate agonies and plaster casts and traction splints in hospitals. Many of these would not occur if the scheduled victims refuse to gamble their lives to save a minute.

Think of it next time you're tempted to take a foolish chance in traffic. No matter how important that minute, is it worth your life?

AVERAGE AMERICAN ADULT WORKER SPENDS TWENTY MINUTES GOING TO WORK

Sixty-Four Out Of Every Hundred Drive To Work

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Research Service

Princeton, N. J.—How long does it take the average adult worker across the U. S. A. to get to work and what type of transportation does he use?

Results of a recent nationwide United States Poll survey brings to light the following facts:

The average American worker, including those living in tiny hamlets as well as those living in the nation's biggest cities and their suburbs, spends on an average 20 minutes getting from home to work.

If he lives in rural areas and places with fewer than 10,000 people, he takes on an average 15 minutes to get to work.

If he lives in a city between 10,000 and 100,000 population, it takes him on an average about one minute longer than his rural neighbor—16 minutes.

On the other hand, if he lives in a city between 100,000 and 500,000 population, it takes him on the average 20 minutes to get to work.

And if he lives in one of the nation's biggest cities—places with half million or more people, it takes him 30 minutes on the average to get to work.

That's what United States Poll staff reporters found after talking to a cross-section of the adult civilian employed population, exclusive of farmers.

To determine the average worker's job transortation time requirements and the tye of transortation used in getting to work, United States Poll staff reporters asked 2 questions in today's survey:

The first: "How long does it take you (your husband) to get from home to work?"

One in three (34 per cent) of the nation's adult workers say that it takes them 10 minutes or less to get to work.

And at the other extreme, one in every ten say that it takes them one hour or more.

Here are the replies:

Time Getting To Work? (Nationwide)—
10 minutes or less	34%
15 minutes	14
20 to 25 minutes	16
30 minutes	17
35 to 40 minutes	1
45 minutes	7
50 minutes	1
One hour or more	10
	100%

The second question in today's poll: "How do you (or your husband) usually go to work?"

More than three out of every five (64 per cent) go to work in an automoile—either driving their own or sharing some one else's car.

And another one in five (19 per cent) uses some public conveyance, such as a bus, trolley, subway, ferry, or train.

14 in each 100 walk to work.

Automobile	64%
Public conveyance	19
Walk	14
None of these	3

* * * *

Have you ever wondered what it is within yourself to take everything a person tells you to heart? We have, and it's disheartening to later realize you were wrong about a person soleiy because you believed that he was sincere in what he told you. Sometimes you have to work on yourself in order to weigh in the balance of what you hear from a person and then form an opinion of him, particularly when he is trying to win you over to his way of thinking.

It has never come easy to us, and probably not to you, to figure out the well meaning or otherwise faultiness of a person. The only way to do it is to think and be sure you weigh all the possibilities and what you hear about him and what he says about himself very carefully before concluding your opinion. It can be dangerous and might make someone unhappy if you get the wrong impression the first time and then the person turns out differently. You kind of loose faith in your fellow man.

The best way we know to avoid loosing faith in the other guy is to believe everything within reason about him until he or someone else proves otherwise. It is likely, if he is trying to win you falsely, that he will show his mistake in time. On the other hand, idle gossip about a person could sway your judgement to the point that you form an unfair opinion of him. Unfair to him and to yourself.

The very best solution is to believe and have faith in a person and let them know you have faith in them and if they are what they claim then you will find out through their actions, if they are not, you can probably tell that too.

Don't be too quick to form an opinion of another fellow. It could be detrimental to you both and neither would gain any satisfaction out of it. If you linger to form an opinion you are likely to have a lingering friendship and one you will cherish.

THE PHILOSOPHER

A 1955 Agricultural Conservation Program provision authorizes aid in establishing cover crops by sharing farmers' costs on preparation of seedbeds, seeding, lime, and commercial fertilizers.

Owners of businesses located in their homes, janitors, and others who said they didn't have to travel to work make up the three per cent listed as "none of these."

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Old Lawrence Weight of Clanton Motors and Charles Easterling also of Clanton Motors went rabbit hunting the other day and bagged themselves a wildcat, or bobcat, whichever you prefer, we prefer a housecat ourselves.

Anyhow, it's a pretty good sized kitty and we can imagine what ole kitty and we can imagine what Lawrence said when it came "loping out of the brush." They didn't tell us where "Wildcat Country" is but it's just as well, if we went rabbit hunting and all we came across was those pussy cats we think we'd take up wildcat hunting. . .maybe that way we'd get a squirrel.

We have two choices in life; be happy with what we have or work for what we want to make us happy.

Looks like it's about time we took a look at the '55 cars. We wonder sometimes if they couldn't sell more cars (if that's possible) if they would explain the darn things in detail, but in a more common word manner. What with all these streamlined words that flow so easily from the tongue of the salesman or the car man a fellow gets a feeling that if he's too dumb to talk in the same language he might be too dumb to drive one of the new cars. It's practically the same with television these days, you're usually buying the same thing as the other fellow only his is a who-dally-shimmy-damper while yours is just a plain old fizzle-rock-special. They may be using their heads though and just fouling us up with those big words so it'll seem to us like we are the cats meow just owning a high frequency streamlined gladrock two-way radio wristwatch . . . with stereophopic sound of course. You aughta have one.

These new cars are really something aright. They are all trying to get there firstest with the mostest and they have really gone all out this year.

There's just one thing; when you go to buy one be sure you take along a Webster or you might walk away owning a rocket ship. If you do get a rocket, try to find out where it's headed, you might wind up on the wrong sattelite.

See where Miss Lenore Oglesby has been initiated into the national honorary biological fraternity, Tri Beta. She belongs to the Beta Nu chapter at Huntingdon College in Montgomery.

Miss Oglesby is the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby of Clanton. It seems both the Miss Oglesbys' have done and are doing all right for themselves down Huntingdon way. Lenore has a sister, Mary Ann who also has made quite a name for herself among her classmates. We congratulate Lenore on her latest achievement and wish them both lots of luck in attaining future accomplishments.

We wonder if the gooney Bird (and there is such a thing) has any Looney Ticks on it.

For a good old second-hand cold
We're afraid,
There isn't a thing that we would Trade.
But to trade one off to the other
Joes,
We'd gladly throw in this runny
Nose.

Q—What is the educational exchange program of the State Department?
A—It is our Government's program of sending Americans abroad and bringing people to this country from more than 70 other countries to study, teach and absorb the meaning of each other's ways of life. The United States believes that these direct personal contacts in connection with projects of benefit to us and to each of the other participating countries will improve our international relations by building real understanding and mutual respect.
Q—What and where is statuary hall in the capitol building?
A—Statuary Hall is in the south wing of the Capitol near the center, comprising a room where the House formerly convened. Since 1864, when the room was reconstructed it has been designated as a national room where every state is permitted to exhibit two statues of illustrious deceased citizens. However of a recent date only 42 states were on exhibition there since the tremendous weight forced placing some 36 other statues in other sections of the building. States not yet represented include Wyoming, North Dakota, Nevada, New Mexico, Montana and Colorado.

WSCS Annual Bazaar A Tremendous Success

The basement of the First Methodist Church was literally running over with home-made products, autumn leaves, fall fruits, and people on Tuesday when the Woman's Society of Christian Service held their seventh annual bazaar.

The basement was beautifully decorated with colorful autumn leaves and decorative arrangements of fall fruits and plants. Along the walls and in individual rooms, booths were set up to feature home-cooked candies, hand-dressed dolls and doll clothes, home-grown potted plants, home-canned foods, home-sewn aprons, surprise packages, hand-decorated Christmas articles and decorations and many other products. A snack bar was conviently located for those who were hungry. A magician was on hand to entertain the children.

That evening the WSCS served delicious home-cooked turkey dinners to a full and running-over house. The dining tables were attractively decorated with fall autumn leaves and fruits.

Mrs. Joe Mullins is president of the WSCS. Mrs. Clara Mullins served as general chairman of the bazaar.

Chapel of Resurrection Observes Youth Week

The National Catholic Youth Week was carried out by the young people of the Chapel of the Resurrection from Oct. 31, The Feast of Christ the King, when they all participated in the spiritual Mass and Communion, to the Octave Day of the Feasts of all Saints.

On Monday the young people presented their contributions for the United Nations fund of displaced children and at this time related how each had made the money for this fund. On Tuesday they met at the cemetery and later for a visit at the chapel for prayers for the dear departed. On Wednesday they held a holy hour of prayer. On Thursday they enjoyed a lovely party arranged for them by their parents. The remainder of the week was spent in completing their poster and their theme: "He Who Wrought In Peter the Apostleship, Wrought Also In Me."

During the week the young people helped pack two Christmas boxes for the Red Cross for overseas.

BRAIDED or crocheted rugs will lie perfectly flat if, after washing, you lay them on a flat surface and go over them with a rolling pin until perfectly flat.

If you do not have a fancy mop for dusting Venetian blinds, you'll find that an ordinary dish mop does very well. It's easy to wash out after use and will then be clean each time you dust.

Ice cube trays can be filled easily without any spilling if you use a long-spouted tea kettle brought right to the refrigerator.

Before cleaning wallpaper, place a scrap of newspaper on each nail from which you've removed pictures, mirrors, etc. When cleaning you'll know where each nail is and can avoid it, and at the same time save replacing nails which have been removed to avoid accidents while cleaning.

Open shelves can be covered with printed material if you glue on snap on tape around the shelves and sew the corresponding snap tape on printed material. It's easy to remove for laundering.

Place socks over one arm as they come from the washing machine, hold pins in that hand and hang with the other hand. It will save much stooping to get them from a laundry basket.

New Bigger Plymouth

Plymouth's completely new 1955 cars are lower, wider and more than 10 inches longer than previous models. With either a PowerFlow Six or Hy-Fire V-8 engine, they are the most powerful cars Plymouth has ever built. They are available with a full range of automatic and power-assist devices, including electric window lifts and power front seat adjustment. Pictured here is the Belvedere sport coupe.

Plymouth Announces Larger, More Powerful 1955 Cars

Detroit — Plymouth's bigger and be displayed by dealers throughout the nation beginning Wednesday, more powerful 1955 model cars will November 17, President John P. Mansfield of Plymouth Motor Corp. announced today.

The 1955 Plymouths are entirely new, both in styling and engineering detail, Mansfield said. They are lower, longer and wider than previous Plymouth cars.

They are the most powerful cars Plymouth ever built. The 1955 engines are a 117-horsepower PowerFlow six, a 157- horsepower Hy-Fire V-8 and a 167 horsepower Hy-Fire V-8. The latter engine is available with a four-barrel carburetor and special manifold which increases its horsepower to 177.

Plymouth offers as optional equipment a full range of automatic and power asist devices. They include PowerFlite fully automatic no-clutch transmission, a new design coaxial full-time power steering, power brakes, power operated front seat adjustments, power-operated window regulators, and adjustable speed electric windshield wipers. Air conditioning by Airtemp also is available as special equipment.

The 1955 line is made up of 12 models, including for the first time four-door versions of the Plymouth Suburban, the all steel body "station wagon" type car which Plymouth pioneered in 1949.

Mansfield said the 1955 models are all new in a more basic sense than at any previous new model introduction in the company's history.

"We started three years ago to design them," he said. "Everything is new. This applies not only to their styling and interior decor but also to the body structural detail, the frame, the suspension system, the interior ventilating and heating system and many other features. It literally is true that our 1955 models are new from bumper to bumper.

New Conveniences—

One of the novel features of the interior is the design of the instrument panel, which reflects sport car influence. Instruments are positioned to provide balance and eye appeal. The "Flite-Control gear selector for Plymouth's Power Flite transmission is positioned on the instrument panel instead of the conventional mounting of the steering column. This is the first change positioning of a drive selector level since gearshifts were moved from the floor board to the steering column. It is exclusive on Plymouth in the lowest price field.

Among the driver conveniences, available as optional equipment are:

A new type windshield washer. When the driver puts his foot on a control button, a stream of liquid sprays on the windshield and the electric windshield wipers begin to operate automatically.

A power front seat control. With the touch of a finger, the driver can cause the seat to move along an inclined track for-and-aft 5 inches and vertically a maximum of 1 and 1-8 inches.

Electric window lifts which work in temperatures down to 20 below zero. All drop windows can be operated from a four-switch control panel on the drivers' door, or by individual control buttons on each door.

A new improved coaxial full-time power steering system. It is more compact, has fewer parts, has greater stability and offers better built-in "returnability" than any steering unit previously developed.

New Heating System—

Another entirely new feature is a compact heating and ventilating unit mounted on the dash. It takes in outside air from the cowl vent at the base of the windshield. This arrangement eliminates the need for space-hogging air ducts through the engine compartment. It als helps keep dirt and fumes out of the car. Larger fans and motors, and improved design of the unit, permits more even distribution of heat inside and better defrosting of the windshield.

An improved Airtemp car air conditioner is offered on the 1955 Plymouth for the first time. The unit employs a two-cylinder reciprocal compressor. It has a magnetic clutch which connects the compressor to the engine only when cooling is needed, and a new single condenser which minimizes interference with engine cooling.

CARE OF THE FEET

Shoes that do not fit are the most common cause of painful feet; yet many people, women in particular, pay more attention to style than to comfort in the selection of shoes. Shoes should be fitted to give the wearer stability and balance in walking.

The condition "fallen aprches" seems to occur most often in women and results from some injury to one of the main bones of the foot known as the astragalus. People who stand long hours are likely to be bothered by painful feet due to continuous strain on the arches. In some cases the pain is the result of rupture of the tissues and of strains on the muscles in their effort to overcome the strain.

Callouses and corns are two common ailments. The former is a thickening of the normal skin caused by too much pressure for too long a period of time. Corns, on the other hand, are thickenings of the skin together with the callous, but in the central portion there is a core that goes into the deeper tissues. Both of these conditions can be avoided, if adequate attention is paid to the care of the feet.

Ingrown toenails are another source of painful feet. These can be avoided if the nail is cut at right angles to its growth. The corners should be square rather than rounded. This will prevent the nail from cutting into the soft skin tissues.

Since the feet gather dirt and perspiration, they should be bathed frequently and carefully with warm soapy water. Special attention should be paid to the webbing between the toes to prevent the growth of bacteria and fungi.

Since feet carry the weight of the body, posture plays an important part in the care of the feet. Standing with the feet pointing outward, instead of forward, causes undue strain on the ligaments connecting the foot bones, especially on the inner side of the lon arches. The resulting slight ache often grows to severe pain.

A little common sense in the selection of foot gear and personal habits of good hygiene in the care of the feet will do much to keep you free of painful feet.

Watch Out For Early Signs of Diabetes

Mongtomery, Alabama — Be on the lookout for the early signs of diabetes, Alabama's State Health Officer advised today.

Dr. D. G. Gill listed excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger despite a heavy intake of food and a sudden drop in weight as among the common symptoms of this disease.

Dr. Gill said that many communities observe National Diabetes Week early in November each year. The Week is an occasion for detection drives to find unknown cases.

"Surveys indicate that there are an estimated one million or more persons in the country who have diabetes and do not know it," Dr. Gill said. He pointed out that this chronic disease can, in many cases, be controlled by diet alone.

Planting More Timber Won't Bring Controls

Auburn, Ala. — Timber is one crop that doesn't raise the question of present surpluses or future controls.

Trees can be planted this fall and winter on any scale a farmer desires, says Ike Martin, API Extension forester.

Pointing out that farmers own half of the woodland in Alabama, Martin emphasized that they are not at the present time doing their share of planting trees. Although private owners are given preference at state nurseries, he explains, they order less than half the seedlings shipped.

Urging farmers to take advantage of the opportunity to get free seedlings offered by the state nursery, the specialist believes that it will also pay them to buy young trees when the free supply is exhausted.

Alabama's woodland area has been increased by one million acres in the past 18 years.

COTTONSEED CUT ABOUT 50 PER CENT THIS YEAR

Ralph Jones, API Extension Service secialist in seed crops marketing, said in Auburn this week that this year's supply of certified seed in the state will be cut about 50 per cent.

He explained that field approval for seed certification was made on only 20,311 acres of Alabama cotton in 1954, compared with 26,076 acres that were certified last year. This, he pointed out, accounts for almost 25 per cent of the drop. The rest was caused by extremely dry hot weather, which brought yields down in most parts of the state, concluded the specialist.

Ford's longer, lower body style and wrap-around windshield, available on all models, is shown above in the Fairlane four-door sedan. The '55 Fords are available with Y-Block V-8 or I-Block Six power, and Fairlane models have dual exhaust as standard equipment. They will be introduced by Ford dealers November 12.

1955 Fords To Be Shown By Nation's Dealers Tomorrow

Will Introduce A New Series, The Fairlane

Ford will introduce an entirely new line—the high-styled Fairlane series—as the leader of its four lines of 1955 passenger cars to be shown in 6400 dealers' showrooms across the nation on Friday, Nov. 12.

Modern styling inspired by Ford's new Thunderbird personal car distinguishes the new Fords. Retaining definite characteristics which have won Ford style leadership, the 1955 Fords also have wrap-around windshield and a new, lower silhouette. The Crown Victoria—a new model—is the first Ford sedan under five feet in over-all height.

Ford, which offered the first V-8 engine in the low rice field in 1932 and has built 14 million V-8's since then, introduces for the first time three new engines:

A high compression Y-Block engine of 272 cubic inch displacement and an 8.5 to 1 compression ratio.

A powerful Y-Block V-8 engine of 272 cubic inch displacement and a 7.6 to 1 compression ratio.

An improved 6 cylinder I-Block engine of 223 cubic inch displacement and a 7.5 to 1 compression ratio.

Dual exhausts, which provide extra power, are standard on all Fairlane V-8 and station wagon models.

Ford's new high comression engine available only with Fordomatic transmission in the Fairlane series, has a four-barrel carburetor with automatic choke and special intake manifold; special vacuum controlled distributor; high compression cylinder heads and high capacity radiator. Ford's popular V-8 and 6 cylinder engines are available with any of the 10 Ford models for 1955.

L. D. Crusoe, vice president of Ford Motor Company and general manager of Ford Division, announced that Ford is introducing a new integrated air conditioning heating system with its 1955 models. This system will be dealer installed. "Ford's new cars," Mr. Cruesoe said "are notable for new 'Trigger-Torque' power which gives greatly increased responsiveness in driving range and better maneuverability and flexibility in traffic. A 44 foot pound increase in torque in the V-8 engine provides starts at lower speeds and also extra power for safer passing at higher speeds. This is part of a balanced combination of horsepower, torque, transmission and rear axle ratio which also give greater gasoline economy."

The new ford fairline series, named after the home of the late Henry Ford, includes a completely new styling idea — the Crown Victoria model. This car has an arch of chrome over the top like a tiara. It also is available with a transarent plastic roof over the driver's compartment.

Like all 1955 Fords, the Fairlane models have a new concave grill composed of a sturdy chrome-plated grid. Fairlane cars are immediately recognized by a chrome trimline which starts on top of each front fender at the headlamp and follows the curvature of the fender downward - then sweeps along the side to the tail lights. Hooded headlamps give the high front fenders a forward thrust look while rear fenders form a reverse angle above larger tail lamps. All the new Fords have a flatter hood and a longer rear deck.

New upholstery fabrics, many developed for the 1955 Fords, are available in a broad selection of colors and patterns. Thirty-five textile mills were contacted in the development of special woven plastics, decorator fabrics and vinyls created exclusively for the New Fords. They are matched with 13 exterior colors in single tones and also in a variety of new and unusual two-tone treatments on the Fairlane series.

In addition to the two Crown Victorias, the Fairlane series includes the Sunliner convertible, the Victoria, the four door Town Sedan and the two-door Club Sedan.

Ford, which produces 47% of all station wagons sold, has expanded its station wagon series for 1955 to include five models with all steel bodies — one more than in 1954. They include the eight-passenger Country Squire, with side moldings of wood grained glass fibre; an eight passenger Country Sedan; a a custom Ranch Wagon and a Ranch Wagon.

This year Ford's Customline series includes Fordor and Tudor sedans. The chrome molding along the sides of the Customline models provides clean, classic lines and serves as a "bumper" to protect the finish when a car door opens in the next parking space.

Ford's lowest priced series includes three models: the new Tudor business sedan, the tudor sedan and the Fordor Sedan.

NEW Features of '55 Ford—

Improved Fordomatic transmission which gives the driver a choice of much faster get-away from stoplights, when desired, without manual labor and shifting. By pressing the accelerator to the floor the driver gets an automatic low-gear start which puts him 40 feet ahead of last year's model when he reaches 35 mph. Overdrive and regular transmissions are optional on the new Fords.

A new integrated air conditioning and heating system competitively priced will be introduced by Ford early in 1955. The Ford unit will combine a fresh air heater with air conditioner and will be of the "front end" type with all components forward of the passenger compartment. Controls will be placed in the regular heater control dial on the instrument panel. The unit will be adaptable to station wagons and convertibles.

Larger brakes on all models with 25 per cent more braking surface on station wagons, provide greater stopping ability and 50 per cent longer life.

"Turo action" 18 mm. spark plugs another Ford first, burn off carbon deposits because of their larger diameter and greater heat range. This keeps spark plugs clean up to three times longer than conventional plugs and greatly reduces fouling at low speeds.

New this year is an illuminated Fordomatic drive selector mounted in the instrument panel and easily visible to the driver. The speedometer, mounted above the panel, has a transparent hood for daylight illumination. The instrument panel has round dials for heat and temperature controls, radio and clock.

Ford's new lower silhouette is the result of a redesigned frame which has made possible a reduction in overall height of all models. For example, the Crown Victoria models have an overall height of only 58.2 inches Sedans are reduced 1.3 inches under the 1954 models without loss of headroom.

A greatly improved ride and easier handling result from an entirely new chassis, new shock absorber valving, spring improvements and new "angle poised" ball-joint suspension which Ford introduced last year. The ball-joint front suspension has been further improved by tilting the horizontal axis of the suspension 3 degrees so the wheels roll over the bumps more easily and road shock is lessened.

New tubless tires, first introduced in the low-price field by Ford in 1954, are again standard equipment and offer greater safety because they retain air longer after a puncture.

Four driving-assists — power brakes, power steering, four power windows and four-way power seats which, along with the conventional seat, can be moved two inches further back to provide additional leg room.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

While replenishing the family's supply of winter clothes (unhappily, nobody could squeeze into the garments worn last winter), I included a pair of new shoes for myself in the purchases. So maybe that's why the two-year-old was conscious of my feet.

Anyhow, at bedtime that night when I lay down beside her to tell her a story, she said:

"Please cover up your feet."

"No," I replied. "I don't want to."

"Why?" she asked. "They too big?"

And maybe, they are!

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, declares that her purchases of shoes for her children run into the hundreds. With all her experience she has found a treatment to lengthen the life of footwear for both children and adults.

She melts together two parts of beeswax to one part of mutton fat and applies thick coats of it to new shoes, letting it stay on overnight. In the morning, she wipes the shoes well with a piece of flannel cloth.

"This treatment not only makes shoes last longer, it makes them waterproof, too," she said.

If your shoes haven't been given this waterproofing protection and if you get them soaked in the rain, this neighbor recommends applying saddle soap to them and letting them dry with the soap on them. The saddle soap keeps the leather from getting stiff and hard when it dries.

* * *

Speaking of rain, the next door neighbor says that rubber rain boots will hold their original shape and will last much longer (she's an authority on such things) if pieces of stiff cardboard are put inside them to hold the tops upright when they're not in use.

The only trouble is that many small boys, and some girls, too, rebel at wearing rain boots.

If you have this problem around your house, try giving the soles of the young rebels' shoes several coats of shellac. The neighbor around the corned, who has tried it, says the shellac keeps the moisture from soaking through to the soles of the feet.

The other morning, with school time bearing down upon us, we discovered that we were all out of brown shoe polish, and the seven-year-old's shoes were entirely too disreputable to wear without polishing. What to do?

The next door neighbor just happened in and solved our problem for us. She showed us how to give the shoes a good shine with paste floor wax! We've replinished our supply of shoe polish, but I intend to remember the floor wax trick.

Here's a carrot-apple casserole recipe from our good cook neighbor. Butter casserole dish and place on bottom a layer of pared apple slices. Dot with butter and sprinkle on brown sugar and a little cinnamon. Add a layer of carrots which have been scraped and cut lengthwise, giving them the butter-sugar-cinnamon treatment, too. Continue with alternate layers of apples and carrots until casserole is filled. Bake at 350 degrees until thoroughly done.

Our attendance for the singing Saturday night was especially good. We invite each and every one to be back with us the first Saturday night in January.

Our pastor, Brother Glover, brought two very inspiring messages Sunday. The Lord was with us in a mighty way. We had visitors from Liberty Hill, near Wetumpka, with us in our services Sunday and we invite them back at any time they can come.

Brother Glover and family and Betsy and Vickey Matthews were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lane, Helen Jean and Shirley.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Martin and son were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Northcutt and family. They also attended church at Oak Grove.

Placing farm machinery and equipment on the same sales tax basis as automobiles, retention of present tax exemptions on farm raw materials, and laws protecting the state's water resources will be among leading proposals to be backed by members of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation during the coming year.

These recommendations, along with one pledging cooperation with the state government and business interests in industrial development toward a better balanced economy were among many adopted at the 33rd annual Farm Bureau convention in Birmingham Nov. 1-3.

In demanding an "even break" for farm machinery with automobiles in the sales tax levy, the farm group pointed out that the tax on such equipment now was three per cent and that on autos only one per cent. The proposed reduction also would apply to irrigation equipment but not to machinery parts.

Seeking to meet problems brought on by recurring drought and dwindling water supplies, the farmers urged a study of all interested groups so that legislation may be prepared to enable the state to take advantage of recently enacted federal laws on the subject, and for protection of farmers in their use of water for irrigation. Further research on irrigation by Auburn was requested.

Other resolutions which may take the form of bills to be presented to the legislature included those to provide protection for the state's important poultry industry by requiring grading and labeling of eggs; requiring imported milk to meet Alabama health standards; and continuance of adequate support for agricultural research and extension education.

MEAT-TYPE HOGS ARE FOUND IN ALL BREEDS

Auburn, Ala. — First on the list of things to do in raising hogs for market is to breed sows to purebred meat-type boars, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

The most desirable hog for market is one with a natural tendency to yield a maximum percentage of high-priced meat cuts - trimed hams, loins, picnic shoulders, and shoulder butts - with enough finish for a firm carcass. Such a hog should have a heavily muscled long body - 42 in. from the base of the ear to the root of the tail - and a good spring of rib.

Phillips says no one breed has a monopoly on meat-type hogs. However, some breeds have more meat-type strains than others. Choose your own breed, but be certain it has meat-type tendencies.

Special care should be taken in the selection of a purebred boar, Phillips adds. A boar's barrows tend to be shorter and blockier than he, particularly when their dams are short and thick.

Christmas Message to VFW and VFW Auxiliary—

To the ladies Auxiliary and VFW Posts throughout Alabama, again I want to ask you to get your Christmas offerings in as the time is drawing nearer each day for the Christmas Parties at the Veterans hospitals. Comrades and Sisters what are you doing? Are you getting ready for a big Christmas? Who will you be thinking of at that time? Stop and ask yourself if you are remembering the fellows like yourself who stood beside you and fought for the same ideals that you fought for.

Remember the Christmas that you wished you could be at home with your families, no you haven't forgotten, It is just pushed to the back of your mind. It's something you want to forget, but can you really forget as long as you remember the fellows that are still away from their homes and loved ones.

Stop and think about a Christmas without some one to remember you. So let's do something for your Comrades who are still in our Veteran Hospitals. They are there because they were injured fighting for the things we all believe in. So now is the time to make them happy on Christmas so get your gifts in so this Christmas program can be carried out. If your loved ones were in these Hospitals, your feelings would be quite different. So let me hear from you. Your hospital Chairman, Jessie Gillespie, Maplesville, Alabama.

There's a "Familiar Ring" to Rusty

Little Rusty Jackson—going on ten now—is one boy in town who knows when it's dinnertime. It's his dad's doing and works this way:

Across Rusty is apt to be already in place around town on his bicycle. It's an ordinary bike except for one thing. His dad put hold of an old, but workable, alarm clock and bolted it right smack on the handlebars'

Mrs. Jackson sets it each time Rusty leaves home. Then when the alarm goes off, Rusty knows it's time to get home for dinner and starts pedaling back.

From where I sit, we can all use some sort of reminder now and then to keep us on our toes. The Brewing Industry, for instance, provides its retailers with a "wake-up" reminder through its Self-Regulation Program. Those businessmen are only too glad to co-operate voluntarily. And by doing so, they keep their places clean and neat. It's certainly a sure-fire way to "ring in" community good will, too.

Alabama Farmers Commend Folsom's Proposed Program

Alabama farmers, long interested in a balanced state economy with industrial payrolls providing a market for their own products, have commended Gov. Elect James E. Folsom and city leaders for their stepped-up drive toward that end.

Mr. Folsom who has made industrial development one of the principle projects of his second administration beginning in January, and the Chambers of Commerce whose cooperation he has asked and is receiving, were pledged the farmers' support at the recent annual Alabama Farm Bureau convention in Birmingham.

The voting delegates adopted this resolution under the heading of "Industrial Development".

"The Alabama Farm Bureau in recognizing the rapid industrial development of our state, feels that such development is desirable to bring about a better balance of economy. We urge further development of desirable locations.

We commend the gove-elect in his proposed industrial development program, and urge that farm people be given an opportunity to assist in this program whenever possible.

"We also commend the Chambers of Commerce thruout Alabama for many accomplishments toward improving industrial conditions and developments, and for their interest in the state-wide comunity improvement programs. The Alabama Farm Bureau is anxious to cooperate with these programs."

The farmers repeated their advocacy of a national farm program, to bring in a high, equitable income, with price supports at 90 per cent of parity, whenever the supply is normal in order to make farm income average parity.

Clanton Bar Association Passes Resolution In Memory Of Judge Victor J. Heard

IN MEMORIAM
Victor J. Heard, 1886-1954

The death of Judge Victor J. Heard of Clanton on October 9, 1954, came as a surprise and brought profound sorrow to his friends and associates in this county and surrounding area.

Judge Heard was born in Camp Hill, Alabama on December 19, 1886 received four years college preparatory work at Southern Industrial Institute at Camp Hill and his Bachelor of Law Degree at the University of Alabama on May 31, 1911.

After a short association as a practicing Attorney with the firm of Ball and Ball of Montgomery he came to Clanton in the year 1911, where he resided until his death.

He served as a First Lieutenant in the First World War.

He became Judge of the Inferior Law Court of Chilton County in 1943 and served as Judge of this Court until the name was changed to the Chilton County Law and Equity Court and until his death. That he served with distinction, courage and an outstanding record is strongly attested by the fact that few decisions of his have been reversed by the Appelate courts. Judge Heard was well read in the law and an astute and avid reader and that he was fair and just in his decisions, no Lawyer at this bar will deny.

If one should touch the high point of his life it would be his interest and attachment to the youth of this community; he was keenly interested in athletics and this drew him to the youth and they to him and perhaps in his judicial experience no duty pressed upon him as did the problem of juvenile delinquency and this his patience, tolerance and understanding is well known by all, and some say that this feeling of responsibility and desire to help the wayward youth might have brought on an early death.

Be it, therefore, resolved by the bench and bar of Chilton County that we record with deep sorrow the loss of our colleague and friend and that our expressions of sympathy go out to the family of Judge Heard and that this memorial to his name be recorded among the archives of the Chilton County Law and Equity Court and that a copy be furnished for publication to each of the county papers and a copy to the family of the deceased.

Now the labourer's task is o'er,
Now the Battle day is past;
Now upon the farther shore,
Lands the voyager at last.
Father, in thy gracious keeping
Leave we now thy servant sleeping.

Resolutions unanimously adopted by the bar on November 8, 1954.

Better dairy cows result from better selection and more widespread use of artificial breeding, from better feeding programs, and from better management.

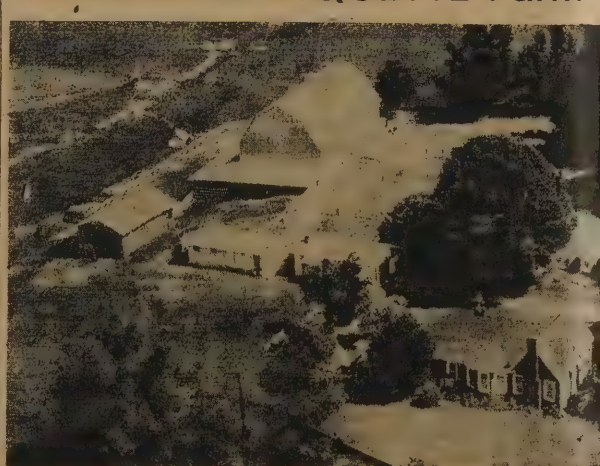
Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As The CHICK FIQUETTE Farm



"Restful Acres" owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chick Fiquette was the Mystery Farm printed in last week's issue of Chilton County News.

The farm was formerly owned by George McCain but was purchased by the Fiquettes some ten years ago and turned into a cattle farm. Besides White Faced Herefords the principal crops are grass and clover.

Chick says the farm got the name "Restful Acres" from Donald Blackbetter who for many years was manager of the Clanton Yellow Front Store. Donald drove out to see the Fiquettes one Sunday afternoon and upon alighting from his car said," these are sure restful acres". Since that time the place has been known as "restful acres".

Mrs. Fiquette, before her marraige to Chick, was Mrs. Olive Yarbrough Welch and she is the mother of O. K. Welch who is in the Air Force and a daughter, Ann, a student at Huntingdon College at Montgomery. Chick and Olive were married in 1938.

The Fiquettes are members of the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association, Alabama Polled Herefords Association, American Polled Herefords Association, and other organizations.

They are also members of the Clanton Methodist Church.

As hobbies Mrs. Fiquette is painter of rare ability and her husband says his hobby is just looking at cows. On their 220 acre farm they raise registered polled herefords and devote practically all of their time to this.

Chick says he wouldn't mind slipping a sly hint that he has a few calves for sale at the present time.

Watch Who You Buy Those Cheap 'Mail' Cigarets From

Montgomery, Alabama — Alabamians looking for cheap cigarets through out-of-state mail order houses had better think twice before falling for "misleading" statements now being sent throughout the state, State Revenue Commissioner Joe M. Edwards has warned.

Purchase of the "cheap" cigarets and failure to comply with Alabama law regarding the state tobacco tax could lead to a heavy fine, Edwards said.

According to B. B. Atkins, chief of the tobacco tax division of the Revenue Department, one out-of-state cigaret mail order house has recently "flooded" the state with order blanks and statements "that may tend to mislead the citizens of Alabama as to the state laws governing the purchase of tobacco products."

Explaining the state law, Atkins said:

"The tobacco tax laws of the state provide a tax on the sale or use and consumption of tobacco products. Sellers of tobacco products must obtain a license and must affix the required stamps before tobacco products are offered for sale."

"On the other hand, persons purchasing unstamped tobacco products for use or consumption must first register with the Department of Revenue, giving their name, address and approximate quantities of tobacco products to be purchased. They must also report and remit for the tax on or before the 10th of the following month.

"Failure to affix the required stamps or to register as a responsible taxpayer or report and pay the tax within the time required by law subjects a person to penalties ranging from $25 to $500."

A federal requires shippers of cigarets to report to tax administrators the names and addresses of persons to whom cigarets were mailed in the past month, Atkins continued.

During the past several months the state has collected tax and penalties from hundreds of Alabamians who had been led to believe that there was no tax evasion in purchasing cigarets through the mail he added.

The diference in price in cigarets bought locally and those bought through one of the mail order houses is approximately the amout bf the state and local tax, Atkins said.

"The Department of Revenue is vigorously enforcing the tobacco tax laws and persons found violating them are required to pay penalties in addition to the tax," Atkins declared.

AN INEVITABLE IMPACT

"Walk in wisdom toward them that are without". Colossians 4:55.

If you want to see a complete admixture of humanity, go to the Atlantic City Boardwalk on any summer holiday. There they are thousands of people, every nation, every profession, every line of business and trade, men, women and children, educated and uneducated, good, bad and indefferent. In one brief survey you can see a cross-section of the population of the globe, a complete epitome of humanity.

Now suppose a group of strangers, flying a banner to signify that they claimed to be Christians, should push their way into the Board walk throng, and should proceed to behave in a way that would belie their claim; what would those who made no such claims, think? A question not hard to answer, you say? Correct.

Whether at a seaside resort, or in your office, or even in your home, the unbeliever is watching you. It may be a husband or a wife, a neighbor, an employer or employee, the head of the manufacturing concern with which you do business, or a bus boy. You need not think for a minute that you are not under close observation every day. And the observer may know more about you than you think he can possibly know.

"Walk in wisdom toward them that are without." Good advice, that from the pen of a wise counsellor to a group of Christians. He would have them and us, understand that we are being judged not by what we would like others to see, but by what they actually see. The critcs will keep an eye on us, whether we know it or not. They will not only listen to what we are saying, but they will mark our atitudes, our responses and reactions to things good and bad. And the tragic situation is that, in a measure at least, their destiny will be determined by our conduct. We profess to be something. Are others discovering that we are what we profess to be?

It is the heart that counts, we argue. Correct again. But we must remember that the heart must express itself in an outward walk, so our verse implies. That raises the question as to what the Apostle meant by the word "walk". He meant a mode of living, a manner of conducting one's self. The feet and hands and tongue and mind, all move at the promoting of the heart. In the Book of Proverbs we read that out of the heart are the issues of life.

What is a saint, you ask? Are not the saints all dead? The ancients, whose pictures appear on church windows, are they only saints? No! Then who are the saints? They are the Christian people who right in our own day are striving in all sincerity to, "Walk in wisdom toward them that are without."

You'd Better Sit Down And Rest

Making up one bed for a year involves a long trip.

Miss Stella Mitchell, API Extension specialist in home management, says that although Mrs. Homemaker walks only four miles while doing this job, it takes her approximately 25 hours to make the journey. And when extra cover is on the bed, the distance and time is even greater.

The specialist recommends one-trip bed making as a way to cut the four miles into one and one-fifth and reduce the hours to less than 16. Just make up one side of the bed comletely, then tuck it in at the foot and finish up on the other side. It might save you a pair of shoes.

According to the Department of Agriculture, foreign purchases of cotton, wheat and tobacco are likely to increase next year.

(Too Late For Last Week)

For those who have been longing for cold weather, here it is. First few days of November and we've already had a taste of Winter, with a tiny bit of sleet and snow. Well, it is a nice change from the heat we were enduring only a month ago because as I remember, it was very very warm the first week in October with the temperature running in the high 90's for several days.

We have had such a short fall season it seems almost like skipping from Sumer right into Winter. However, the cold weather didn't prevent us from having a good church service over the week-end. The Sunday night service just seems to get better and better. We are few in number but the wonderful prayers and testimonies, together with the shouts of praise are experiences that will long be remembered. It gives one such an uplift to be in a crowd like that, and to see so many hearts filled to overflowing is just marvelous. Surely Christ's spirit was ever present that night and we pray that He continues with us.

Health in this community seems to be somewhat improved and we are happy for those who are again able to get out some.

Mr. and Mrs. Rube Rigigns, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Riggins and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Waylan Collins were among relatives from Chilton County attending the celebration Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simmie Lowery in Coosa County. The occasion was honoring Mr. Lowery on his birthday.

A birthday dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Collins, honoring Mr. Collins on his 74th birthday. Neighbors, children and their families and other relatives gathered in to join in the celebration, and to extend birthday greetings to the honoree.

Mr. Mary Price has been visiting her mother, Mrs. G. W. Melton and other relatives here the past few days. It is good to know that she is able to visit and go about again.

Mr. and Mrs. Waylan Collins of Oak Ridge, Tenn. came down last Friday for a few days with home folks. They expect to leave Tuesday returning to their home in Oak Ridge.

REPORT ON MILK STUDY MADE BY DAIRY EXPERT

A recent study in 110 counties throughout the United States revealed that young people, especially men, drink the greatest amount of milk.

John Parrish, API Extension da iryman, reorts that the study showed the average person uses less milk as he gets older. Most of the 37.1 percent who said they were drinking more milk during the late years, added that they were increasing their intake for health reasons.

Parrish says another fact brought out in the study is that increased milk sales have resulted from the use of vending machines.

Law Says Don't Deface Car Tags

Montgomery, Ala. — For those of the general public who do not know it is against the law to paint or deface automobile tags in any way, here is some disheartening news. There is a fine of $100 for doing just that and H. S. Phifer, chief of the motor vehicle and license division of the Revenue Department warned that anyone mutilating or defacing a tag from its original condition would be under obligation to the state.

In other words, if a red tag is worthwhile to you, you can pay for it but it is rather expensive.

The motoramic Chevrolet for '55

Great new 8

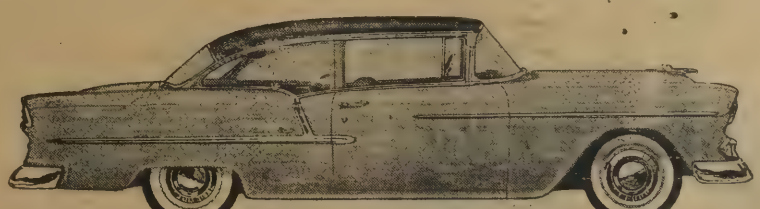
It's the valve-in-head V8 as only the valve-in-head leader can build it!

You'd expect Chevrolet to out-V8 the field—and it has! Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8" puts a brand-new kind of excitement under your foot. The excitement of 162 horsepower! The excitement of an 8 to 1 ultra-high compression ratio that squeezes more pure fun out of a gallon of gas than you ever dreamed possible! The new "Turbo-Fire V8" is so efficient that it requires only four quarts of oil instead of the usual five or more. And it has the shortest piston stroke in the low-price field, for longer engine life. But we can't even begin to give you the whole story here. Come in and drive the new "Turbo-Fire V8!"

Two new 6's

With enough new advances to fill a book!

Chevrolet offers two new highstepping sixes for 1955! There's the new "Blue-Flame 136" (teamed with Powerglide as an extra-cost option) and the new "Blue-Flame 123." Both bring you new, higher-rated power—the zippy, thrifty high-compression kind. Both have new, more efficient cooling and lubrication systems . . . new engine mounts that result in almost unbelievable smoothness. And, like the new "Turbo-Fire V8," both are sparked by a new 12-volt electrical system for finer performance and faster cold-weather starting. They're the liveliest, smoothest sixes Chevrolet ever put into a passenger car!



The Bel Air 2-Door Sedan—one of 14 new Fisher Body beauties in three new series.

More than a new car . . . a new CONCEPT of low-cost motoring (and much too good to miss driving!)

Known But To God--

no man, that he lay down his life for his friends."

Man is quickly prone to forget. How true that inscription in the Book of Life, we find some in our fair land who would be quick to erase them from the pages of history.

No home would be standing today were it not for those who made the supreme sacrifice to make those homes possible. Every home in the land of freedom is a silent monument to our hero dead. Too bad we couldn't place a plaque on every dwelling with the inscription: "This home made possible by those who left home and laid down their lives for their country."

In remembering our dead, we must also pause to honor those who waste away in veterans hospitals, the limbless and crippled who still fight the battle for life and a decent living.

The heroes will not rest in their graves, knowing that their buddies might be forgotten by indifference on the part of those who are sharing in the freedom they made possible.

Shame on Old Glory if she ever forgets the men who made her waving over the Land of Freedom possible.

May God strengthen and protect those who still carry on with battle scars, and grant eternal rest and peace to those who sleep in Freedom's Field.

State Cotton Crop Was Below Normal

A 1954 cotton crop of 725,000 bales is forecast for Alabama, based on conditions as of Nov. 1, but is 238,000 bales below the 1953 production. This increase in prospective production during October was not uniform throughout the State. Prospects, compared with a month earlier, improved in northern areas, remained about the same in central and southwestern sections, but declined slightly in the southeastern part of the State. Yield per acre is indicated at 287 pounds. This is an increase of 10 pounds per acre since October 1, and is 2 lbs. greater than the 1953 yield but only 1 pound above the 10 year (1943-52) average.

Weather conditions during Sept. and Oct. have been unusually favorable for harvesting the crop. Picking and ginning is practically completed in all parts of the state.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Notice that nearly all of the porcelain cups are about broken at our favorite coffee shop and that we'll soon all be drinking out of those darn plastic cups. You know? I think we should revive an old custom like they had in barber shops a long time ago and every fellow have his own cup hung on a nail along the wall with his name under it. Or as in some cases we believe they had their names printed on the side of the cups. That might be a solution to drinking plastic cups and we'd bet a bent linotype slug the owner of the coffee shop would be tinkled pink—no cups to buy.

We grieve with the Fiquettes and the Wades this week and extend our sincere symathy in the loss of their mother, Mrs. Ida Fiquette. Mrs. Fiquette died on the anniversary of her birth. She was born on Nov. 13, 1882, and died Nov. 13, 1954.

Saw Mary Oglesby's picture in the paper the other night. She had been attending meeting of Welfare workers and members of the social science department at Alabama College at Montevallo. Mrs. Oglesby represented Chilton County at the get-to-gether. These Oglesby girls surely do get around.

You could have easily heard this in our Sunday School class but we really heard it elsewhere. Seems a visiting speaker to a Sunday School was called upon to address the children. Thinking to be funny, he asked this question: "What would you do before so many bright boys who expected a speech from you, if you had absolutely nothing to say?" "I'd keep quiet," replied a small boy.

R. W. Lowe asked us Wednesday morning when we went to the post office if we had bought our duck Stamp yet. Seems most everyone is going duck hunting these days. Shucks, Reuben Lowe knows we need one of those duck stamps every day in the year—everytime the wife throws, we duck.

J. F. Smith, who died at West Point, Ga. the past week would have been 100 years old in January. He had scads of relatives in this community and left quite a line of direct descendents. Eight sons and one daughter, 63 grandchildren, 116 great grandchildren and 39 great great grandchildren are among those who mourn his passing. Frank Smith of Verbena, one of the grand children told us that the old gentleman was ready to go! After all 100 years is a lot of years to hang around this old vail of tears. We mourn with his family in their time of trouble.

When Joe Jackson was at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago recently where he was attending the National Convention of the Theatre Owners and Trade Show he received some mighty high compliments on the Clanton Drive-In Theatre. Of course we around here know that it is one of the prettiest and best run in the country but when a big theatre man, who controls millions of dollars worth of drive-in theatres over the country says good things about our local Drive-In, then that's news. Anyway one of the nations outstanding exhibitors said that he passed the Clanton Drive-In many times and that when others were seeking information about the construction and operations of a drive-in theatre he always points to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre as a pattern. And we think that is the highest compliment Joe and the Wilson's could get.

Called down at the high school the other day seeking Lamar DeLoach and talked to one of the girl students. As a rule, let it be said here, the girls and boys at the school are right on their toes but on this day the young lady said she would be glad to get Mr. DeLoach on the telephone. Well, after waiting a minute or so the lady returned to the telephone and asked: "Who's class is Lamar DeLoach in?" Now our only suggestion is that Lamar isn't making enough noise with that band of his around there.

Mt. Pleasant P-T.A Met November 8

The last meeting was held on Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. at the School Auditorium.

At the last meeting time was voted on and changed from 7 to 6:30. The next meeting will be held Dec. 13, 1954 at 6:30 p.m.

CCHS To Meet Unbeaten Devils Here Tomorrow

LE Jimmy Oaks
LT Norman Glasscock
LG E. Billingsley or C. Payton

J. W. Thomas Observes Store's 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas, of Jones, Ala., recently celebrated their 50th anniversary in the store business. When a young man, Mr. Thomas decided to leave the farm and go in the grocery store business with his brother-in-law, Mr. Thomas opened his store in 1904 and it was only a few yards from his present location. Some of his first customers are still trading with him today and his first clerk, Mrs. C. C. King, his sister, is still with him. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and their three sons opened at 5 a.m. and closed at 11 p.m. Mrs. Thomas soon found that an excellent cradle could be constructed by carefully scooping out space between the bolts of outing and gently placing the baby therein. Mrs. Thomas confesses that she likes to sell cloth best and Mr. Thomas shoes. Their stock includes hundreds of items. The store has served as a community meeting place, farm meetings, voting place, and the men gather there to play dominoes and many nights the game progressed to the closing hour, eleven o'clock. Mr. Thomas figuring his work by the hour says, "Working 300 days a year for 50 years with an average work day running twelve and a half hours, he figures he has chalked up a total of 185,000 hours." Although running a store is a full time affair, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have found time to take an active part in community, church and county affairs.

Mr. Thomas is a Mason and was Superintendent of the Sunday School for 20 odd years. Active in all civic drives and a member of the Board of Education. Mrs. Thomas very active in Eastern Star Work, all civic drives, WSCS President and Treasurer, Sunday School teacher and many other activities too numerous to mention. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas instilled in their sons t love for the store business. All 3 are engaged in the business. Nelson and Leon operate the Thomas Wholesalers which is located in Gadsden, Ala., and Perry has his own store in Maplesville.

The J. W. Thomas family have friends every where and they have endeared themselves to all who know them. Their home is always open to their friends.

J. F. Smith Passed At West Point, Ga.

J. F. Smith who would have been 100 years old in January, died at his home at West Point, Ga. last Saturday.

Mr. Smith was the father of Willie Smith of Verbena and had many relatives in Chilton County. The late T. L. Smith of Clanton was also a son. Mr. Smith left 8 sons and one daughter; 63 grandchildren, 116 great grand children and 39 great great grand children. Burial was at West Point.

In Temple Church Service

THE MISSION-AIRES

An unusual missionary service will be conducted at the Temple Church at Clanton, Sunday night Nov. 21. Emphasizing the importance of youth missions, the nationally-known Mission-aires quartet will be heading this rally. The group, now traveling from coast to coast, will be at the church for one service only, according to pastor Troy B. Helms.

The Mission-aires are the field representatives of the youth missionary program of the Assemblies of God. The project, designated Speed-the-Light, was originated 10 years ago. Since that time the burden of the project has been to furnish transportation, printing, and radio equipment for the 650 missionaries of the Assemblies of God. Over $1,500,000 has gone into modern equipment for missionary use on every major continent and in 65 foreign countries.

Members of the group are Don Larson, North Dakota; Howard Cummings, Nebraska; Paul Sandgren, North Dakota; and Don Huwe, also of N. Dakota. The pianist is Jerry Kirk of Flint, Michigan. These young men will present a program of variety and interest. The program will include quartet singing, instrumentals, visual presentations, and a youth-slanted sermon of consecration.

NOTICE

The Chilton Unity Baptist children's Home car will be loaded next Monday, Nov. 22 at the Clanton Peach shed. Bring produce as we've always been bringing.

LT. COL. DeRAMUS TAKES SPECIAL MANPOWER MANGEMENT COURSE

Washington, D. C.—Lt. Col. Thomas B. DeRamus, a native of Clanton, now serving as Chief, M.S.P. & C. Div., Headquarters AEDC, in Tullahoma, Tenn., was among a group of 101 high ranking United States Air Force officers and civilians who completed the Air Force Manpower Management Training Program at the George Washington University here on November 5, 1954. These 90 officers, all colonels and lieutenant colonels, and 11 civilians have taken this special course designed for commanders as a part of the comprehensive program of improved management being emphasized throughout the Air Force. The program seeks to improve the executive abilities of Air Force officers by introducing them to techniques and principles practiced by American business and industry.

The Program is under the direction of Professor Joe L. Jessup, Assistant Dean of the School of Government. The instructors are selected from the top levels of industry, government and the academic world.

Mr. Virgil K. Rowland of the Detroit Edison Company emphasized to these senior officers that a commander or manager cannot delegate to any one else his responsibility for managing and developing his subordinates. This responsibility, he said, represents the essential part of the job of any top executive.

The class graduating on Nov. 5th brought to 2,000 the total number who have completed the course at the George Washington University. Five hundred more are scheduled to take the program this academic

SOME QUESTIONS ON SEGREGATION—

The Southern Regional Council has done a service to all those concerned with the segregation issue in our public schools by publishing the bulletin entitled "Answers for Action, Schools in the South." The bulletin raises a number of questions and discusses them in terms of current opinion. Only in a few cases are positive answers proposed for the simple reason that except in only a few instances are the answers known. But the discussions provide a background of consideration which should clarify one's thinking and not confuse it.

Among the score or more questions raised in the bulletin the following six are selected as particularly pertinent in relation to the limited space here available.

What are the next steps?

"Every community must find its own specific answers within the framework of law and conscience. Yet there is a large and rowing body of information that can help in the planning process. A rich contribution was made on the eve of the Court's decision with the publication of the Negro and the Schools' by Harry S. Ashmore. This volume is a report on the findings of some 45 specialists—in law, sociology, economics, and education—who carried out the most comprehensive study of biracial education ever attempted.

"'Answers for Action' is an attempt to bring together in brief, readable form some of the main facts that point the way to constructive action in the South."

Did the Court order any immediate changes?

"No. The decision merely laid down the new principle of the law. The way in which the principle will be applied in the public schools has yet to be ecided. It is entirely possible that no changes will be ordered before the beginning of the school term in September, 1955, and perhaps even later. Those decrees will directly affect only the communities that are involved in the present court action—Clerendon County, S. C., Prince Edward County, Va., Wilmington, Del., Topeka, Kan., and Washington, D. C. Decisions directly affecting other places would require a lawsuit in each particular instance."

What kind of decrees will the Supreme Court consider at the forthcoming hearing?

"It would seem that the Court is considering ways to fit remedies to local situations and to allow a reasonable time for adjustment in each case. In these respects, the Court is following closely the line of reasoning laid down in the brief filed by the U. S. Attorney General in 1953. The Attorney General recommended that the Federal District Courts, being closest to the local scene, should have broad discretion in developing a plan acceptable to all parties in each particular case. Under this arrangement, the District Court would hold public hearings, allow educational, political, and civic spokesmen full opportunity to present their views. Out of this process would come eventually a plan and a timetable agreeable to the court and both parties and fashioned with due regard to community opinion."

Is the decision likely to be nullified by plans of defiance or evasion?

"The plan to abandon public education as a state function has been strongly criticized as legally unworkable and educationally disruptive. Many questions have been raised (concerning such a plan) and for the most part, have gone unanswered. To mention only a few: Could tax funds legally be spent to support private segregated schools? If not, how could they be supported? How can uniform standards of education be maintained without the authority of state law? How could all children be required to attend school without a compulsory state law? Would seperation of church and state be jeopardized? How could teachers' salaries, qualifications, pension rights, and working conditions be regulated? How could public school property be turned over to private ownership? What guarantees would parents have that their children would get a sound education, on a par with that of other children in the state?"

Have changes in race relations come uniformly throughout the South?

"No. Contrary to popular belief, the South is not all of a piece, even in racial attitudes. In geography, in economy, in history, in tradition—even in speech—there are various 'souths'. In some parts of the region the two races have grown into new, more democratic relationships comparatively quickly and easily. In other parts, the old ways persist for a long time after law and custom have changed elsewhere in the South."

Do recent population changes have a bearing on school integration?

"Yes. The war years were years of movement for millions of Americans, but the migration of Negro Southerners was without parallel. Between 1940 and 1950 these things happened:

"More than one million negroes left the South. Most of them went to the big industrial cities of the North and east."

"The Negro farm population of the South declined 1.3 million."

"The increase in the white population of the South was 33 times as great as the Negro gain.

"The percentage of Negroes in the population dropped sharply almost everywhere in the South." — Ala. School Journal

AMERICAN PUBLIC APPROVE OF LOCAL MAIL SERVICE BY 3 TO 1 MARGIN

Princeton, New Jersey — How do adult citizens across the U.S.A. feel about the way the mail service is being carried on by their local post offices?

Survey results show that American public sentiment overwhelmingly approves of its local mail service.

Nearly 3 out of every 4 adults questioned in the survey said they approved of the way the mail service is being carried on by their local post offices.

About 1 in 4 say they disapprove.

In other words, those who approve of the way their local post offices are carrying on their work outnumber by a margin of 3 to 1 those who disapprove.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the nation's citizens:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way the mail service is being carried on by your local post office?"

These were the nationwide results:

Approve	73%
Disapprove	24%
No Opinion	3%

Highlighting today's survey findings is the fact that more than 2 out of every 3 in every population group examined say they approve of their local mail service and that in no population group do as many as 3 in 10 say they disapprove.

These groups include Republicans, Democrats, and Independents, men and women, home owners and home renters, as well as all age groups, city sizes, sections of the country, occupations, and educational levels.

This uniformity of opinion across the nation is shown in the vote by size of community.

	Rural areas	2,500 - 100,000	100,000 & over
Approve	73%	74	72
Disapprove	24%	24	25
No opinion	3%	2	3

A tabulation of the reasons given by those expressing disapproval (24 per cent of the nation's adult population) shows that one idea is uppermost on the minds of these people—the need for two deliveries a day.

More than three out of every five who expressed disapproval mentioned the need for 2 deliveries a day as the reason for expressing disapproval.

And nearly 1 out of every 5 making suggestions mentioned earlier deliveries and the fact that they received their mail only in the afternoons.

Getting third mention (6 per cent of all those offering suggestions) is the elimination of unaddressed circular material and other advertising matter.

Receiving fewer mentions were the need for more help; the need for raising the pay of mail carriers, and the poor service in general.

* * * * IT'S MY OPINION * * * *

It's too bad we all have to make mistakes. It happens though, as sure as there's human beings around there's mistakes. And why? The only reason we have ever been able to get is that it's just "human beings." That's a good enough reason we suppose, but it doesn't stop us from feeling the way we do when we make an honest mistake.

It makes you feel bad and makes you wonder too, just what everybody thinks of you. In your own mind you think, "Well they must think I'm a boob," but actually if you stop and think how you feel when someone makes a mistake around you, you usually feel sorry for them. That's probably the very thing that they feel when you yourself make an honest mistake.

Mistakes are just like everything else; they make us feel bad because we wonder what others think of us "stupid mortals" when we're the ones who torture ourselves about them. Others, who don't happen to be the guilty parties at that time probably just shrug off your mistakes or forgive you for them, probably because they are thinking that they might have made the same mistake or that they might make one someties soon and they'd rather have a little consolation when they do than jeering and such.

We usually bring unpleasant things on ourselves anyway. It isn't other folks who torment us most of the time. It's what we ourselves think others are thinking or are going to think about us. We judge ourselves too closely. Sometimes because we're conceited and think folks pay more attention to us than they really do and sometimes we just honestly feel others think badly of us. Usually the latter is in our own minds and is usually termed an inferiority complex. We wonder sometimes if it's best to be too big for your britches and have a superiority complex or feel that we can't fill them and have just the opposite.

We would all do better to have neither the inferior complex or the other. Try not to judge ourselves too closely by what we would like to be and just be the best we can and let it take care of itself. If we wouldn't worry so much about the impression we make we would probably make a better impression.

Humans could lose most of their troubles by not making up bad things about themselves and just try being themselves. They'd probably find that others are much better judges of the impressions that we make than we ourselves are.

We shouldn't condemn ourselves as "stupid" for making a mistake. Just look at it in the light that others make mistakes, too; some bigger, some smaller and just try to overcome the ones we make most frequently.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

People are unpredictable it's true but why are they always so downright unthoughtful about it so much of the time.

One of the ladies in one of the local establishments was talking to us the other day about customers who came in and said, "I've just got to have this right away." They would oblige her and say it would be ready by the time she had decided she had to have it and lo and behold she wouldn't show until the following day with some feeble excuse. This lady we were talking with said that they had even stayed open past closing time (amen) for someone who said it was a "matter of life and death" if they didn't get their merchandise at a certain time and then didn't show up.

We hope the lady understands that the situation she faces is true in all business and she nor anyone else holds a monopoly on unthoughtful customers.

It's about time the customers showed a little of the same respect that they expect from the seller to the pore old merchant. True, there's the saying about the customer is always right, but when you get right down to it no one is right when they put another out intentionally. We're not speaking of these cases where someone is unavoidably detained, we're sure any merchant would see that; we're talking about those folks who, when the customers, demand prompt service and then don't have the consideration to treat the person with whom they are dealing the due respect of any human being. Yes, salesman is a human being, whether you knew it or not, the

We do not argue that the customer is not always right, we firmly believe that he is. . . so long as it's the product involved or the service rendered, but when a customer says he wants something at a certain time and then doesn't come for it he is definetly not right unless he has some justifiable excuse and it reflects on the goodness of his word.

The merchant, however, usually has to take it on the chin even tho he is right when the customer start complaining. Don't say there are merchants also who could use a little lesson in courtesy, who doesn't know that. That is a different story entirely, we're talking about something else.

As we said, we are not trying to change the look at business by saying the customer is wrong. . sometimes they just take too much for granted and great the merchant as something rather than someone who is trying to help them. Customers should be more appreciative of the fact that the seller is trying to please them and at the same time sell them something. . . sometimes that can be a very mean job.

We don't know exactly who to acknowledge for the fine work done on the Veteran's Day parade last Thursday but we will say that we hope they keep up that sort of thing in years to come and urge more folks to participate in it. It seems the least we can do in remembrance of those of us who made the "supreme sacrifice" so that we all might be here to enjoy the freedoms of America and to give thanks for . . . well, just for being here, as we are.

One argument against Communism and the likes o it that we haven't heard yet (if you need an argument) is: ask yourself how America and the free nations got where they did in a short time and then compare it with the ways of Communism and how far it has advanced anyone. We don't know what you found, but we didn't find a comparison.

If the Clanton Motors show window is a sample of how they are going to sell new cars this year where will we put all the old ones. They didn't have those on the floor any time at all before they were gone and now we don't have one to gaze longingly at. That's the way it goes though, the first of the year they can't get them in fast enough and at the end of the year they have more than they can use. With five or six million new cars on the highways this year we think we'll go back to the bicycle built for four or the one-horse shay, because we might get shoved off the roads in anything else.

Sorry to see ole Amos in the hospital this week. Seems she has virus something or other. Oh, Amos is our (somewhat ungentlemanly) way of addressing Mrs. Amy Murrah who works with us here at the News. We say ungentlemanly, but you should hear some of the names the other guys call us. Anyhow, we hope she is up and at 'em again soon 'cause we like having her around all right. We do hope calling her Amos had nothing to do with her illness because if it did we'll be glad to call her Andy.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

DURING the summer of 1945 William Mourey, Thorold, Ontario, Canada, started in the lumber business in Northwestern Quebec. For several months the going was difficult, but as time went on business improved, and within a year he was doing very well. He was also fortunate in speculating in mining ventures that appreciated considerably on the stock market and gave him a good profit. The business was doing very well, and the combined returns gave him a comparatively large fortune, so that he was able to purchase a summer home on a private island, a speed boat, an expensive car and all the trimmings that go with a successful business.

CARNEGIE

Three years after enjoying prosperity, he started having reverses. Bush fires destroyed the timber limits which cut off the raw material supply, the cost of manufacturing was rising in every department, and with government controls to hamper him he was unable to increase the price of the manufactured article. The results that followed were disastrous, and within a short time he was unable to meet his obligations, and the Sheriff was a frequent visitor.

His mining interests followed the same pattern and his entire holdings crumpled like a pack of cards. He was forced to seek employment and he found it difficult to get adjusted to having to work for someone else.

After a trying period he finally made up his mind to forget the past, and to do the best he could day by day. Soon he found himself enjoying life, and feeling better than he ever had.

FERTILIZERS CAN CUT FUTURE COST ON CROPS

Auburn, Ala. — Farmers used more fertilizer in 1954 than ever before. And they will probably use more next year than they did this year. But a lot depends on how it is used, says J. C. Lowery, API Extension agronomist. A high rate of fertilization on cash crops under acreage controls could increase production and make the control program more complex.

On the other hand, increasing the use of fertilizer on hay, pasture, and feed grain crops grown in rotation can help make lands not in cash crops profitable, Lowery explains. And, including legumes in the cropping program to leave a crop residue on the soil, along with good fertilization will work wonder

Alabama State officials and residents fled from Cahaba to escape disease, and resolutions adopted by persons interested in the development of the town to the effect that there was no serious threat to health failed to stop malaria.

A disease common among early settlers of Alabama was smallpox.

Because the population of early Alabama was scattered, there was no great epedimic of smallpox, at least until after the War Between the States; the Union troops were blamed for spreading the disease.

Mobile, Selma and Montgomery had rather severe epedemics of smallpox during Reconstruction Days, and no fewer than 250 persons died of the disease in Mobile in 1874-75.

Smallpox, after the epedemics of Reconstruction Days, continued to appear in all sections of Alabama as less severe epedemics until widespread vaccination virtually wiped out the disease.

Cholera, in addition to malaria and smallpox, was a disease that threatened early Alabama settlers. Cholera cases recorded in Alabama as early as the 1830's, and Mobile had an epedemic of the disease in 1849 and again in 1854.

In 1873 Huntsville was hit by a cholera epidemic when the disease was brought along the railroad from Memphis.

The death rate from cholera was high in Birmingham after that young city was infected with the disease by persons visiting from Huntsville after the latter had a cholera epidemic.

WORMS MAY ENDANGER CATTLE IN FEED LOT

Auburn, Alabama — Bringing cattle into the feed lot from open range makes them an easy target for worms.

And since many herds will have to be fed more than usual this winter, Robert Farquhar, assistant livestockman for the API Extension Service, urges farmers to protect their cattle against these pests. Animals treated for worms before cold weather sets in will have a much better chance of living until green grass appears next spring.

Farquhar recommends phenothiazine, adminstered at the rate of 20 grams per 100 pounds of live weight, as the best treatment. Sixty grams, or about 2 ounces, is the maximum dose for one animal. Phenothiazine can best be given as a drench.

Give Vaccine In Water

A new method of mass vaccination is being tried on many poultry farms.

Extension poultryman John Weeks said in Auburn this week that vaccines against Newcastle and bronchitis diseases are now put into chicks' drinking water.

Tests have shown the new labor-saving method to be effective, the expert said, and materials for this type vaccination will soon be available through regular poultry supply houses throughout the state.

The vaccines can be used on chicks from the time they are about a week to ten days old before vaccinating them.

The North Alabama towns of Florence, Tuscumbia, Decatur and Stevenson were especially hard hit by yellow fever epidemics in 1878.

LT. COL. DeRAMUS TAKES SPECIAL MANPOWER MANGEMENT COURSE

Washington, D. C.—Lt. Col. Thomas E. DeRamus, a native of Clanton, now serving as Chief, M S/P & C Div., Headquarters AFAC, in Tullahoma, Tenn., was among a group of 101 high ranking United States Air Force officers and civilians who completed the Air Force Manpower Management Training Program at the George Washington University here on November 5, 1954. These 90 officers, all colonels and lieutenant colonels, and 11 civilians have taken this special course designed for commanders as a part of the comprehensive program of improved management being emphasized throughout the Air Force. The program seeks to improve the executive abilities of Air Force officers by introducing them to techniques and principles practiced by American business and industry.

The Program, is under the direction of Professor Joe L. Jessup, Assistant Dean of the School of Government. The instructors are selected from the top levels of industry, government and the academic world.

Mr. Virgil K. Rowland of the Detroit Edison Company emphasized to these senior officers that a commander or manager cannot delegate to any one else his responsibility for managing and developing his subordinates. This responsibility, he said, represents the essential part of the job of any top executive.

The class graduating on Nov. 5th brought to 2,000 the total number who have completed the course at the George Washington University. Five hundred more are scheduled to take the program this academic year.

"HANDLE WITH CARE" IS TAG FOR RUG PADS

It may look like the busy homemaker is sweeping dirt under the rug.

But that's not the case, according to Miss Alice Peavy, APl Extension Service specialist in home furnishings. She explains that protective rug pads, sometimes made of loosely-pressed fibers, allows dirt reaching the pad to sift through.

But whatever their construction, says the expert, they are a big help in making wool or cotton rugs last, so pads need to be treated with a little care themselves. Miss Peavy suggests easy treatment for the under layer careful vacuuming, rather than sweeping or beating.

A rubber or latex underlay can be wiped off with a damp cloth and then dried before replacing.

The pad should be handled with care, but it isn't fragile. So, don't worry, if it does a little shedding, the specialist concludes.

If one side of a Venetian blind goes up faster than the other, pull first one cord, then the other, thru the adjuster loop until you get the proper action.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The five-year-old was munching on an apple (he eats an apple after each meal and often between meals) when he suddenly stopped and said:

"I've got another loose tooth. It won't help me bite this old apple."

He already has a gap in the front of his mouth where his first tooth came out several weeks ago, and he has rather looked forward to increasing the size of that gap by losing another tooth. He struggled with his apple a little while longer, and then he said:

"I've figured out why my tooth is loose—it didn't have anything to lean up against after the tooth next to it came out.

Loose and missing teeth aren't going to interfere with the five-year-old's enjoyment of Thanksgiving dinner. He already has made a canvass of the neighborhood to check on the menu planned at each household, and, although he hasn't said so, he probably hopes to get himself invited to dinner where the food will be most to his liking.

I was with him when his "poll" took him to the kitchen of the next door neighbor. She plans a traditional turkey for her Thanksgiving dinner, and she was making preparations for cooking the bird.

"Everything is ready, except that I don't have the nails," she said. "I'll have to pick them up at the hardware store when I go to town. I used my last two the other Sunday when I baked a big hen."

As usual, she had me puzzled, and, as usual, I asked her why.

"You don't know about nails?" she exclaimed. "I always put two eight-penny nails in my roaster when I cook chicken, turkey or roast beef. The nails make the meat much—more flavorful and tender, and it cooks much faster, too. But you must use new nails each time."

It sounds like black magic or some old cooking superstition, but if the next door neighbor says it works I know it must. She's never wrong about anything. Never.

I'm always learning things at the next door neighbor's house. For instance, she taught me a new trick to try when making pumpkin pie. She puts a layer of marshmellows on the bottom of her pie crust and pours the pumpkin filling over them, while the pie bakes, the marshmell's rise to the top. They are brown and they make a tasty marangue.

Pumpkin for the pie, this neighbor instructed me, should be cooked with the peeling on.

She washes the pumpkin, cuts it in pieces and cooks it without peeling it. When it is done, she puts it through a colander to remove the unwanted covering.

Here's her pie recipe which can be made with the marshmellow topping or can be covered with whipped cream before serving:

Beat 2 eggs slightly and add 1 and three-quarter cups pumpkin, three-quarter cup of honey, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, half-cup undiluted evaporated milk, ¼ cup orange juice and 1 teaspoon grated orange rind. Pour into pastry shell and bake in hot oven about 45 minutes.

Agricultural Census Is Now Under Way

Field work in the 1954 Census of Agriculture started locally on Nov. 8th when a force of enumerators started visiting every farm in this area, according to Field Supervisor, Victor S. Rice of Forkland.

The 1954 Census of Agriculture is the 16th in a series of nationwide farm enumerations, the first of which was conducted in 1840.

The Census of Agriculture is taken at five-year intervals to provide up to date information about more than five million farms which supply food and raw materials used by the people of the United States, now numbering about 162.5 million. The current census will yield information on the numbeir and size of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, Livestock production and inventories, selected farm facilities and equipment and selected farm expenditures.

Field Supervisor Rice emphasized that all information about individuals and their farm operation furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to provide sumary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages. The information on an individual report cannot be furnished to any one other than sworn census employees and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation or regulation.

New Dining Hall At Shocco

Pictured above is the new dining hall to be built at Shocco Springs, state Baptist Assembly, near Talladega. Baptists throughout the state will give special emphasis to this project on State Missions Day, Sunday, October 24, and an offering will be taken to secure the additional funds needed for this purpose. Shocco Springs has proven to be one of the greatest investments of Alabama Baptists. More than 6,000 people attended the assemblies at Shocco Springs during the past season. There were 97 professions of faith and more than 300 special decisions for Christian service. Every loyal Baptist will want to have part in this important program.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The first disease to reach epedemic stage in Alabama was yellow fever. The disease was brought to Fort Louis de la Mobile by a sailing vessel from Sante Domingo in 1704.

Yellow fever returned again and again to Mobile after it was first brought there in 1704, and there were 400 deaths from the disease in Mobile in 1819. The deaths probably represented a third of the population at the time.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

DIET IN PREGNANCY

During pregnancy, when the body is undergoing many changes, physically and chemically, special attention should be given to the diet to maintain proper balance for growing needs. In fact, diet is one of the most important factors in prenatal development.

The child obtains its food supply through the blood vessels connecting him to the mother. If the mother is deficient in essential materials for healthy building of bones and tissue and teeth, a weak, unhealthy baby may be the result. On the other hand, a diet supplying the necessary substances will foster the development of a healthy, well-formed baby.

An adequate intake of the essential foods is a must for the pregnant woman. These consist of milk, fruits, vegetables, meat, fish, poultry or cheese, eggs and finally breads, cereals, butter and vegetables.

A calorie is a measure of energy that can be produced by a certain amount of fod. While the calorie intake required for the pregnant woman varies with her height, weight and usual activity, a diet offering from 2,000 to 3,000 calories daily is considered acceptable for the average woman. Eating the essential foods will provide a more or less stable diet with all of the necessary calories containing essential proteins, carbohydrates, fats and vitamins in adequate amounts.

Regular elimination of the bowels and kidneys is most important. Their smooth functioning can be maintained by drinking large amounts of water and fruit juices. Eating fresh fruit is also recommended.

As soon as pregnancy is suspected a woman should consult her physician at once. Since there is a tendency toward anemia caused by a lack of iron during pregnancy, periodic blood counts are essential. Regular urinalyses, and other evaluations will guide the physician in supplementing any deficiencies that may exist and cut down the development of complications.

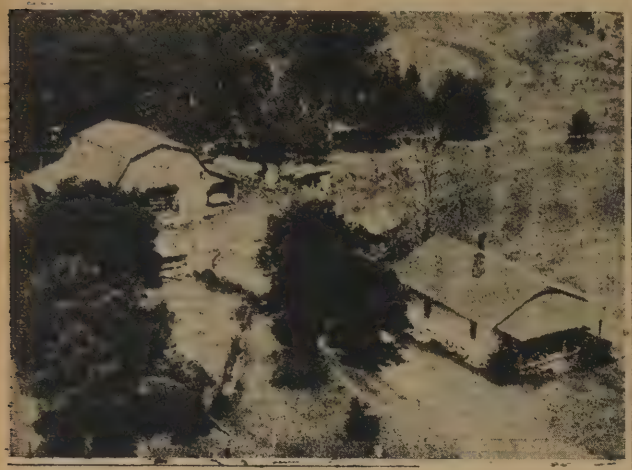
Whose Farm Is This?



Alabama Highlights

The yellow fever epidemic that hit north Alabama towns in 1878 appeared to have been spread by railroad travelers and the disease probably came into the state from Memphis. Return epidemics were suffered in some of the towns in 1883 and 1888.

During the War between the States it was learned definitely that yellow fever was not of Alabama origin. Blockading of Alabama ports by Union fleets cut out the cases of yellow fever.

Cases of yellow fever were reported in Alabama until this state's great native son, Dr. William Crawford Gorgas, made his discovery in Cuba that the disease was transmitted by a certain type mosquito. When the mosquito was eradicated the disease cleared up in Alabama.

Prior to the discovery by Dr. Gorgas that the mosquito was the carrier of yellow fever, it had seemed certain that the epidemics that were being experienced in Alabama were originating in the West Indies and being transmitted to the U. S. by passengers and crews aboard boats.

The home market for farm products in 1955 is expected to be equal to, or better than, this year's market, because of the present day stabilizing of business and industry.

'54 MAY BEAT '53 MARK IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

Montgomery, -- The state's 1954 traffic toll, continuing its nip-and-tuck battle with 1953 scores, last week fell again below corresponding previous-year levels

Acting Alabama Public Safety Director W. C. McKinney said the 1954 toll reached 689, one less than the score for the identical period of 1953. The 689 includes, he said, a current average of 2s deaths by which the officially-counted toll trails actual experience.

Radar arrests jumped again during the week, meanwhile. Highway Patrol Division Chief Tom Carlisle reported 38 motorists snared in scores of radar speed nets over the state. Twenty were arrested, the remaining 18 released with written warning citationes, for illegal speeds ranging from 48 to 78 miles per hour.

With the week's 38, the total number of drivers contacted by highway patrol radar crews passed the 1000 mark, Carlisle said. To date, 46 have been arrested, and 978 freed with warnings which affect driving privileges identically with arrests but carry no court appearance or fine.

Dip a dust mop in a mixture of two parts parraffin oil and one part turpentine to make it pick up dust instead of spreading it; a little oil of cedar will give the mixture a pleasant odor.

It seems as though our "Mystery Farms" have taken us down Verbena way--at least they did last week. As to where this week's farm is, your guess is as good as ours.

The above pictured "Mystery Farm" is a repeat. We ran it once a few weeks ago and no one recognized it. Since that time, however, quite a few folks have come in to tell us they had finally found it! Now's your chance. Tell us who's farm it is.

Five people won free passes to the beautiful Clanton Drive-In Theatre by guessing last week's "Mystery Farm" correctly. The only trouble was, Mr. Johnson didn't come in for his free phoptograph and we couldn't find out anything to tel you about his farm.

If the above farm belongs to you please come to the News office as soon as possible so we can get the necessary information about your farm. Too, we have a framed photograph of your farm to give to you.

Get in on the fun. All you have to do to win a pair of free passes to the Clanton Drive-In Theatre is to tell us who owns the "Mystery Farm." When your identification is correct you are automatically eligible for the Grand Prize drawing.

Come in before noon Saturday and win yourself two easy passe to the movie.

Last Week's "Mystery Farm" Identified As

The B. L. JOHNSON Farm

From all indications made by contestants guessing this "mystery farm" it belongs to Mr. B. L. Johnson of Route 2, Verbena. However, Mr. Johnson has not, to date, come in to give us any information on his farm. If Mr. Johnson does come in this week to pick up his free enlargement of the above photograph we'll get the facts on his farm and you will be able to find it on next week's "Mystery Farm" page.

Another week has gone by--What have we done? Let's all stop and take stock, Have we helped our Comrades, Have we helped a widow or an orphan of our departed comrades, Have we done any community service work? We all think we are to busy to do these things. Our departed Comrades were busy too but they had time to fight for your and my freedom in the great hour of need. They shed their blood on the battle fields so you and could enjoy the freedom we are enjoying today. Let's all resolve in our hearts to do more in the future than we have in the past. Let's take more time to make a better place to live. Let us not forget our youth of today and perhaps along the way we can do but one small thing that would save a child from being a juvenile delinquent. After these things have all been done I am sure we will be rewarded, for all your lost time on your job.

RECLAMATION RECORD NOTED BY SPECIALIST

Alabama still has about two million acres of idle, unprifitable land. Much of it could be reclaimed and put to work for the benefit of its farmer owners.

Lawrence Ennis, agricultural engineer for the API Extension Service, said this week that fall and winter months—when farmers and tractors aren't quite so busy with crops—provide the best opportunity for reclamation work. Fertile, undrained bottom lands and unbroken craggy hillsides can be turned into profitable acres for cash crops or permanent pastures.

Records show that more than half a million acres of wasteland have been reclaimed since the beginning of an Extension Service reclamation program in 1949. Ennis pointed out that the record does not cover work done this year, so the present number of reclaimed acres would be somewhat higher.

AUNT AMANTHA'S BIBLE

By Garry Montgomery

PROMPTLY at 10 o'clock, as usual, Aunt Amantha, who was 78, sat down to read a chapter in her big family Bible before she went to bed.

She lived alone in her old ancestral house and, when she'd finish a Bible chapter, closed the big book and locked windows and doors. But tonight she forgot these two things, because of a phone call.

It was her daughter-in-law to relate some of the latest gossip.

The conversation had irritated her, for it was so late. That is perhaps why Aunt Amantha left the Bible open, turned off the lights, and walked to her bedroom.

The other thing she forgot was to check and see if windows and doors were locked.

She fell asleep minutes after hitting the pillow.

A shadowy figure of a man slunk across her lawn, hesitating only at the double front windows. It was fairly dark here, for a street lamp was down aways, and the moon a mere slit of reflected light.

He pushed at the double windows, and smiled as they gave in. Carefully, being the expert he was, he pushed at them again, and they opened easily and without a squeeking.

This would be a cinch, he thought. The easiest job he'd ever done! The house, too, was dark, and he imagined no one would stand in his way, now!

The shadowy figure climbed stealthily into the house. His hand in a suitcoat pocket he brought out a long, slender flashlight that would give off a needle-like beam. In a moment the light pinpointed across the room, hit the table.

The light showed the opened Bible, a lamp on one side, a squat vase on the other. He pushed the light about the vase, saw the peculiar Jap figures, then pointed the beam into the vase opening and leaning over, peered inside.

His heart skipped a beat as he saw a roll of bills, done together by a thick rubberband. Eagerly he tipped the vase upside down and the roll fell out.

Nervously, he ripped off the band and counted the bills. There were eight $20 bills there! Hastily he shoved them into a suitcoat pocket and turned the vase upright again. Then he pointed the light at the opened Bible, saw the page headed Psalm 37. He saw marks on the margin pointing to Verse 17. Maybe it was a coincidence; but he was curious, and bent his head to read the verse marked by pencil.

It was curious that Aunt Amantha had marked this verse, to night.

He read: "A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked."

Suddenly a curious feeling overcame him. His spine tingled, a little. The verse seemed to strike him directly between the eyes! Somehow, he remembered his boyhood, his own mother, and dimly thought he recalled her Bible.

As suddenly, he grabbed at the bills in his pocket and, without bothering to put the rubber band around them again, stuffed them into the squat vase.

He found a drawer in the table, and in it a pencil and scratch pad. Beaming his light on the pad, he wrote: "Look your windows at night."

He laid the scribbled note over the opened Bible, then hurried back to the front windows which he locked securely.

Shortly he was creeping toward the front door, his beam of light showing the way so that he would not stumble. Finding the front door he tested the lock and then went out. He closed the door securely.

Better than the riches of many wicked . . . and the shadowy form of the man vanished into the blackness of the night.

Chilling winds and rain have done much toward dampening the fisherman's spirits and efforts on the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes during the past few days. However, the future looks bright. All summer long the lakes have been crystal clear, and now as the wintery rains begin we are bound to have some stained water or a change. That means prospects will be greatly improved around the banks and snags where in a small clear margin large hungry Bass lurk in search of insects and food

Few Fishermen have bothered to go out so far this week but those that have gone out in the unomfortable cold have brought in fair catches of Spotted Bass and Crappie. Maybe by the week-end conditions will be more inviting.

There are only three more weeks to go in the Alabama Power Company 1954 Fishing Contest. If you have let another year go by without winning one or more of the attractive awards you had better shake a leg. Hundreds of fishermen have already won Whopper Catcher certificates and if you would like to have one of these to grace the walls of your den or cottage be sure and weigh-in your best catch before November 30th.

Before the real cold weather last week, fishing was pretty good. Many nice strings got by without being checked in at the weigh-in stations but the following will show the results of the few that weighed-in.

Lake Mitchell—

Traywick's Landing, mouth of Yellowleaf Creek, below Lay Dam, near Clanton, reports: Bill Waites of Clanton, used a Buck's Fluffy Tail to hook a fighting 3 pound 14 ounce Smallmouth Bass. Fishing with Bill was S. I. Devaughn, C. A. Sherrod and F. C. Steen, all of Clanton, and their total catch was 26 Smallmouth Bass and 12 White Bass.

H. D. Ridley, Birmingham, weighted a Pecks Fly to the bottom and boated the creel limit on White Bass that ranged from 12 ounces to 1 pound 8 ounces each.

William C. Bracknell, Bessemer, caught a nice string on White Bass on a spinning rig and his largest weighed-in at 2 pounds 4 ounces.

Lake Jordan—

Coles Landing, below Mitchell Dam, near Rockford Ferry, reports: Lenard Spencer, one of Verbena's outstanding fishing guides, landed a whoppin' 6 pound 6 ounce Bass among several other nice ones last week, while using a spiner in the head waters of the lake.

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, Manager, Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, near Holtville, reports: Dr. M. P. Parker, Maxwell Air Force Base, had good luck spinning an Arbo Poper on Shoals Creek. Doc's string weighed-in at 10 pounds 8 ounces, and his largest Smallmouth Bass was 3 pounds 10 ounces.

C. P. Dick, Manager, Bonner's Fishing Camp, near Holtville, reports: S. W. Patton, Montgomery, tried a yellow River Runt in Sofkahatchee Creek and landed several Largemouth Bass weighing up to 4 pounds 12 ounces each.

Lake Martin—

B. J. Phillips Paint and Tackle Shop, Sylacauga, reports: Cecil Ellison, Sylacauga, used his spinning rig with a top water Injured Minnow near Davis' Landing on Kowaliga Creek and boated a 5 pound Smallmouth Bass without the aid of a landing net. Cecil complied with the contest rules by sending in a snap of his Smallmouth Bass. It's a handsome fish indeed. Andy Matchan, the Sylacauga taxidermist, sends a word that his fish will be mounted. The next time that you are in Sylacauga be sure to go by Andy's Barber Shop and see Andy's collection of mounted fish. He is a fisherman of the old school and does about the best job of fish mounting that you will ever see.

Lake Yates—

H. E. Dopson's Store, Red Hill Community, reports: Hershal Warren, Tallassee, tried the upper waters of Lake Yates with a Coosa Nugget and had very good luck. Hershall's string included White Bass weighing up to 2 pounds 12 ounces each

CHIEF ALAPOOI SAYS: If you go out in a boat during the cold months ahead, heed the bad weather signs and be extra careful on windy days. Those short choppy waves can be very dangerous.

By following the best practices in breeding, nutrition, and disease control, a poultryman can get his broilers ready for market in about 72 days.

Heavy cattle slaughter this year will probably result in slightly fewer animals on farms by January, according to a Department of Agriculture report.

Preperation For Crises

"It shall be given you in that same hour." Matthew 10:19

Over the entrance of the immense old Military Supply Depot in Jeffersonville, Indiana, these words arrest the attention of the visitor: "In Peace Prepare For War". In the personal experience of the Christian man or woman the thought expressed by that sentence is in complete reverse, and should be: "In War Prepare For Peace".

The Christian life is a constant conflict. True believers need not expect to be "carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease", as the old song goes. General Stonewall Jackson was a soldier in every sense. When fatally wounded on the battlefield, his last words were, "Let us pass over the river and rest under the shade of the trees."

From the pen of the Apostle comes the eloquent admonition: "Put on the whole armor of God. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God".

For every loyal Christian the fight is on, and there is no escape from struggle. His one inspiring hope is that some day he will win the victory, and eternal rest will be his reward. But how is he to meet the enemy in the over-recurring crises? Here is the answer: "It shall be given you in that same hour". That means of course that when the Devil is to be met, the Captain of your salvation will be there, and will be your stay and strength. The way to conquest may not be given until the acute situation arises, but you may be sure that He will be at hand for your deliverance. Then why should one fume and fret and worry as to what the sealed envelope contains? It is enough to know that He knows all, and will be ready for the occasion. We are given the guaranteed hope that all will be well, and that deliverance and rest will ensue.

We need not worry about impending crises, being assured that the Spirit of God will supply every need.

"The soul that on Jesus has leaned for repose,
I will not, I will not desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake".

Mayfield To Take Supreme Court Seat Nov. 17

While it is not generally recognized over the state of Ala., James Mayfield, Tuscaloosa attorney and law teacher at the University of Alabama, will take his seat at a member of the Supreme Court of Alabama at 10:00 A. M., November 17.

Young Mayfield defeated the incumbent, Mr. Justice Preston C. Clayton by fifty-two thousand votes, in what seasoned observers called the most hotly contested judicial race in recent years.

Judge Clayton was appointed to the vacancy created by the death of Judge Joel B. Brown by Governor Gordon Persons.

Mr. Mayfield is the son of the late Supreme Court Justice, James Mayfield, and Susan Martin Mayfield of Tuscaloosa, Alabama. The late justice Mayfield wrote the Code of Alabama of 1907 and 1923 and also a seven volume edition known as "Mayfield's Digest".

Mr. Mayfield received his education at the University of Alabama and the University of London. He holds an A.B. and L.L.B. degrees, and is also a graduate of the Judge Advocate School of the University of Michigan. He was admitted to practice in 1934, and is a member of the Bar of the State of Alabama, U. S. Treasury Department, and the United States Supreme Court. He has been on the University of Alabama Law School Faculty since 1946.

During World war II he served in the Southwest Pacific with the 19th Army Bombardment Group which won the Presidential Citation with Oak Leaf Clusters. He enlisted as a private shortly after Pearl Harbor and rose to the rank of Colonel.

Mayfield has been an active member of the State Democratic Executive Committee for many years. He served as temporary chairman at that body during the now famous States Rights Controversy of 1951. He has also served the Committee Parliamentarian for the last four years and is now Chairman of the sub-committee for the revision of the State election laws and the rules of the State Democratic Committee. He was formerly vice-chairman of the State Democratic Finance Committee, Assistant Attorney General of Alabama, National College Director of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, a Shriner, and first president of Tuscaloosa Optimist Club.

He was appointed Conciliation Commissioner for the Northern District of Alabama by President Roosevelt. The new Justice Mayfield was born in Montgomery, Ala. He is forty-three years old. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon social fraternity, Phi Delta Phi Legal fraternity and an Honorary member of Sigma Delta Kappa Legal Order.

Chief Justice J. Ed Livingston will administer the oath of office to Justice Mayfield at 10:00 A.M., Wednesday, Nov. 17, in the Supreme Court Building in Montgomery.

Mayfield is generally considered a liberal, but is also known as a 'strict constitutionalist.' After his investiture at the Supreme Court, a luncheon will be held in Justice Mayfield's honor at the Jefferson Davis Hotel.

1955 Dodge Introduces An Advanced Concept In Design

Detroit. The 1955 Dodge passenger car line, an advanced concept in automotive body design, will be introduced this week in dealer's showrooms across the nation.

William C. Newberg, Dodge Pres., explained that car stylists have blended aircraft sleekness and power into "a design of refreshing beauty".

He revealed that Dodge engineers have incorporated over 100 structural and mechanical innovations in the longer, lower, and wider 1955 line. He said all four-door sedans have a distinct touch of hardtop styling.

Offering three series — the new and luxurious Custom Royal, the richly appointed Royal and the classic Coronet — the '55 Dodge has a built-in look of action, resulting from its swept back designing.

Performance to bear out the air-slicing swiftness in styling is provided by a wide choice of engines, the "Get-Away Six developing 123 horsepower, the all new Red Ram V-8 rated at 175 horsepower, the Super Red Ram V-8 at 183 horsepower, and the super-powered Super Red Ram V-8 at 193 horsepower.

Newberg announced another automotive first for Dodge in the introduction of three-tone combinations on Dodge Lancer hardtop and convertible models. These multiple tone paints accent the flair styling and permit exciting new combinations in exterior color design.

Inside, the 1955 Dodge control panel can be compared to an airplane pilot's flight control panel. Dials are placed in a row before the driver and clustered under an "eyebrow" to reduce glare.

The wider interior is flair-fashioned in harmonious color blends. Easily-cleaned Cordagrain is combined with exclusive double-patterned Jacquard seat cloths. Door panels are dramatically decorated with two-tone color designs and chrome, complimenting the new Dodge upholstery and trim.

R. C. Somerville, Dodge vice-pres. in charge of sales, pointed out that along the new Dodge engines, the gear selector lever for PowerFlite transmission will share the spotlight as a major mechanical innovation.

The Flite Control Lever is mounted on the control panel. Conveniently located to the right of the steering wheel, the lever glides easily into each driving range.

Somerville revealed that the Custom Royal series incorporates a Super Red Ram V-8 engine of 183 horsepower and compression ratio of 7.6 to 1.

A super-powered Super Red Ram V-8 develops 193 horsepower thru use of a four-barreled carburetor and dual exhaust system.

The Dodge V-8 engine last year virtually rewrote the record books during A. A. A. test runs at Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, when Dodge established 196 new stock car marks. The 1955 version achieves even greater power and acceleration thru increased displacement and improved "breathing" due to more efficient fuel combustion.

Royal and Coronet series have a completely new Red Ram V-8 engine of 175 horsepower. A short stroke, overhead valve engine of 270 cubic inch displacement, it is capable of sustained high torque over a wide speed range, giving flashing acceleration and instant response at all speeds. Higher compression ratio of 7.6 to 1 permits use of regular grade fuel.

In addition, a Dodge "Get-Away Six" engine, with horsepower rated at 123, is available on the Coronet series. This dependable engine now boasts increased carburetion thru use of a new Dual-downdraft carburetor and intake manifold as standard equipment together with increased compresion ratios.

A choice of two transmissions includes the fully automatic Power-Flite drive with Dodge's "seat" gear for safe passing, and standard easy-shift transmission with or without overdrive.

Somerville also announced that the new "rudder bar" power brake pedal and clutch pedal (with standard transmission) have been suspended from under the control panel. This provides more efficient driving operation and eliminates the possibility of road dust and dirt entering holes in in the floor mat.

In addition, position of the brake pedal provides an extra margin of safety. Stopping time is reduced because the driver has less distance to move his foot from accelerator to brake.

Optional new features on the 1955 Dodge line include power brakes, power-controlled seats, power window lifts, and a back seat hi-fidelity radio speaker. Tubeless tires are standard equipment for the first time on all models. This, together with the Dodge safety rims, make a great twin safety feature.

A more comfortable and stable ride is assured by new wide-leaf rear springs which offer a significant increase in resistance to body roll on turns. Front suspension is roller joint with Oriflow ride control.

Thirteen colors are available, including 16 two-tone paint combinations and the first three-tone combinations in the industry.

Of the 14 models being introduced, three are in luxurious, all-new Custom Royal series. They are the Custom Royal Lancer hardtop, the Custom Royal Lancer convertible and four door sedan.

The Royal series includes a Royal Lancer hardtop, four-door sedan and Sierra four-door station wagon in either six or eight passenger type.

The Coronet series offers a Coronet Lancer hardtop, four-door sedan and Suburban two-door and four-door station wagons with V-8 engine. Coronet four-door sedan, two-door sedan, and Suburban two door and four-door station wagons are available with six-cylinder engine.

Patrolmen In Ala. Need To Be 3-In-1

Alabama has one traffic law enforcement officer for every 300 miles of rural public road. A nine-month shows an average of 206 patrolmen Alabama Highway Patrol activities on duty daily, working mostly in pairs and spread around the clock. There are 18,270 miles of paved highway in Alabama, 42,640 unimproved.

A patrolman averaged 114 vehicle miles per day. At that rate, it would require almost three days to make one trip over his entire share of road.

Make Sure Of All Things; World Peace? By Whom

Peace, world peace, is what most of us talk about and almost all of desire, but only a very few, comparatively speaking, actually know how, when, and by whom it will come.

Down through the ages men have sought peace through various means, through leagues, pacts, conference tables and wars, but all to no avail. And today, despite our strenuous efforts and know-how, world peace appears no nearer solution than it ever has been. Just why is this?

The Bible, God's Word of Truth, remarkably tells us why. In fact, it foretells with amazing accuracy the moods and disposition of political ambassadors as they search for peace. For example, at Isaiah 33:7 it says: "The ambassadors of peace shall weep bitterly." This is because of the failure of their peace efforts, of course. Something further, it tells us, that the propoganda in behalf of peace through world organizations and political nations is false. God through his prophet Jeremiah calls this to our attention, saying: "From the prophet even unto the priest every one dealeth falsely. They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace." Jer. 6:13, 14.

Has not this been true? Have not both the religious and political prophets built the hopes of the people for peace, so much so that failure to bring it has caused many to doubt and lose faith? People today are saying the exact words that the prophet Jeremiah said they would; "We have looked for peace, but no good came; and for a time of health, and behold trouble!" Has it not been that way especialy since 1914? World Wars I and II were to be wars to end all wars, to make the world safe for democracy and to usher in the "four freedoms." The League of Nations and the United Nations were to maintain the peace and preserve the harmony of the world. But what happened? Mussolini and Hitler changed the world scene shortly after World War I and now the Russian and Chinese rulers are dampening the hopes of the people. Jer. 8:15.

In view of these facts, no doubt you have wondered why men have been so fruitless in their efforts to bring about world peace. The Bible tells us why. At Revelation 12:12 (NW) it exposes the one responsible for the world woes, which expose shows why men have been helpless to compete with world problems. Note what it says: "Woe for the earth and for the sea (the restless masses of humanity), because the Devil has come down to you, having great anger, knowing he has a short period of time." There is your answer. Satan the Devil, invisible to and mightier than man, is responsible for world chaos, and not God.

These woes are bound to increase upon mankind until God brings to an end Satan the Devil and all his wicked supporters in the battle of Armageddon. This he promises he will do shortly. Paul helps us to appreciate this fact by saying: "For his part, the God who gives peace will crush Satan under your feet shortly."

After this takes place, there will be world peace; peace among all families of the earth, peace between man and animals, peace between man and God. And for how long? The psalmist answers: "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth." (Ps. 72:7). So we ask the question again, World peace—by whom? By God, in his way and shortly.

District Judges Look At Counties This Week

Three judges in each of Alabama's four Extension districts are in the counties this week, evaluating county winners in the Rural Community Improvement Program.

District judging will be over Dec 2, and farm and home developments made by the four top communities will be judged for state honors Dec 7-10.

Representatives from the winning community in each county will attend a special recognition meeting in Birmingham Dec. 13, after the state winner is selected. There, they will tour the city's industries and attend a banquet given in their honor.

NEW HOME MAKERS OF AMERICA HOLD THIRD DISTRICT MEETING

The Third District meeting for the New Home Makers of America was held at the Chilton County Training School on November 5, 1954. The adviser for the Chilton County Chapter of New Home Makers worked untiringly with her girls to make everything convenient and comfortable for the visiting Chapters and their advisers. This meeting served as a great inspiration to all who attended the meeting. The Theme was "Improving Home and Family Living Through Wholesome Recreational Activities." The visiting chapters were received with hearties greeting from our County Superintendent of Education, Mr. J. H. Boockhout. In his expressions during the opening of the meeting, it was outlined very clearly that more means, more work, more facilities, would be forth coming for the development of Chilton County citizens in general. The superintendent's address was very inspirational to our group at home as well as the visiting groups.

We, the members of the New Home Makers and adviser, wish to take this opportune time to express our appreciation to our County Superintendent for his hearty cooperation in making our meeting a real success.

We also wish to expres our appreciation to our Principal, Mr. Sledge; our Vocational Teacher, Mr. John Sims, other members of the faculty, and all students who took part in making our meeting a success.

We have not words to express our appreciation to the local officials of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. for their cooperation in furnishing drinks to add to the refreshing side of the meeting.

The different phases of the meeting were, without a doubt, so very educational in every sense of the word. It seemed to have served as the first step in getting off to a good start for American Education Week which was in progress. The meeting was well attended There were 240 New Home Makers, Advisers, and visitors attending the meeting.

Your presence did spell for us, a Greater Step Up The Ladder Of Public Relations.

LEGAL NOTICES

We are pleased to submit to the people of Clanton through your paper the report of the Auditor of our records and books for the year ending Sept. 30, 1954. Since this report was made up, we have made the second payment on our Gas System of $10,000 with interest, reducing the debt to $520,000.

You will notice also we have reduced the general debt $12,000 during this year, and added to our worth in city owned property. $22,286.83.

We have 1238 gas customers, and 1511 water customers. Our water system has been in operation for 40 years, and our gas system not quite four years, and we have almost as many gas connections as we have water connections. The people will appreciate the gas and water systems more and more as time passes, and their support of each system will be more loyal and appreciative, than now. I feel that we have had a successful year.

Respectfully,

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Jessamine S. Burgess, Arthur, North Dakota: I remember when General U. S. Grant came to Bismarck, Dakota Territory when the first corner stone of the Capitol was laid in 1883 and dedicated it.

The former President was an elderly, distinguished-looking gentleman with a white beard. He spoke briefly and smiled at us. My mother hurried us children up to look at him and said, "Look, children and always remember, you have seen General Grant!"

We dutifully gazed and then turned our attention to a more familiar figure, Sitting Bull, with a group of other Indians who had surrendered to the U. S. Government five years after the Custer massacre.

"The Great White Mother," Queen Victoria (Canada) had requested them to leave her domain and they returned to Dakota after surrendering and were enroute to the Standing Rock Reservation at Fort Yates. They added quite a bit of local color to the great celebration.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The problem of keeping healthy in pioneer days in Alabama was not as great as it is today. That was because the people lived, normally, so far apart that communicable diseases were not so easily spread and unsanitary conditions were not the menace to large numbers as they are today.

Among the early settlers of Alabama malaria was prevalent, and it was reported that the beginning of the decline of the town of St. Stephens came as a result of a severe attack of the fever.

VOLUME XXXII — CLANTON, ALABAMA — THURSDAY, NOV. 25, 1954 — NUMBER 51

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

This week brings the day when all America bows down to God in thankfulness and appreciation for the things we have, the things we are, and the things we hope to be. There is just one little thing we could never understand—why are we so thankful on but one day each year when there are 364 other days when we receive the same blessings, protection and guidance? We believe that each of the 365 days on our calendar is just as important and it's not that we are trying to discourage the observance of Thanksgiving but rather that we think that thanks should be given on all th other days as well. Let's count our blessings every day in the year.

Looks like bad luck is dogging the steps, or should we say wheels, of Ross Robinson. Last Friday night while driving he hit a mule and did considerable damage to the family car and then Saturday just before noon, he hit a car at the intersection of Fourth Street and First Ave. North. Martins ambulance rushed him to Central Alabama Hospital but he was released after a short stay. Glad he wasn't seriously hurt.

Read where a fellow wouldn't hire anything but married men to work for him. He said he had found that married men didn't get so upset when he yelled at them.

Attractive Janice Freeland, our popular Co. Welfare director, was suggesting this week that we give the Pilots a plug in their drive for the Christmas Seal Sale. Those little stamps have already gone out and the balance is up to you. What's a lousy buck when someone's life is concerned? That is exactly what your contribution may mean—the saving of someones life. If you haven't answered that most important letter with the Christmas Seals do so at once. The Pilots need to raise $1500.00 to carry on the work in Chilton County for the coming year. It will help buy medicine for T. B. patients being treated in their own homes. Come on. Be a sport and send in your contribution before you finish reading this column. There is nothing else worth reading in it anyhow.

Rev. Marvin K. Vickers never told us this but we did read where it happened to another preacher. Seems the preacher was calling on a member of his church. They were sitting in the parlor when one of the small boys came running in carrying a dead rat. "Don't worry Mommy, it's dead. We bashed him, and beat him until—" and noticing the minister for the first time, he added, "until God called him home."

Matthew Berkley came in today and asked us to thank all the property owners who so readily signed the petition he got up asking for widening and paving of the old Montgomery - Birmingham highway. Eighty feet was needed before the proper work could be done and Matthew said that all property owners cooperated fully in completing the petition. He just wanted all to know that he really appreciated them backing him up in the undertaking.

Well, let us leave you with this thought: During this wonderful Thanksgiving week, no matter what troubles you have—what troubles you think you have—or what may befall you on the morrow, there are tens of millions in this old troubled world who would gladly trade places with you and no questions asked. And finding how paltry your troubles really were, would think they were in Paradise.

Board Of Education Office To Close

The offices of the County Board of Education will be closed both Thursday and Friday in observance of Thanksgiving. However, the office will be open on Saturday morning from 8 until 12 noon.

Thorsby Churches Will Unite For Thanksgiving Service

Union Thanksgiving services will be held at 10 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25 at the Baptist Church. All four churches will take part. Russell Boggs of the Lutheran Church will deliver the Thanksgiving sermon. Mrs. Irene Peterson of the Congregational Church will have charge of the choir, which will be made up of voices from the four churches. PATTERSON STORY TO BE IN NATIONAL PUBLICATION

John M. Patterson, Attorney General-elect of Alabama, today warned that the vultures who operated the now-padlocked honky-tonks and gambling houses in Phenix City haven't surrendered.

They expect to start up again when the heat is off, he declares in the current (Nov. 27) issue of the Saturday Evening Post, where he explains it will be his job to keep them out.

His article entitled, "I'll Get the Gangs That Killed My Father!" tells that the task will be easy. . . if he receives the help of the Alabama Legislature and incoming Governor James E. Folsom. Without their cooperation, he adds, it will be all sweat and strain.

In the magazine story, written in collaboration with Furman Bisher says that Phenix City was doing a $100,000,000 annual trade in crime and vice when his father, Albert L. Patterson began a one-man clean-up campaign.

It is reported that the mobsters knew they were licked when the elder Patterson, certified last June 10 as the Democratic Party's nominee for Attorney General, agreed, on June 18, to appear before a Jefferson County jury and tell what he knew. That night he was shot down in cold blood.

The younger Patterson pledges to carry on his father's crusade, formulating a sound program of law enforcement throughout the state, making it a decent, law-abiding place to live.

Meanwhile, he carries a pistol at all times, a bodyguard is assigned to him 24 hours a day, other guards stand watch on his office and home, and his two children have been sent to another part of the state for safety.

"When night comes," Patterson reports, "every blind in the house is drawn. We live the way the Jews lived in Nazi Germany. That's the personal side of the problem."

Cotton Ginning Off Seventy-Five Per Cent In 1954

The cotton crop of 1954 is running about 75 per cent under the 1953 crop according to the District Supervisor of the Census in Chilton County.

Census reports show that 7151 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the 1954 crop prior to November 1st, as compared with 10446 bales for the crop of 1953.

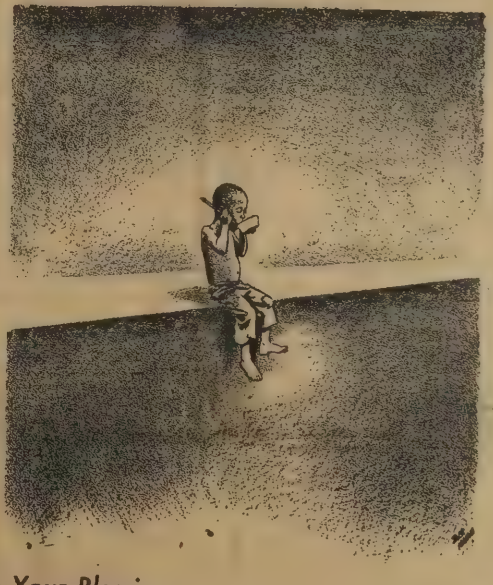
Thanksgiving Dinner, 1954



Count Your Blessings-

Maybe you, as an American Citizen, are a little tired of hearing how lucky you are. Sure, you're thankful you live in a democracy, in a strong, rich country where there's plenty for all, where freedom is an everyay thing, not a forbidden idea to be whispered at night . . . but how much does "luck" have to do with it?

It wasn't luck that brought the Pilgrim Fathers to America, it was their stubborn determination to find a better life . . . it wasn't luck that won the American Revolution, it was bitter fighting and high ideals . . . it wasn't luck that turned the struggling young country into the richest and most powerful on earth, it was hard work and far-seeing vision.

Above all, it wasn't luck that preserved a democracy for almost two hundred world shaking years. It wasn't luck that made the "American Way of Life" synonymous with a high standard of free, decent living. Things like that don't happen by luck. They happen because men make them happen—because men who believe in freedom, democracy, and a good way of life, work, fight and die for them.

After you've enjoyed your Thanksgiving dinner, you'll probably feel like a snooze. What's wrong with a nap? Nothing—if it's the honest rest of the man who is wide awake when he is awake, who realizes that his blessings, as an American, are not only his heritage, but his charge, that his "luck", hard fought and hard won, can be easily lost.

Otherwise, what's wrong with a nap? Let's not have to learn!!

Plenty Of Water Ups Farm Profits

Auburn, Ala.—Experience, has revealed that an automatic pressure water system is one way the farmer can most profitable use electricity. Greater and more efficient productivity is possible with such a system. With plenty of water in the barn, poultry house, and other buildings, livestock and poultry profits can be increased, says W. T. Cox, API Extension engineer.

Plenty of fresh, clean water increases the output of milk, eggs, and meat. "Just consider how much water is in those products," the expert says.

Milk is 87 per cent water. When drinking cups attached to stalls, the cows drank 18 per cent more water, and both milk and butterfat yields went up.

An egg is 65 per cent water. Plenty of water in the henhouse means more and larger eggs and healthier birds.

Beef cattle and hogs need plenty of fresh water too. The more they drink the faster they fatten.

In making plans for your water system, provide for an adequate supply to meet future as well as present needs, the expert concludes.

COSTLY ACCIDENTS—

Chilton County's accident record for the past week has been high. The cost in human suffering has been horrible.

All accidents are preventable 'tis true, but it is that split second of either carlessness or thoughtlessness that causes so much pain and suffering.

Just ahead of us are the holidays when we human beings are prone to let our hair down and be more careless, thoughtless, reckless, or whatever you may wish to call it. Let that not happen to you. Let all of us profit by the experiences of others the past week in Chilton County and take heed.

A moment of carelessness can cost us months of suffering and needless expenses in hospital and doctor bills. Be careful.

THE COLLEGE—

This is the college season when a number of Chilton County boys and girls are away from home for the purpose of beginning, or continuing, their college studies. They are fortunate individuals when compared with those who for a variety of reasons, are unable to continue their educational training.

While the college student is fortunate in many respects, one must not overlook the unfortunate fact that many students are utterly unprepared for life away from home or for the work which must be done if a college course is to be, in any sense, profitable.

There are certain qualifications necessary to the success of a college student, but they are also necessary to the success of other individuals as well. These include an understanding of the use of money, the use of time, the value of good health, the ability to get along with people and the possession of ideals.

For some reason, there seems to be a general recognition of the fact that many students, upon entering their college work, are often ill-prepared from a scholastic standpoint. Some of them are not trained in the processes of study and do not know how to apply their time to the pursuit of knowledge. Others, better prepared at home and in schools, are in a position to take full advantage of the opportunity that is before them.

IT'S MY OPINION

It has recently been brought to our attention and been made a thing of discussion that aggressiveness is what a newspapor should base it's writing on.

It has long been thought by us that aggressive in the every day sense of the word is misused, and according to Mr. Webster it is. He says aggressiveness means to "unjustly attack something." If it were used in that sense then it would be wrong for a good newspaper to base its writings and ideas on it.

But, in the everyday sense of the word as most folks use it, it means to "go after something" or "be forward in your actions." Even this, to our way of thinking, is not entirely what a newspaper should base its writings on.

A newspaper should base its policy and ideals on the truth. The truth, no matter how unglamorous or unpolished, to let the public decide on the matter themselves.

The individual newspaper should take stands and sides only through its editorials. That is the place for any ideas or opinions the editor or publisher might have. As for the news stories they should be presented through the columns in an open and unbiased manner particularly when a decision of the people is at hand. Even the editorials of the paper should not slander or abuse anyone. A good newspaper takes the side it thinks right and boosts that side through its editorials, but does not tear down the opponents argument by defacing the character of any individual or any organization. That is abusing the privilege of the free press. The freedom of the press is based on truth no matter what side you're on, even if both are right, the truth should be carried throughout the situation.

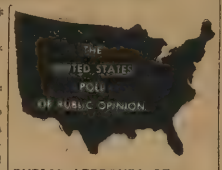
A vital decision or one that requires the vote of the citizens should be put before the people, in facts and figures to let them decide for themselves what would be the best thing for them. If a party or organization truly stands for the good of the people then it will not try to shove its own ideas on the matter down the public's throat, but will give them a chance to decide for themselves, as they were given the ability to do.

A stand on a decision of the people is what a newspaper is for, but it should be a noble stand and one, even though it be a stand that loses, to be proud of, not because it won or lost, but because it believed in what it stood up for.

A good newspaper is one that is not domineering and not aggressive to the point of dominance. When it reaches such a point, it ceases to meet the needs and serve all peoples. It presents its side in every detail, but does not tear down the ranks of the other side to gain its own ends. If it does, it is dominating the people and trying to tell them how to chose instead of giving them the true facts and leting them make their own choice.

The truth is what the newspaper stands on, the very foundation of the American Press is that it presents the truth so that the people can judge. It doesn't dress it up nor strip it down, it presents the true story for the people to go by for their decision.

The good newspaper is not for the politicians' or the publishers' gain, it is for the people; to present them with the facts and figures and to give them the opportunity to conclude a just and fair opinion. This is the belief of every good newspaperman and a belief that will continue to make the American Press what it is today, and has been in the past. A free press and one to be proud of, is part of the makeup of a proud, free nation. We will keep both as long as we present the truth, and do not abuse or slander the works of others and make a mockery of the truth.



PUBLIC APPROVES OF POLICE FORCE 3 TO 1

Princeton, New Jersey—Rank and file citizens across the U.S.A. approve of the way their local police force is handling its job.

This was the finding of a nation-wide United States Poll survey just completed.

73 out of every 100 adults questioned in the survey personally told staff reporters that they approved of the way their local police force is handling its job.

Those who said this outnumbered by a margin of better than 3 to 1 those who expressed disaproval.

These were the findings when United States Poll staff reporters put the following question to a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way the police force in your community is handling its job?"

NATIONWIDE RESULTS

Approve	73%
Disapprove	23
No Opinion	4

Highlighting today's survey results are the following findings:

1. Residents of the nation's big gest cities—those with 100,000 or more people—were found to be somewhat more critical of the work of their local police force than were their smaller-town neighbors.

In these big cities—places like New York City, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Baltimore, Detroit, Atlanta, and Cleveland—about one in three (32 per cent) say they disapprove of the work of their local police force.

But even in the nation's biggest cities, those who approve outnumber those who disapprove by a margin of nearly 2 to 1.

2. Greatest degree of satisfaction with their police force is found among the nation's rural residents, where those who approve of their local police force outnumber those who disapprove by a margin of better than 4 to 1.

3. And people in communities with populations between 2,500 and 100,000 approve of the work of their local force by a margin of better than 3 to 1.

Sentiment by size of community:

	100,000 & over	2,500 to 100,000	Rural areas
Approve	62%	74	80
Disapprove	32%	22	17
No opinion	6%	3	3

The need for more police, the need for more foot police, better handling of traffic and traffic enforcement, more police at night, and the halting of juvenile delinquency were the principal suggestions offered by citizens across the nation for improving the work of their local police force.

Taking the police out of politics, raising police pay, the need for more patrol cars, better training for their local police, better handling of parking, and being more courteous and friendly were suggestions that received fewer mentions.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

The teacher and the little boy were the only ones in Sunday School Class that day. The teacher said to Johnny, "Well John, Nobody can say we aren't in a class by ourselves can they?"

Last week we had entirely too many accidents around our county. Some were bad and some were worse. We will say for the automobile drivers however, they didn't cause most of the accident. The ones we had, however bad, were just honest accidents. They were bad it's true, but the motorist, for a change, was in the clear. We congratulate them, we hope we're improving in our "slaughter on the highways".

We'll just have to give ole Herman Lecroy (Mr. to us) credit for the fine toyland he has this year. For a while there we were getting a lotta "fresh out" signals from them, but such is not the case this season. He has the finest furnished store we have ever seen him with. We hope he and Hoover both profited by their recent transaction.

Speaking of Hoover (Armstrong that is, he has recently purchased begged, borrowed or something the Mims Taxi Company formerly owned and operated by Jonah Mims. Seems Mr. Jonah is going into business out of town. Boy, this Hoover is really spreading out isn't he? We wish Jonah a whale of a good business and hope Hoover has happy customers.

Not too bad a year for pecans this year, in spite of the bad weather season we went through. The wife has been hollering for some good old-fashioned pecans and we don't know where to get any. Well, anyone can buy them. Where we used to call home we had about six or eight good yielding trees, but now it seems all we have is a pore little ole Mamosa tree in the yard and they just don't get pecans off of them no more. Course we could eat those mosabeans you get from them but nobody, as yet, has said they were good for your constitution or anything else. People have been throwing an occasional acorn in the front yard from passing cars so maybe we'll just wait and see if anything develops. Can't ever tell, maybe in three or four seasons we'll be having pecans for breakfast. Some folks had rather have the same old eggs and sausage, but we have gotten tired of that. And as the squirrels always say, "each to his own nutty ideas."

Hear about the guy who's campaign was based on dishonesty, unfairness, and "furthermore I will not be courteous in my duties nor will I think too much of the general public in general". He was elected and when one of the local Rubes was asked why he said, "well, the last feller running for that office promised us all the good things and some of the better things and just a smidgeon of the impossible things. Well the way it turned out he wasn't worth a dang, to the office or the people. I reckon the folks thought they couldn't be foled twice in the same office. Besides he couldn't be no worse than the last one. I reckon the real reason was though, that some of the folks around these parts ain't to good at figurin'".

Seo where they have a new use for our favorite of fruits, the peach. Seems it wasn't enough just using them for eating, now they're using them to demonstrate electric shavers. We never new peaches grew whiskers like a man, but that's what they're using anyhow. Might be we just never saw a mature peach, all we ever saw just had a little fuzz on them.

It is truly wise to practice what we preach especially if we preach well.

The big men in high places may not have made a success by making mistakes, but we'll bet any of them they made plenty of them getting there.

You know what we think? We think everyone will have something to be thankful this Thanksgiving except the turkey. If there's a turkey heaven, then they all should go there because old Tom sure makes people happier around this time of year.

Hog flu season will soon be here. Remember that breeding a sow during an attack of flu is usually a waste of time.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physicians as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ACCIDENTS TO BABIES

Because babies are curious little people, in addition to being great imitators, they are constantly involved in accidents which may prove serious.

A baby's curiosity seems best satisfied by popping any loose object within reach into his mouth. Thus the swallowing of foreign objects by children is a preventable accident if parents were less careless. This is not a deliberate carelessness, but one rather of thoughtlessness.

Tacks, bright-headed straight pins, nails, screws and other articles of hardware are frequently swallowed by children. Peanuts should never be within reach of a child under two. Small toys, such as whistles and tiny animals, are dangerous objects to lie within reach of the child. This is true of buttons, beads and jewelry, and coins.

Since these accidents can be prevented, caution should be exercised in the preparation of foods for children, invalids and aged persons. For example, they should not contain such things as bone, watermelon seeds, orange seeds, lemon seeds, grape seeds or cherry, plum, prune or peach pits or the stems of fruit.

If a child or an adult swallows a foreign object, do not get excited, and don't ask questions that will call for his effort to make an answer. Don't pound the person on the back. Call your physician at once even though the victim seems to recover, so that an x-ray film can be made.

Always remember the incident and that it can be reported to your physician, even years later. The accident may have a definite influence on the condition under investigation.

THRILLS TO TEST THE STRONGEST NERVES!

Make Sure of All Things-

THE HOPE OF A NEW EARTH

Would you not like to see a better world? A world free from the greed, the corruption and the suffering that characterize the present one? Would it not bring true comfort to have a real basis for hoping for such a better world? Surely it would.

There is a sound basis for hoping to see a better world because there is a God in heaven even as all nature testifies. And from His Word, the Bible, we learn that he is a loving, just, all-seeing and all-powerful God. That being so, we can rest assured that he takes note of present conditions and therefore is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them all mine indignation, even all my fierce anger; for all of my jealousy." (Zeph. 3:8, AS) That event is elsewhere in the Bible described as Armageddon.

But perhaps you will ask, What good will that do if in wiping our earth's evil conditions God at the same time destroys the earth itself, consuming it with fire, burning it to a cinder? However, let us not hastily jump to any such conclusion, for God's Word uses figurative as well as literal language.

That we are not to think of the literal earth as being consumed by fire is apparent from many other assurances that God has given us. For example, the one at Isaiah 45:18 (AS) where we read: "For thus saith Jehovah that created the heavens, the God that formed the earth and made it, that established it and created it not a waste, that formed it to be inhabited: I am Jehovah; and there is none else." If God created the earth to be inhabited, then it must endure, must not? Specifically guaranteeing the permanency of this globe, God's inspired Record states: "A generation comes, but the earth remains for ever." Eccl. 1:4, RS.

Why, reason alone should tell us that such must be God's purpose regarding the earth, which of all the planets, as far as is known by man, is the only one supporting life. Such a beautiful globe, with its towering, snow-capped mountain peaks, its verdant valleys, its winding rivers and placid lakes, its mighty oceans and glorious sunsets, stately trees and its endless and colorful variety of flowers and other vegetation, its changing seasons, the phenomenon of the rainbow, not to say anything of the many, many kinds of birds and marine life, its many kinds of beasts of the field, both wild beast and domestic animal! Would an all-wise and all-powerful God destroy all this simply because many of earth's caretakers fail to appreciate how good God is and even begrudge their fellows' enjoying the very things they so much want for themselves?

Is it not far more reasonable to conclude that God would merely rid the earth of those who defile it with their selfishness and wickedness so that He could realize His purpose regarding the earth, which is to have it filled with righteous creatures worshipping Him and loving their neighbors as they love themselves? Of course it is. What landlord would burn down his house simply because the tenants occupying it failed to take good care of it? Would he not rather oust the undesirable tenants and rent it out to others who he had reason to believe would prove desirable tenants? Well, that is just what God tells us he is going to do: "Yet a little while, and the wicked will be no more: though you look well at his place, he will not be there. But the meek shall possess the land, and delight themselves in abundant prosperity." Ps. 37:10, 11, RS.

Yes, remember the Bible record of the evil preflood days? Did God at that time destroy the earth itself because of the wickedness of man? Why, no, he merely removed the wicked corrupters of the earth by means of a global flood, delivering those who loved God, righteousness and their fellows, together with representatives of the various kinds of the lower animals, from that catastrophe into a cleansed earth. The deluge did not destroy the earth, it merely rid the earth of its undesirable tenants. So likewise with the rapidly approaching cataclysm of Armageddon; earth's wicked tenants will be destroyed, but it will remain.

What a wonderful place this globe will then be!! Concerning that time God promised: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." (Isa. 65:17) The new heavens does not refer to new galaxies of stars but rather to new invisible rulers that will replace the present ones, who are the Devil the devil's evil system of things. The new earth will not mean a new planet but a new system of things upon this earth, a New World society, already being formed.

Regarding the conditions that will prevail in that new earth God's prophet goes on to say: "They shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth calamity; for they are the seed of the blessed of Jehovah, and their offspring with them. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; and dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all My holy mountain, saith Jehovah." (Isa. 65:21, 23, 25, AS) God's Word contains many similar prophetic assurances.

If we would escape the destruction of this old world and enter the cleansed new earth in which righteousness is to dwell, then we must now heed God's prophetic command given at Zephaniah 2:3 (AS) "Seek ye Jehovah, all ye meek of the earth, that have kept his ordinance; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye will be hid in the day of Jehovah's anger."

So, all you persons of honest heart and good will toward God who long to see a better world take hope for Bible prophecy shows that the new earth not only is a certainty but is near at hand. God cannot lie and he is too just and loving to raise hpes in us only to disappoint us by failing to fulfill His promises, the way politicians do. Says he: "I have spoken, I will also bring it to pass; I have purposed, I will also do it." Isa 46:11, AS.

LOVE FINDS A HOME

By Irma Reitci

ANNE hardly had time to slip her sister's letter into her apron pocket, when Steve came in.

"T—I got a letter from Linda today," Anne volunteered.

"Yes? What does the successful career girl have to say?

"You remember the Marshalls who came out with Linda last year, don't you? Linda says they actually want to buy this place—"

"Buy?" Steve turned puzzled eyes toward Anne.

"Oh, isn't it wonderful, Steve," Anne hurried on. "We can get an apartment near Linda. And I'm sure I can get my job back at the Agency—"

"Hold it, Anne. I don't quite understand—"

"There's nothing to understand, dear." Anne laughed nervously, "except that we can get rid of this place—"

"This place?" Steve's voice was suddenly icy. "That's all it is to you. Of course, you never did try to make it a home. But, I planted those trees. They are a part of me and I have no intention of selling." Steve laughed bitterly. "You promised—"

"I promised I'd try to like living in the country. Well, I tried, for two years—"

"How often have you soiled those beautifully manicured finger tips by digging into the earth And how many times have you been down to the orchard, or — oh, what's the use "

"Yes, what's the use?" Anne's voice rose shrilly. "It doesn't matter to you that I hate this place. That I hate living out here away from everything."

Steve looked at Anne for a long moment, then walked out of the kitchen, slamming the door behind him.

"I'm going to Linda's tomorrow," Anne shouted defiantly. "I'm going to pack my suitcase right now "

Anne watched Steve's retreating figure until it reached the orchard, then she wearily turned toward the bedroom. Low rolling thunder made her whirl about, and run to the window.

A strong north wind veered toward the orchard. Anne's heart began to beat furiously as she watched. If the wind would destroy again, the way it had last year—maybe Steve would listen to reason, then. The wind shook the trees in a frenzy of destruction. One by one the branches bent down, until the tips kissed the sodden earth beneath them. For a breathless moment they lay there, then, slowly at first, inch by inch, they battled their way up, until, with one final effort, they snapped upright.

Anne moaned, then turned defeated steps toward the bedroom again. Her last hope was gone. Now Steve—Steve! A sudden wave of terror swept over Anne. He had been out there in that storm. He might be hurt—"

The door flew open, and a moment later she was in Steve's arms.

"Did the storm frighten you, darling?" Steve asked anxiously.

"No, but you—are you all right?"

"I got a little wet, that's all," Steve grinned. "But I did a lot of thinking out there. Nothing is more important than your happiness. You can write Linda that it's O.K. We'll go to the city—"

The city. Bright lights, theaters, concerts. Anne waited for the feeling of elation, but nothing happened. She began to laugh softly. The theater? Concerts? What could compare with the drama she had just witnessed? And the birds and the crickets and the frogs, they made the sweetest music—.

"Anne, sweetheart, what's wrong?"

"Why, nothing dear," Anne laughed. "Come let's see what the storm has done to our orchard. And later, Steve, we'll write Linda that our home is not for sale. And never will be," she concluded as Steve's lips met hers.

It was one of those few in a lifetime catches and now that the delightful taste is just a memory, an attractive Whopper Catcher certificate will continue to tell and retell the story of a day well spent in what all fishermen anticipate every time they go fishing. As you know, the monthly prize is a ten dollar cash award to be traded at the winners favorite sporting goods store.

You can win prizes, too, just enter your best catch in the contest. Ask your boat dock operator for details. However, the time is short, the 1954 contest ends November 30 only ten days to go.

Fishing prospects seem much better this week than they have been More people are going out and most everyone comes in with a nice string of Crappie, Stripes and Largemouth Bass. The Bass fishermen are plugging the banks while the Crappie are being taken from deep tree tops with live minnows.

Ed Hardiman, Riverview Fishing Camp, Lake Lay, reports that the water is still very clear and that nice strings of Bass and Stripe were caught by Mr. and Mrs. Dick Fitzpatrick, Birmingham. Elmer Wood. Birmingham, boated a 2 lb. 6 ounce Stripe.

H. S. Pinson, Mims Ferry Fishing Camp, below Lay Dam on Mitchell Lake reports Wardell A. Zanner, Homewood, fished a Cisco Kid in the upper reaches of the lake and b Smallmouth Bass weighing a pound up to 4 pounds 12 ounces. Mrs. J. R. BEST HOGS GROW FROM BEST-RAISED PORKERS

The best bet for raising strong, healthy hogs is to begin in the earliest days of infancy by protecting the baby pigs from injury, says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

Chilling and crushing during the first three days after farrowing cause 75 per cent of pig losses, Phillips explains. Farrowing jackets can save most piglets in the late litters due within the next few weeks. County agents have free leaflets on making and using the jackets.

AN OMELET out of hash? Make it like this: Into a large well-greased skillet break with a fork two cans of corned beef hash. Heat slowly to crisp and brown. Turn onto a heated platter, cover with creamy, soft scrambled eggs and fold over.

Fruit with rice is an old-fashioned favorite which make a nice hearty dessert. Mound hot rice in serving dish and pour over it some heated canned fruit to which some additional sugar has been added.

Leftover mashed potatoes? They make a handsome dish if you heat in the top part of the double boiler with enough cream to moisten them thoroughly. Then beat, adding an egg, some grated onion and a bit of salt and pepper. Pile lightly into a greased casserole and bake until puffy and golden brown.

Here's a good luncheon dish, even if you have guests. Make French toast and cover with sauteed canned or fresh mushrooms with frizzled ham.

No Seed Shortage Seen For State Potato Growers

Enough seed Irish potatoes were grown this year in the certified seed production areas of the North west to supply Alabama's need for next year.

However, it is a good idea to order seed potatoes now for late winter and early spring planting, say Extension Horticulturist John Bagby. He explains that the potato seed crop grown in Nebraska and North and South Dakota was some what smaller this year than last, and the varieties used most by Alabama farmers may be depleted before planting time.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—How many women have served as Senators?

A—Eight, including Mrs. Eva Kelly Bowring (R Neb.), who was sworn in April 28. Maine Republican Margaret Chase Smith, who is currently the only other woman Member, and former Sen. Hattie W. Caraway (D Ark.) were the only women elected to a full six-year term. The others have been appointed at the outset, with the exception of Gladys Pyle (R S.D.), who was elected for a short term—Nov. 9, 1938, to Jan. 2, 1939.

Q—Have there ever been two women Members of the Senate at the same time before?

A—Yes, during the tenure of Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway (D Ark.) from Nov. 13, 1931, to Jan. 2, 1945, three other women served as Senators for brief periods. Sen. Rose Long (D La.) served from Jan. 31, 1936, to Jan. 2, 1937. Sen. Dixie B. Graves (D Ala.) held office from Aug. 20, 1937, to Jan. 10, 1938. Sen. Gladys Pyle (R S.D.) served from Nov. 9, 1938, to Jan. 2, 1939.

Q—Has Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R Wis.) supported President Eisenhower's legislative program?

A—In the first three months of 1954, McCarthy voted "with" President Eisenhower six times, "against" him five times, and didn't vote four times on Senate roll-call votes on issues where the President made a specific request, according to a preliminary Congressional Quarterly survey. His "relative support" of the President (counting only those times when he voted) was therefore 55 per cent, but his "effective support" (where failure to vote reduces the Member's score) was 40 per cent for the first quarter of 1954. Last year McCarthy voted for Eisenhower requests 23 times, against Presidential requests 14 times, out of 49 Eisenhower-issue roll calls. His percentages last year were: Relative Support, 64 per cent; Effective Support, 51 per cent.

Jersey Club To Fete 8 4-H'ers At Annual Meet

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama's Jersey Cattle Club will honor eight good young prospects for membership at a luncheon Dec. 8 in Montgomery. The event, part of the club's annual meeting, will be held at the Whitley Hotel.

The honor guests are 4-H Club members who showed grand champion Jersey females at district shows in Alabama this year. They are Mickey Buford, Madison County; Jimmy Coleman, Hale; Lynda Betts Freeman, Lamar; Roy C. Scott, Talladega; Terrell Middleton, Mobile; Donald Hall, Jr., Montgomery; Jerry Hallman, Blount, and F. N. Farington, Jr., Talladoosa.

API Extension Dairyman John Parrish this week announced that one feature of the meeting will be a discussion of the federal brucellosis plan by Dr. J. A. Lauderdale, Montgomery, federal bureau of animal industry veterinarian.

Parrish said the meeting's agenda also includes a production-testing report and awards by Assistant Extension Dairyman Oscar Crosby, Jr. Others who will appear on the program are Lloyd Warren, Albertville, American Jersey Cattle Club chairman; Dr. Fegtus Cook, Montgomery; Johnny Rankin, Faunsdale, Jersey Club president; W. J. Alverson, Albertville, club secretary, and Parrish.

Dealers say there will be about five per cent increase in this fertilize supply next year, with prices at approximately the same level.

Despite the serious drouth, U. S. Department of Agriculture officials expect this year's total farm output to be only two per cent below the highest record.

Senator Hill Pressing For Increased Cotton Acreage

Senators Lister Hill (D. Ala.) and James O. Eastland (D. Miss.) conferred with officials in the Department of Agriculture this week relative to an increase in the National Cotton Allotments for 1955-56. The Senators urged a 19,500,000 acre allotment for the next 2 years in lieu of the 18, 100,000 heretofore announced by the Secretary of Agriculture. It was reported that a figure of 19,500,000 acres based upon a ten year cotton production average would guarantee a crop of 11, 000,000 bales a year and permit a disappearance from the surplus of a million bales.

Such an arrangement would have to be accomplished by legislation to be introduced by the Senators when Congress reconvenes in January. The Senators will introduce the legislation and urge its prompt passage before the planting season begins.

The concurrence of the Department of Agriculture in the proposal was made neccessary in order to prevent a presidential veto and likewise to secure the support of the legislation by the Administration. After the conference, the Senators pointed out that all segments of the cotton belt would have to agree on the proposed figures and they state they are urging representatives of the cotton producers in all areas to confer with each other prior to the convening of Congress in January in order to agree on the program.

The Senators felt optimistic that the Department of Agriculture would be agreeable to an increase in the cotton allotment provided therewas producer agreement from all areas of the Cotton Belt. Both Senators, however, stated that no concessions could be made to any areas and that legislation would have to provide that the cotton allotments would have to be allocated to the producing States according to the formula contained in the present law.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

December almost! And the stores are beginning to fill with list-in-hand shoppers, those provident people who get all their shopping done early and settle down to enjoy a leisurely holiday.

On shopping trips accompanied by the two-year-old (it's necessary to take her along occasionally), our looking and buying is confined to merchandise displayed on the first and second floors—she refuses to ride what she calls the "alligator." Vertical transportation is not for her.

She will stand outside and watch intently while the mechanical contraption opens its wide "mouth" to take on or discharge passengers, but no amount of coaxing can get her inside.

"Don't like alligator," she says firmly. So up the stairs we plod.

When we dropped by to see our neighbor around the corner, the one with more imagination than money, she was blowing out a couple of eggshells to add to her growing collection. I was sure she had the seasons confused.

"You must think it's Easter," I remarked.

"No," she responded, smiling. "I'm getting ready to decorate our Christmas tree. These blown-out egg shells, painted and dressed up, will be grinning at you from all the branches of the tree."

She showed me some of the ones she had finished. She had painted on features, had given them silk cord hair, had glued on lace paper doily collars, and had attached colored pipe cleaners with tape to use as hangars.

Her prize creation was a fanciful fiddler with an egg shell head, a pipe cleaner bord, and thin pipe cleaner arms with a wooden ice cream spoon "fiddle" in one hand and a match stick "bow" in the other. She'll have him perched on a limb in front of the tree where everybody can see and admire him.

The neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, took her brood and several other children from the neighborhood out to the woods the other day to gather pine cones. They'll use some of the cones for decorations, but they'll treat most of them with chemicals to burn with beautiful colors in holiday fires. Bundles of the treated cones make welcome gifts, this neighbor has learned, and preparing them is fun for the whole family.

Since the chemicals (which can be bought at most drug stores) are a bit expensive, several of the neighbors usually join in the project, making a party of it. Here's how they do it:

First they mix a pound of the chosen chemical in a gallon of water, using an earthen crock or a wooden tub. Then they put the pine cones in a net bag, the kind in which oranges, potatoes, apples, etc., are packed, and they dip the bag of cones in the solution for 10 minutes. Then they hang the cone-filled bag on the clothesline to dry.

Cones dipped in a solution of barium nitrate make a blue flame, those dipped in strontium nitrate make a red flame, those dipped in copper chlorate make a green flame, those dipepd in potassium permanganate make a purple flame and those dipped in calcium chloride make an orange flame.

The chemicals and the solution are poison, this neighbor warns, and must be disposed of promptly after use.

New Test Spots Poultry Disease

Auburn, Ala.—Scientists have found a new way to detect a killing disease of birds.

Revealing this information in Auburn this week, API Extension Poultryman John Weeks said the cancerous disease—visceral lymphomatosis, more commonly called Leucosis—has always eluded discovery. Previously it could be identified only by autopsy of the chicken's internal organs.

According to Weeks, the U. S. Department of Agriculture says the test works like this: Plasma from a chicken is mixed with a chemical called adenosine triphosphate. If the chicken has leucosis, a substance in the plasma reacts postively with the chemical.

Weeks said it is hoped that the new test can be developed into a practical method of warning flock owners of the presence of this highly communicable disease. Leucosis causes a greater loss among adult birds in Alabama than any other ailment.

"Blind Man's" Bluff

You know how Handy Turner down at the hardware store goes in for weird advertising stunts. Well, when it came to plugging his new Venetian blind department, his enthusiasm nearly landed him in trouble.

Handy painted a warning on the tailboard of his truck: "Caution—blind man driving."

"Had driven about a mile," Handy says, "when a state patrolman stopped me and told me that sign might cause trouble. Guess he was right. From now on I'll advertise in the Clarion."

From where I sit, I agree—the highway is no place for jokes. We all ought to be considerate of the other fellow when we're driving. In fact, let's respect our neighbor's right of way always. Then, when we have differences of opinion—say about the best route to the coast, or whether beer or buttermilk is better with lunch—there will be less chance of anybody developing any "blind" spots.

"EASY DOES IT"
BY ..... HELEN HALE

IF YOU HAVE Venetian blinds, paint a ring of nail polish around one of the pulls that tips the shutters down. You'll not have to guess any longer when you want to change the shutters.

Put a coat of paste wax on curtain rods if you want curtains or drapes to travel smoothly. You can also use the wax on rods for hanging clothes in the closets.

Scarves can be hung on wire hangers by means of clamp type clothes pins. This keeps them orderly and saves space in drawers too.

When baking berry pies or broiling, use aluminum foil paper in oven or broiler to catch drippings and thus prevent cleaning the whole unit. Simply wrap drippings and foil and toss in the garbage.

If pictures or mirrors are inclined to slip to one side after they are hung, paste a small piece of sandpaper underneath one of the lower corners.

To keep small nails, brackets, hooks and other such items, place in glass jars on a small shelf. Then you can keep these filed and find what you're looking for easily.

If wallpaper is used on a single wall in a room, plan to use the paper on some accessory to hold the room together. Wallpaper may be used on cornices, as a covering for dressing table or screens.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. E. A. Wigton, Plains, Montana: I remember back in Virginia when neighbors often borrowed fire. Our family kept a little iron pot and shovel especially for this purpose. Matches were rare and if you ran out of fire you just walked to your nearest neighbor and filled the little iron pot and hurried home.

From Judge Dave Johnstone, Hettinger, North Dakota: I remember approximately 60 years ago—I read an ad in a paper "Six Shirts in One"—which I sent for. This gadget you could attach to your shirt and it was made up of pliable material. When it soiled, you threw away the outer piece and underneath was a shirt bosom of a different pattern every few days. About this time we boys were wearing stiff collars in a variety of stripes and colors and the boy wearing the loudest color or design was envied by all.

From Mrs. Wayne Shupe, Galax, Virginia: I remember when mother would parch green coffee, then grind it in the old coffee mill kept on the wall . . . the fun we had in the fall gathering chestnuts, and gathering and peeling apples for making apple butter . . . making molasses time, when someone always ran off with the taffy pot.

I also remember the old ash hopper that made the lye soap with which we washed our clothes in old wooden tubs . . . In the summer, making hominy in the old iron pot, walking to school in the snow, studying at night by the light of a fire place, burning pine we hauled from the woods. Those were happy days, so different from today!

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Ticket sales show that 43,100 attended the Alabama-Auburn football game at Birmingham last Sat. but we could hardly believe the figures. At least twice that number passed thru Clanton.

The pessimist song: "I Fall Asleep Counting My Troubles."

Campbell White, called a little while ago and asked that we mention to you that a wonderful radio program is given each Sunday afternoon from 4:15 to 4:45 over WKLF. It is the "Methodist Men's Hour" and is being sponsored by the Methodist Men's Club of the Clanton Methodist Church. You are cordially invited to listen in, says Campbell.

J. W. Mitchell, Clanton manager, Southern Bell Telephone Co. office here, says that within the near future Lomax will have telephone service. Now we have been calling friends at Lomax for some time and we thought they already had telephone service but we believe brother Mitchell was speaking of the rural area around Lomax. He said over 40 per cent of the telephones here served rural customers and that his company has been devoting much attention to rural service lately.

While we are speaking of telephones we wish to make a complaint. In the past we have tried to sympathize with the telephone operators and understand the task they face at times. However, we do not believe we have been receiving lately the service that should be expected. At times you can wait and wait and wait, before an operator will answer your call. Why this is so, we do not understand, but we do know that it has happened before and perhaps we have been spoiled to speedy service. Nothing is more aggravating when you are in a hurry than to pick up your telephone and then spend endless seconds or minutes waiting on an operator to answer your call.

Henry Ward Beecher once said: "No matter what looms ahead, if you can eat today, enjoy the sunlight today, mix good cheer with friends today, enjoy it and bless God for it. Do not look back on happiness—or dream of it in the future. You are only sure of today; do not let yourself be cheated out of it."

Raymond Popwell was in to see us this morning and feeling mighty well. He wanted us to thank all the people who had been so kind and thoughtful of him since he was injured with dynamite several days ago. Special thanks, says Raymond goes to Willie Vines who has been of such great service and comfort to him. Willie and Raymond were making the rounds this morning visiting friends and saying hello to everybody. Raymond deeply appreciates all the kindnesses show him and wants to take this means to express his appreciation. We're rooting for him and hope it won't be long until he can see again.

"Let's see your bait?" asked the native as the discouraged angler was about to give up.

The angler showed his minnows The native fastened one by the tail to the anglers' hook, pulled a bottle of corn liquor from his pocket, poured it into the bucket, dunked the minnow in it for a moment, and said, "Now try it."

Almost immediately there was a heavy strike and after a brief struggle a 15-pound bass was landed. Not on the hook, of course—the minnow had the bass by the throat.

Got a lot of compliments on our shopping guide" that went out the first of this week. However the enterprising businessmen who sponsored it are the ones who are to be complimented. If you haven't got your copy ask your local merchant about it. It will help you in your Christmas shopping.

No use to keep mentioning it, but it's just three weeks until Christmas—sure it is.

Lick TB With Christmas Seals

"When you open your Christmas TB."

"When you open your hristmas Seal letter and look at the little Seals, remember the very important job they are doing," said Mrs. Mabel Bean, president of the Chilton drive.

"Our goal in this 1954 Seal Sale is $1,306.00," the chairman announced.

"When you think of this figure stop again and take a good look at your Christmas Seals. Remember the nearly 12,000 Alabama people who right this minute are suffering with Tuberculosis."

"The job of the Christmas Seal is to tell a story — a story that TB is preventable, curable — that every death from this dread disease is a needless death. Please use your Seals generously so this message will be repeated over and over"

There are two different Seals this year, one a red blackground and the other with green. Used together they complete a picture of five happy children dancing around a Christmas tree.

"These could be anybody's children — yours or mine."

"We can go a long way toward making the world healthy and safe for all children by doing our small part in the Christmas Seal Sale.

"Stick at least two seals on all your holiday packages and cards—for their sake."

LET US OBSERVE—

We have heard lately, many pro and con arguments on the signal lights here in our fair city of Clanton. Not whether we should or should not have them, but whether a motorist should be given the right of way to turn right on red. It is definitely an improvement and a traffic asset to have the privilege. Why must we abuse it? A fellow told us the other day that he had just seen another man throw his kids all over the car because some driver TURNED ON RED, but didn't bother to stop beforehand.

As we said, it is a decided improvement and necessary if we intend to keep up with the times, but let's not kill ourselves being up with the times. There could be a serious accident if we don't start abiding by the rules and stopping when it says stop. The sign says very clearly, "STOP, turn right on read." It rather appears that all some of us see is the "turn right on red".

Let's not you and I be the cause of an accident or death or be the cause of the city taking down our signs from the traffic lights. It is more convenient and it keeps the traffic moving better, if we do it right.

Stop, look for traffic, then watch for pedestrians and then turn right on red. It may be green by the time you do all this, but so much the better, you will always be right on green. You don't want someone's death or broken bones on your conscience,

It is a lot to ask of you motorist that's true, but when we get behind the wheel of an automobile in this day and time, we are taking on a great responsibility, whether we know it until it's too late or not.

Being careful doesn't cost a thing except a little time, and who of us don't have more time than anything else. Let's keep the privilege and keep the traffic moving and start looking before we leap.

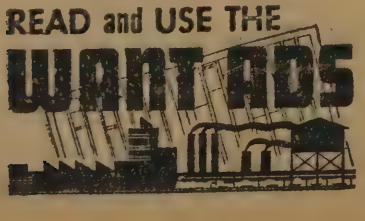
AN APOLOGY—

The recent holidays threw us a little off of the old beaten path as far as our correspondents were concerned. We know our readers like the local news about their community on time and we try to satisfy. It was necessary, however, to come out two days early last week and we just didn't give the correspondents the treatment they deserved. Some of them didn't reach us in time to go into the paper Monday.

We are making efforts this week to redeem ourselves by giving you a better than average paper this issue. We hope you will understand our situation and continue to send us all the local happenings. We will say again, if ever your news is left out, please understand that it wasn't intentional, that we show partiality to none, and that we did all we could to get your article in. We will appreciate any consideration because we do want your news about your community.

Again let us apologize for any inconvenience placed on you last week and here's one that, we hope, will make up for our shortcomins earlier.

By the way, we, here at the News, had a wonderful Thanksgiving with all the trimmings. We hope all our readers and friends can say the same.



IT'S MY OPINION

"The pasture always looks greener on the other side of the fence." Now there's an understatement if we ever heard one. We folks are all to inclined to "wish we were someone else or had the position someone else occupies." "He makes more money than I do", or "he never hit a lick at a snake, how does he do it?" We are pratically all guilty of these things and it is by no means an asset to us.

We all feel that the other fellow has the lightest load or the easiest path to success. That isn't how it works at all, and most of us know it. How light our load is or the smoothness of our path depends entirely on what we make of it. If we tend to judge our roads upward by other people and how easy their road looks we will probably find there is no way up.

The way to success is to say to yourself, "That's what I want" and then work towards that end. Don't work at something that is wrong and you know will not take you to the top of the ladder. If you waste your time thusly you'll find that all those who were going to the top are already there. Too many times we say, "well, John surely did have it easy". That is incorrect. No-one in this world of ours today has anything easy or gets anything easy that is worth having. You can make it seem easy to the other fellow or even to yourself, but we all know there is no easy way, you have to either work to get it or you have to pay for it. Anything that is worth anything takes all the effort and sometimes the courage that we can muster up. We must have the will to want to be somebody and then have the insides to try to achieve our goal. It isn't easy, but if you put your all into it you'll be none the worse off, win or lose.

There is no easy road to success, as you've probably heard many times. It takes ambition, determination and the power of your thoughts to do what you know you should do. You can be a big person without stepping on anyone's toes. Stepping on toes is for those who want success and don't care how they get it. They are not a true success. It is for sure that they will have absolutely nothing to be proud of or that they can say they accomplished after they get to the top.

If we exert every effort and meet every task head-on, and don't try to go around them, then when we do make ourselves a success, we can look back and say we're proud of it because you hurt no-one on the way. You aided others and by doing you reached your goal.

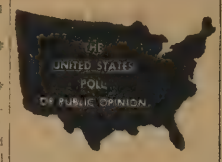
After all, success is not necessarily or primarily money in the bank. It is the feeling you get from being a service to mankind and your own friends and neighbors. Its the feeling others have towards you. Being a success or failure doesn't draw anly lines on how fat your purse is. You can be a success and be a poor man or you can be a filthy rich failure. He put no limitations as to how far men could go in this world toward better living so we should make the best of what was given us.

Anyone can be a success if they set out early in life to be one. If they say then, "I want to help others and be recognized as a helper of men" they will be a success in the world. It's the good will of others that makes us a success. It's what they think of us.

Start out early, don't hurt anyone, and don't be in a hurry to get there. . .but do your best whenever possible. You will be a success because you want to be one, it is inevitable.

THE PHILOSOPHER

To sew a fine seam without having thin material pucker, place heavy, brown paper under it. The paper can be torn away easily when the stitching is done.



McCARTHY APPROVAL DOWN %; DISAPPROVAL DOWN 3

Princeton, New Jersey—How does Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin rate with rank and file voters across the nation at the present time?

Results of a nationwide survey completed within the past two weeks show that American voters are divided in their opinion of the Wisconsin Senator.

46 out of every 100 say their attitude toward Senator McCarthy is unfavorable. And 34 out of every 100 say their attitude toward the Senator is favorable.

These were the findings when United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the nation's voters:

"In general, would you say your attitude toward Senator McCarthy is favorable or unfavorable?"

NATIONWIDE REPORT

Favorable	34%
Unfavorable	46
No opinion	20

Five months ago the vote on the same question was 35 per cent favorable; 49 per cent unfavorable; 16 per cent no opinion.

Today's figures thus represent a drop of 1 per cent in the favorable vote; a drop of 3 per cent in the unfavorable vote, and a 4 per cent increase in the "no opinion" vote.

Here is the trend since the first measurement in May, 1954:

In May: Favorable was 38%, unfavorable 47 and no opinion 15. In July: Favorable 35%, unfavorable 49, no opinion 16. TODAY: Favorable 34%, unfavorable 46, no opinion 20 per cent.

An interesting finding in today's survey is the split in opinion among Republicans, Democrats, and Independents across the nation.

For example, among the nation's Democrats, those holding unfavorable views of Senator McCarthy outnumber those holding favorable ones by a margin of 5 to 3.

But among the rank and file Republicans across the U.S.A., those holding favorable opinions outnumber those holding unfavorable opinions by a margin of 3 per cent.

And among the Independent voters in the country, those holding unfavorable opinions of the Senator outnumber those holding favorable opinions by a margin of 9 to 7.

The vote by political party affiliation:

	D	R	I
Favorable	29%	43	35
Unfavorable	50	40	45
No opinion	21	17	20

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Since a dog is man's best friend. Don't let anyone ever tell you different either. But, we're afraid our canine friends sometimes get a little obnoxious in their show of adoration and obedience to their masters.

Yours truly has a "best friend" by the name of Mutt who thought the other night of a unique way of having a jolly good time. He had gone out to cover some precious flowers from the cold with some newspapers (old newspapers) and mission accomplished we went back in by the fire. Ole Rover boy, about twenty minutes later, decides it would be an excrutiatingly funny joke if he tore heck out of them. So he did. Thirty minutes after carefully covering the delicate blooms we were out in the cold picking up little jiblets of paper that he had so thoughtfully strewn about the yard. He had somehow managed not to be in the vicinity at the time of the discovery. Had he been, his name would have been "mud" instead of "Mutt".

It was our own fault, naturally, for not romping about a while after supper with him, but we made a mistake and he took advantage of it. If we coulda found old buddy that night we would have wrapped him around the plants.

Not being much of a sport we gave up the flower job to let them scrape for themselves, which is what we should have done in the first place. We know he's good for something now besides eating, anyway. He's the best paper shredder in the neighborhood.

If that's a sample of "man's best friends" friendship wait'll he tries to go to sleep some day when I have nothing better to do than disturb him. . .we'll show him how good a good friend can really be.

Heard of a fella getting 10 days in jail the other day and when he appealed his case to a higher court they gave him two years. Bet that fella spends two years just bruisin his head against the bars.

Seems some of us are viewed rather dimly according to some of our woodland friends. We have just made an extensive study of the woods characters lately and find that most of them hate hunters.

Squirrels Dilemna—

Nuts to you, and you, and you,
Nuts to all your klansmen too.
You've chased us down,
And shot us, too,
So; nuts, to you, and you, and you
We can't sleep, and we can't eat
We're tired running man, we're beat
Since we can't eat our winter "stew"
Here's nuts, and nuts, and nuts, to you.

And the Rabbits Think. . .

Some rabbits will, some rabbits won't,
Some of us kin, some of us don't
We liked it in these woods of ours,
But, now you hunt us 24 hours.
We wouldn't ask for mercy, see
If we just had powers to climb a tree.

Everywhere you turn these days you hear talk of how easy modern women have it. Especially in the cooking department. We disagree. We observed the goings on during the Thanksgiving feast makings and we'll tell you, they don't have it so easy after all.

It's true they have added conveniences and such that grandma wasn't privileged to have. But, we know ours stayed up day and night for a coupla days before Thanksgiving fixing for it. We enjoyed it every bit and we'll bet your womenfolk didn't have it so easy fixing for you, either. Their's is not quite all peaches and cream yet. Don't let's forget that when Christmas rolls around and we're ready to eat big again.

Heard a fella say the other day that what he wanted for Christmas was a "kick-up-ball". The only thing we could figure that as being was a football and we'll bet a burnt do-nut he gets a football that's called a kick-up-ball.

You know, if all of us held grudges as long as some of us do, we'd all hate each other.

One dawg said to the other dawg as the good looking girl dawg went by, . .Col-lee dawg!!!

From all we gather the Jaycees, among others, are out to make Clanton sparkle for the yuletide season. We're glad to see someone finally take to heart the particular problem of decorating our town. It's one that has been neglected somewhat for a long time. True, we've always had decorations, and we enjoyed and appreciated the effort. It's just that we have never done anything out of the ordinary or very original and we hear that's what they are out to accomplish this year. More power to them.

You know, seems all the organizations around the county are picking up loose ends and it makes a fella feel good to see so many folks working towards the same goal and pulling the same load.

How many of you have or can guess this week's "farm of the week"? We'll bet you you don't know who it belongs to or where it is.

The Spirit of Christmas. It's almost upon us folks. But let's not forget the true meaning of the holiday and remember that it isn't just the give and take of Christmas and Santa Claus and the like. All those things are swell and they're part of our way of life. Lest we forget the true meaning of Christmas, let's remember that it's a day and time of reverence and thankfulness, not just frolic and fun. Have fun this Christmas, but somewhere along in there take time out to stop and commemorate that day that we can all be thankful for. We wouldn't be here to have Santa Claus and all if it weren't for the true meaning of Christmas in the first place. We'll all do well to stop and count our blessings this Christmas.

THOMAS JR. P-T.A MET NOVEMBER 15

Thomas Jr. P-T.A met November 15 for their regular meeting. Devotional for the evening was given by Mrs. Johnson, reading the 12 chapter of Luke, prayer by Mr. Hopper. We have a good P-T.A this year, with thirty one members.

Our project for the year was to beautify the school grounds. So far we have had the school grounds leveled, and a cement walk poured out front. We have a group of willing workers this year, and hope to accomplish much more.

Our meeting will be held again in December on the 13 with a supper, and a Christmas tree for the adults, each member is asked to bring a gift, costing no more than a quarter. The gifts will be drawn from a box. No names will be drawn. We're expecting to have a lot of fun.

We are hoping to see each member present for our next P-T.A meeting and pray that Thomas Jr. P-T.A will be just what it should.

MAKE SURE OF ALL THINGS: WHY FEAR THE FUTURE?

What does the future hold? Would we not all like to know? Many Scientist and statesmen believe that world conditions will continue as in the past; that there will be divisions of government, changes of government, crime, corruption, wars, etc. But notice what the Bible has to say on this matter: "Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious against them that work unrighteousness. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb. Trust in Jehovah and do good; dwell in the land, and feed on his faithfulness. Delight thyself also in Jehovah; and he will give thee the desires of thy heart." And again: "Rest in Jehovah, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. Cease from anger, and forsake wrath; fret not thyself, it tendeth only to evil-doing. For evil-doers shall be cut off; but those that wait for Jehovah, they shall inherit the land. For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and he shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the land, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Ps. 37:4, 7-14, AS.

From these few verses we can see that mankind is due for some wonderful changes. Evil-doers, workers of unrighteousness, those who bring about wicked devices and those who are incorrigibly wicked are soon to be erased from the earth forever. "The wicked shall not be".

But to many right now that day may seem a long way off; both the righteous and the earth appear to be in for total destruction at the hands of the wicked. But not so. The Bible refers to our day as the time "to bring to ruin those ruining the earth," which means that we can expect God Almighty to wage war against all wickedness and make our earth a fit place for righteous people to inhabit. The war that God wages is called in the Bible Armageddon. Rev. 11: 18, NW.

Just listen to what the Bible at Zephaniah 1:14-18 (AS) has to say about that battle: "The great day of Jehovah is near, it is near and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of Jehovah; the mighty man crieth there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm, against the fortified cities, and against the high battlements. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against Jehovah; and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as dung. Neither their silver nor gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of Jehovah's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land."

So the future holds an awful war for mankind—God's war! The threat and fear of atomic and hydrogen wartare are great and frightening, but, despite its dreadful prospect, it is nothing in comparison with what Jehovah God has in store for mankind. People today should be concerned for their lives, because Armageddon is not far distant. They should be searching for a way of survival, not how to survive a possibel third war, but how to survive the certain battle of the great day of God Almighty. Some will survive.

At Zephaniah 2:1-3 (AS) Jehovah God reveals what creatures must do in order to pass through Armageddon into his new world.

Here is what he says: "Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation that hath no shame before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chall, before the fierce anger of Jehovah come upon you, before the day of Jehovah's anger come upon you. Seek ye Jehovah, all ye meek of the earth, that have kept his ordinances; seek righteousness, seek meekness; it may be ye will be hid in the day of Jehovah's anger.

Such is your hope if you heed Jehovah's commands. So be farsighted. Look into the future thru the telescopic vision of God's Word. Set your sight on the new world. It will come. It is as sure as the sun and moon. Knowing this to be true, we see how foolish it is to fret because of evildoers, or that the wicked seem to prosper. Their days are short indeed!! "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

Last call! Yes, it is the last call for contest entries. November 30, rings down the curtain for the Ala. Power Company 1954 Fishing Contest. All weigh-in stations are urged to send in any entries that were registered on or prior to Tuesday, Nov. 30. The contest judges will meet within a few days to decide who won the November monthly prize and who will be awarded the eighteen trophies. As usual, the monthly prize will go to the fisherman turning in the best catch of all six contest fish as determined by a base weight percentage scale. Three trophies (first, second and third) will go to the three largest entries made during the entire contest period in each of the six contest species.

Here is hoping that your name will be among the final winners. We will all know for sure when the judges meet in December.

Though the contest ends for the year, there will be much good fishing in the cold months ahead. In fact, good winter fishing has already started. The water of the beautiful Coosa-Tallapoosa lakes is still very clear and inviting. However, when the cold rains set in and the water becomes stained it is expected to greatly increase the Bass and Crappie activity near the banks.

The following whoppers were weighed-in during the past week:

Lake Mitchell—

E. R. Young's Store, Lay Dam rd. near Clanton, reports: Lawrence Curd, Jr., Pratt City, fished the upper reaches of Lake Mitchell with a spoon and boated Bass weighing up to 6 pounds each.

Lake Jordan—

Mrs. J. R. Gibson, Manager, Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoals Creek, near Holtville, reports: G. B. Hall, Montgomery, caught a nice mixed string of Bass and Crappie from Shoals Creek. Mr. Hall's whopper catch certificate winner was a 1 pound 12 ounce Crappie.

Dr. Harry Hutchins, Induction Center, Montgomery, caught the creel limit of Bass in about twenty-five minutes last Thursday afternoon. Melvin Cleveland and W. D. Jones, Montgomery, used a Mepps Spinner to hook eight nice Bass weighing up to 3 pounds 8 ounces each. The string weighed 14 pounds and 8 ounces. Mr. Chandler and Mr. Dismuke, Autauga County, had good luck with live minnows as bait when they caught 33 crappie in Shoals Creek. Mrs. Gibson states that fishing is definitely improving.

Lake Martin—

E. V. Estes Store, Eclectic, near Martin Lake, reports: F. S. Bliss, Central, Alabama, and R. E. Jordan of Eclectic, tried a new Creek Club Darter for a few minutes last week on Parker Creek and found the Darter very effective. Jordan reeled in 4 Bass weighing from 1 pound to 2 pounds 8 ounces each. Ellis boated an 8 pound 10 ounce Largemouth Bass and called it a day.

When you plan a fishing trip this winter, bear in mind that the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes offer some of the best fishing to be found in the state. Many, easy to reach fishing camps are open the year round and are ready to make your stay comfortable and enjoyable.

Coosa River Newsprint Demonstrates Modern Forestry Methods

Coosa Pines, Alabama—The most modern and economical methods of pulpwood logging was the theme of several forestry demonstrations staged November 5 by the Woodlands Division, Coosa River Newsprint Company. Attending the events as guests of the Woodlands Division were 125 Pulpwood Producers and Dealers from the ten county area in which the Company obtains most of its pulpwood.

The day's program of events began at an early 8:30 a.m. when the producers and dealers gathered at the Coosa Pines offices of the Company. Boarding chartered busses they were transported to the site of the demonstrations. There they were welcomed by Mr. John Raeburn, Woodlands Mgr. and given an introduction to the day's activities. Three demonstrations were held, all in the Talledega Springs vicinity.

The visitors observed ways and means of using the latest equipment designed for pulpwood logging operations. Equipment displayed and demonstrated included new types of chain saws and trucks built especially for pulpwood logging.

Following a break period and refreshments, the group viewed latest methods in the production of wood for direct haul to the mill yard. This included cutting techniques and truck loading procedures for rapid movement of wood from the woods to the mill.

The third demonstration dealt with wood production for haul to a rail loading yard. Efficient woods crews demonstrated methods which allow the producer to make more profitable use of his trucks and personnel. Woods and highway safety were stressed throughout the demonstration.

Included in the mornings program was a discussion by Mr. Ben Norwood, Woodlands Division Accountant, regarding proper cost records and other bookkeeping procedures for wood producers.

At noon the visitors were taken to the Company's modern Tree Nursery, located two miles west of Childersburg, where they were guests of the Company at a barbeque luncheon. Mr. A. G. Wakeman, President of Coosa River Newsprint Company, spoke to the group about the Company's wood procurement program and to the future of pulpwood operations in this area. Mr. Wakeman's speech was followed by a tour of the Nursery where the visitors saw six million pine seedlings are grown each year. These young trees are distributed to 4-H and FFA club members and are used to re-stock company lands.

The final scheduled event of the day was a tour through the Company's newsprint plant at Coosa Pines. The producers and dealers saw how the result of their efforts is combined with those of the newsprint company to produce over 100,000 tons of newsprint annually to publishers.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HAPPINESS

Everyone wants to be happy, but few of us have any idea of the steps to take to accomplish it. What is happiness? Isn't it a state of well-being accompanied by an inner glow of enjoyment and appreciation? Freedom from physical impairment is not necessary, for many handicapped persons radiate happiness.

One way to help ourselves to happiness is to cultivate a spirit of fair-play, to look for our own mistakes and try to correct them before we try to manage others. We should never try to force others to do what we want merely because we want it. Domineering persons are not happy people.

Overcoming self-pity and the habit of exaggerating difficulties is a second way of helping ourselves to happiness. By refusing to waste our energy on self-pity, we can save it to something worthwhile. Overcome the habit of spending time and energy in regret for what has happened in the past. Instead be positive by doing your best to improve and enjoy the present.

In helping yourself to happiness rid yourself of worry, don't cross bridges before you come to them. Many of these bridges never have to be crossed at all; but when the problem arises, face it. Take it in stride. Don't resent the success of others. Rather let it bolster your own ambition to do better.

Happiness is the best measure of good mental health. Help yourself to achieve it by eliminating habits which tend to make you a critical spectator instead of an active worker. Don't be a gossip. An innocent remark about a co-worker is full of danger. Reputations are easily broken, and hearsay is not fact. Any happiness to which we can help ourselves should don't be dependent on the suffering and degradation of others.

Organize your life simply. Change your thoughts of resentment and unnecessary fear for those of kindness, cooperation, understanding & hope. Helping yourself to happiness will help others to do the same.

The bride entered on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marraige. Her gown was of ivory slipper satin designed with fitted bodice and long sleeves which extended over wrists in Call points. Folds of satin swathed the hipline and cascaded at the back into a chapel train. Her finger tip veil of illusion was caught to a pearlized orange blossom tiara. A single strand of pearls enhanced the sweetheart neckline of her gown. She carried a satin covered bible marked with a white orchid and showered with stephanatis.

The wedding music of traditional love songs and wedding marches was presented by the pianist, Miss Truman Stuckey of Clanton. Miss Lorene Lecroy, Gadsden, sang, "O Promise Me" and "Because".

The bride's mother wore a dress of charcoal grey crepe and a winter white hat, etched with sequins. The groom's mother wore a dark dress with grey stole and a winter white hat. Both wore corsages of white feathered carnations.

Hunts Are Often Marred By Accidents

Auburn, Ala.—Every year, men intend to shoot only game kill themselves, companions, and innocent bystanders. Several persons have died in hunting accidents in Ala. since this year's season started.

Sounding this warning recently Extension Wildlife Specialist Earl F. Kennamer reported that one Ala hunter mortally wounded himself with a gun as he attempted to crawl through a fence. "He violated the simplest rule in gun safety," the expert said. "It is suicidal to climb a fence or a tree with a loaded gun."

Even unloaded guns should be treated with respect due a loaded gun, Kenqamer added. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety. More people are killed with guns they think are empty than with weapons they know are loaded. Every day newspapers write obituaries of men die while cleaning "unloaded" guns. Be sure the gun is empty, taken down, or has the action open, before carrying it into your car, camp, or home.

Kennamer listed some other practices which might save your life:

"You invite trouble if you carry your gun in such a way that you have no control over the direction of the muzzle in case you stumble. Even with care, it is better to keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.

"Check to see if the barrel is clear. A bit of soil or heavy grease can cause the gun to explode.

"Be sure your target has feathers or fur before you pull the trigger; shooting into rustling bushes is dangerous.

"Never point a gun at anyone unless you intend to kill him," the specialist concluded.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

One of our neighbors had shared his catch of fish with us, and we were having fried fish for dinner. Right at the last moment, I discovered there was no catsup in the house. I wasn't presentable to go shopping, so I called to the five-year old to ride down to the grocery store with me so he could go in to make the purchase. As he started to get out of the car he said,

"But I don't have any money to pay for the catsup."

"That's all right," I assured him. Just ask the clerk to charge it."

He walked into the store and announced to the startled clerk: "I want a bottle of catsup, please. The kind you don't have to pay for!"

Lots of us are wishing these days that there were Christmas gifts to fit into the same category—"the kind you don't have to pay for."

But, as the neighbor around the corner (the one with more imagination than money) reminded me, gifts don't have to be expensive to be welcomed and appreciated. She's right in the midst of getting some inexpensive and clever gifts ready for Christmas.

One of her gifts will be a big salt and pepper set from the dime store. She has filled the salt shaker with spiced sugar to be sprinkled on breakfast toast, a treat on winter mornings.

Her spice mixture is made by combining three-fourths cup of sugar with 1 teaspoon cinnamon and one-fourth teaspoon ground cloves.

Also, from the dime store this neighbor bought several woven bread baskets. She plans to line them with bright red Christmas paper and put into them small jars of jellies and preserves from her own kitchen.

Just before she distributes these gifts, she'll tuck in a few pine cones and sprigs of holly for decoration.

Another of her gifts will be two bottles of barbecue sauce, a pastry brush and a pot holder all tied up together in a big, colorful apron. On the gift card she will type her favorite recipe for oven barbecued chicken or ribs.

The five-year-old and the seven-year-old have been busy making holiday napkins and napkin ring sets for some of their adult friends, a project that they are enjoying.

The napkin rings are made from cardboard tubes, the kind on which paper towels are wrapped. The tubes are cut into two-inch sections and covered with red wool thread wrapped over and over (inside and outside—not around and around) until none of the cardboard shows.

They cut squares of green Indianhead and ravelled the edges to make the napkins to tuck in the rings. Even the two-year-old helped some with that part of the project.

The final results, although certainly not perfect, will add a bright festive touch any holiday table. And they did it themselves!

Here's our neighbor's barbecue sauce recipe: cook ½ cup chopped onion in 3 tablespoons butter until soft. Add 1 cup catsup, ½ cup water, ¼ cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoons pepper and pinch of salt. Cook over low heat about 10 minutes.

Missouri scientists found that giving pigs fermenting feed boosted their daily gain an ddecreased the amount of feed required. No drunks were reported, either.

BROILERS ARE PUSHED IN SPECIAL PROMOTION

Broilers are an excellent bet for a budget boost. In plentiful supply right now, the birds are cheap, and they are good.

These facts will be put before the public this week in a special promotional program sponsored by the National Broiler Council in cooperation with the Southeastern Poultry and Egg Association and other interested organizations. Poultry producers, processors, and retailers throughout Alabama are getting on the broiler bandwagon for National Broiler Promotion Days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. They will tell consumers about the good buy in broiler through radio and television programs, newspaper stories, advertisements, and special store displays.

In giving this information, Extension Marketing Specialist A. W. Jones said the state campaign is directed by the Alabama Poultry Industry Association.

WINTER CARE INSURES SPRING PIGS' WELFARE

Auburn, Ala.—The health of next spring's pig crop is being determined now in the care and feeding of gilts and sows.

Making this comment in Auburn this week, G. B. Phillips, API Extension Service specialist in animal husbandry, said sows should be fed well, but not excessively. Too much corn ruins more brood sows than any other cause, the expert added.

Gestating sows may be self-fed of the proper feeds are used, Phillips stated. He gave the following recipe for the right ration:

Thirty pounds of ground, shelled corn, 30 pounds of finely ground oats, 30 pounds of finely ground alfalfa or other green leafy legume hay, and 10 pounds of protein supplement. Add alfalfa and reduce corn if sows start gaining too fast.

Keep a simple mineral mixture before gilts and sows every day.

Public Eating More Carrots

People eat carrots to curl their hair, improve their night vision, or build stronger teeth.

In the past few years Americans have been eating more carrots than ever before, says Miss Dorothy Overbey, API Extension specialist in consumer education. Fresh carrots were consumed in 1952 at the rate of seven pounds per person, compared with an annual three lbs. per person in the years 1920-1929.

And consumers prefer the vegetable fresh and crunchy, according to Miss Overbey. They eat less than one-half pound of canned carrots a year.

Trees that have no present or future sales value should be cut and used for fuel, posts, and other farm needs.

Seeds Of New Soybean Ready For '55 Release

Auburn, Ala.—Seed of the Lee soybean, a new variety developed by the department of Agriculture, will be released to farmers for planting next year.

Ralph R. Jones, Extension specialist in seed crops marketing, said tests have shown the new beans to be excellent for Alabama farm lands. Lee matures about the same time as Ogden, is a higher yielder, and has greater resistance to shattering than the Ogden bean. The Ogden variety has made up about 90 per cent of the state's oilbeans for the past few years.

Anticipating the interest of Alafarmers in the Lee bean, the API Experiment Station planted 51 acres for foundation seed this year. However, the drouth reduced the crop to only five or six hundred bushels instead of the expected 1000 bushels, Jones stated. The recently harvested crop of beans will be available to farmers interested in growing seed for 1956. County agents have information on how to get foundation stock, added the farm leader.

It is estimated that U. S. farmers have almost twice as much horsepower available as all the nation's industry. The average farmer is said to have the equivalent of 60 horses.

MENTAL ILLNESS IN STATE OF ALABAMA

One out of 12—one of every 12 children being born in Alabama today will spend some of his life in a mental hospital, if definite steps are not taken to prevent it.
Can you help shove the black cloud of mental illness from Alabama's door?
That will be the goal in a hard-driving campaign to break the stranglehold mental disease has on health and happiness and prosperity in our state.
The Alabama Association for Mental Health will call for your aid in a two-fold statewide crusade for mental health education and correction.
The "awakening" drive will be launched with these startling figures submitted by Dr. J. S. Tarwater, superintendent of Alabama State Hospitals:
176,000 Alabamians, or one out of every 17, are suffering from some form of mental illness;
167,000 Alabamians, or one of every 18, will spend some part of their lives in a mental hospital, if present trends are not changed;
300,000 Alabamians, or one out of every 10, will need psychiatric care at some time in their lives;
90,000 Alabamians are mentally sub-normal;
Last year 232 Alabamians committed suicide.
Mental and emotional problems get the blame for suicides, dicorces (the current rate is one divorce to every four marraiges), juvenile delinquency, alcoholism, crimes, and a large percent of highway accidents and industrial discharges.
Marc Ray Clement, Tuscaloosa, drive director, and Judge Lecil Gray, Jasper, co-director, have set these two major goals for the drive, which got underway Nov. 29:
A statewide education program for the prevention of mental illness and the groundwork for a statewide correction move: to obtain more psychiatrists and trained personnel so that a higher percentage of mental patients can be cured, and to correct seriously overcrowded and under-staffed conditions in state hospitals today.
These urgent needs of Alabama's state hospitals are to be stressed:
Alabama is now crowding 7,000 patients into Bryce and Searcy hospitals, where there are only 3,351 approved beds. There are long waiting lists for both Bryce Hospital and Partlow State School for mental defficients.
Alabama hospitals now have only one doctor to every 440 sick people; one nurse to every 390 sick people; one attendant to every nine sick people.
Alabama has only five mental health clinics, all badly under-staffed. For Alabama's population, a minimum of 30 mental hygiene clinics is recommended by experts in the mental health field.

MASS OF THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION

On Wednesday morning, Dec. 8 the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass of the Immaculate Conception will be celebrated in Clanton, for the Catholics of the county at the Chapel of the Resurrection.
This renowned feast, honoring the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, revered (not adored) by Catholics throughout the world, carries added beauty to its solemnity in the year 1954 because of the significance of the Marian Year which comes to a triumphant close on that date.
In bringing this wonderful year to a close, his Excellency, arch-Bishop T. J. Toolen has asked that in every Catholic Church and Chapel a Novena to Our Lady be given, so that it will close on Dec. 8, and that every man, woman and child receive Holy Communion on that date. Exposition of the Blessed sacrament is permitted in every Church and Chapel and a Holy Hour is ordered in every church, and everywhere there is a church bell, it will be rung for two minutes at 5 p.m.
His Excellency, has directed that our prayer intention, be for world peace and peace of conscience for all of our people, also that God may bless our great Country and give all of its people strength of heart and soul to continue to fight Communism and agnosticism; that God may direct our President, our senate, and our Congress in right ways.
The Catholics of this district will meet at the Chapel for these prayers each afternoon at 2:30, begnning Tuesday Nov. 30 and lasting until December the 8. The Holy Hour announcement will be made at the Mass.

Pretty colored bubbles made by adding vegetable coloring to the bath suds will delight children and make bathing them easier.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Looks like Wilson's Optical Dispensary is about ready to open its doors. The new dispensary, we should say. Woodrow Wilson has been working on his new office for a long time now and if ever a man has worked hard to accomplish an end, he certainly has. Our hat is off to him and we think his new place on the Maplesville Highway is very pretty. We wish him lots of success in his new home.

Probate Judge Dave Tingle tells us that the State Highway Department will let bids this month for building the abutments to a new bridge over the Coosa River on State 22 between here and Rockford. This sounds like we will be crossing the river by bridge instead of the old ferry before too many years.

Alabama Trucker says if we were to kick the fellow who is responsible for most of our troubles we wouldn't be able to sit down for six months.

Look for an announcement after January 1, 1955 the local Southern Bell Telephone office will hold open house.

Nowhere in the nation we venture to say, will you find a record like that of the eight graduate lettermen at Verbena this year. J. C. Moore, John Cooper, Edward Davis, Mickey Davis, Billy Turner, Donald Deloach, John Causey and Harold Patterson have never been on a losing football team. Coach J. R. Poarch and the Class A champions have won 49 straight games. They were honored at a banquet at the school last Friday night.

The W.S.C.S of the Verbena Methodist Church is taking orders for Christmas cakes between now and Dec. 18. The phone number is 892-W1. Here's your opportunity to get someone else to do your Christmas baking for you while you do your shopping. The Ladies will be more than glad to oblige you and the money goes to a worthy cause.

Hugh Champion, one of our local State Highway Patrol members is in the Prattville General Hospital. He has undergone surgery and will be confined for quite a while. Our best wishes for a quick recovery for Hugh. He is a credit to the State Highway Patrol and we hope he is soon out again.

Here is a Christmas poem sent us by Don Esty. It was written by a friend of his and when he received it he passed it along for publication.

Here is what Don had to say:

"Dear Ben; A seventy-three year old woman wrote and sent me this Christmas poem. I believe it is a good one, and it would thrill the heart if you would print it in the Chilton County News. Best regards Donald Esty, Minister Presbyterian Church." So here's the poem.

Christmas Thoughts

Now again it is December, and we Think of Christmas Day.
The air is filled with snow flakes
And sounds of sleigh-bells make
It gay.
The scent of pine is everywhere as
We choose the family tree.
Then out come all the trimmings,
Many colored lights there be,
To decorate all the branches, and
On the tip-top of the tree;
A place reserved for the angel and
For stars so all may see,
From the decorations finished and
At the proper hour,
Every little colored light gleams
Out with its magic power.
Ah, the beautiful Christmas tree,
The beautiful lighted tree,
It is a symbol of the yuletide, bringing cheer to you and me.
But oh, the Christmas Spirit, It's Beauty is beyond compare;
When all kindly thoughts and feelings are encountered everywhere
And all willing hands seem eager
Some helpful aid to render,
Why store all these things away for Use only in December?
Let's subscribe to this good feeling,
We can do it if we try,
To make each month like December
As the years go rolling by.
The may find it so rewarding and
So satisfying too,
That we'll all send for renewals,
When the year is gone and Through.
If it all becomes a habit giving
Kindly thoughts full sway,
From the early morn 'till evening

Christmas Pageant At Verbena High

A Christmas Pageant, "The Glory of The Lord" will be given by the students of Verbena High School on Wednesday night, Dec. 15 at 7:30.

In this Pageant the Spirit of Christmas proclaims the Christmas season in verse while the travelers, going to Bethlehem to pay their taxes, hear the ancient prophecies concerning God's remembrance of Judah. At last the prophecy comes true. The sheperds see the wonder and obey the devine instructions The wise men also see the star and come seeking the Messiah.

The climax comes with the wise and humble kneeling together beside the manger listening to the words of hope and joy from the Spirit of Christmas.

The Pageantry is done by boys and girls of the school. The music is done by the Glee Club.

There will be no admission. Free will offerings will be taken for the Chilton County Christmas Chest. Everyone is invited and urged to come.

Tour-A-Thon Staged By American Legion

A tour-a-thon, featuring automobile travel of more than 10,000 miles in two weeks here in Alabama, will be carried out between Dec. 11 and Dec. 23 by two top officials of the American Legion.

Plans released today by Fred C. Walters of Grove Hill, state Commander of the Legion, and David M. Vess of Montgomery, state Americanism Director, are reminiscent of "talkathon" activity of the recene political campaigns.

Seeking a goal of 30,000 members for 1955 by Christmas, officials of some 200 local Legion posts will be visited by the "tour-a-thon" team. All posts of the American Legion have been asked to enroll a specific number of members and deliver their enrollment cards to the state Commander on the day their city is visited.

'Tll each month seems like December and each day like Christmas Day!

For Outstanding Service---

R. L. Scott Honored By Local Lions Club

The Clanton Lions held one of the most unusual programs in the history of the Club last Friday. District Governor Ambrose Ames, Birmingham, was guest of the Club and on behalf of local Lions, presented a loving cup to Lion Scott for his outstanding service to Lionism in Clanton and surrounding areas.

Richard L. Scott, much better known as Dick, has been a resident of Clanton only 5 years; but, in that time has taken a working interest in all undertakings for the betterment of our community - in addition to his work in Lions Club. Dick is now acting as Sec. of the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, and zone chairman for the Montevallo, Maplesville, Thorsby, Jemison, Autaugaville Prattville, Wetumpka, Rockford and Clanton Clubs. His article, Fin-Fan items is a regular feature in the Chilton County News as well as in papers in Birmingham, Montgomery, Alex City, Wetumpka Sylacauga, and Bessemer. In these articles he is sometimes referred to as Chief Alapoco - and leaves readers wondering if that title isn't an undertone of loyalty to his employer. Dick also maintains regular attendance at the meetings of Alabama Sight and Lions Conventions held anywhere within a reasonable distance.

As for his full time work, he is Supervisor of Recreation Development for the Alabama Power Co. This job requires supervision of all property bordering on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers owned by the Power Company, and includes Lakes Lay, Mitchell, Jordan, Martin, Yates, and Thurlow.

Since joining the Clanton Lion Club in 1950 under the sponsorship of Bob Taber, Dick has served as chariman of the Greetings Committee, Program chairman, Sec. third vice-pres. and Pres. of the local club. He is now serving his second term as Zone chairman, having been Deputy District Gov. for the year before. He sponsored the memberships of Dr. Tom Hayes, Jeff Miller, and Johnny Walker into the Lions organization. Somehow he found time to serve as over all Chairman of the Chilton County Peach Festival two years ago. And, his most recent success has come in the establishment of the Maplesville Lions Club which held its Charter Night on November 30.

In addition to recognizing the efforts of Lion Scott, Lion Ames also inducted eight new members for the local Lions. These were: Herbert Alspon, owner of the OK Rubber Welders; Glenn Bashore Attorney at Law; Bill Burnett, of Clanton Motors; M. C. (Pat) Hamilton, of E. L. Klinner Furniture Co.; H. C. Lightsey, salesman for Alabama Power Co.; J. H. (Skeeter) Stokes, partner of Hayes Chevrolet Co.; and Jim Wilson, manager of Goodyear Service Store. The Lions also welcomed the return to active service, Lions Ray Hamilton mgr. of Campbell Auto parts, and Dr. Marshall Lee Ware.

Miss Doris Pearson Joins Welfare Staff

Miss Jancie Freeland, director of the Chilton County Welfare Department announced today, that Miss Doris Pearson has joined the staff as a caseworker. Miss Pearson was employed as a caseworker in the Montgomery County Welfare Department prior to her transfer to this office. She also worked as a caseaide in the summer of 1950, prior to her graduation from Ala. College, Montevallo. She came to us highly recommended from the State Department of Public Welfare. Miss Freeland feels we are very fortunate to have Miss Pearson in our County as a caseworker for the department.

Miss Pearson is the daughter of Mrs. Belle Pearson of Mt. Creek. She replaces Mrs. Margaret Wadsworth who transferred to Montgomery County.

Cotton Growers Urged To Vote On Referendum

The outline of the cotton marketing quota referendum to be held throughout the Nation's cotton-growing area on December 14 will determine the level of price support for cotton produced in 1955 and therefore is a vital concern to every cotton grower, says Eddie Owen, chairman of the Chilton County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The marketing quota program will be in operation for next year's crop, the chairman explains, if at least two-thirds of the votes cast in the referendums are in favor of the program. In that case, price support will be available for the 1955 crop of upland cotton at a level between 82½ and 90 percent of parity. If more than one-third of the votes are against quotas, the price support level to eligible growers would drop to 50 percent of parity.

The choice before cotton growers, according to chairman Owens, essentially is whether or not they want a reduced acreage and price support between 82½ and 90 percent of parity. He explains that acreage allotments will be in effect even though quotas are disapproved; compliance with such cotton allotments and with any other crop allotments established for the farm will be required for eligibility for price support, no matter what the level of support.

Chairman Owen urges all growers to vote in the referendum. In his opinion, the decision will have far-reaching effects, and the question deserves the serious study and the carefully considered vote of all who grow cotton.

The referendum will be held between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on December 14 at the following polling places:

Union Grove, Jemison Town Hall, Providence Church, Isabella, Macedonia Church, Hardy's Feed Store, Clanton City Hall, Verbena, Providence (Beat 16), Cooper, Stanton School, Maplesville Town Hall, Vermont School, Mt Nebo, Enterprise, Collins Chapel, Thorsby Town Hall.

Chilton-Unity Plans Simultaneous Revival

The brethren voted unanimously in the Nov. meeting of the pastors Conference of the Chilton-Unity Association to share in the great Nationwide simultaneous Revival Crusade sponsored by Southern Baptists. The decision of that body was ratified at the regular monthly Executive Meeting which was held at the First Baptist Church, Nov. 28th at Clanton.

It is said to be the greatest concerted soul winning effort since Pentecost. The writer is willing to accept that statement, and fully believes that we will experience the greatest soul-winning campaign ever witnessed among us.

This Crusade does not only include the twenty-nine thousand Baptist Churches in the Southern Baptist Convention, but every Baptist church and mission in America, including Alaska, Cuba, and Panama Canal zone.

Every agency in the Convention is bending its energies to make 1955 the greatest year of evangelistic emphasis ever known by Southern Baptists. It is hoped that your church has had a study in the book, "One to Eight" by Barnette. If not maybe you can still have it.

January 3-7 has been selected as the date to study Dr. H. H. Hobb's book, Studies in Hebrews". We are sure that this book will serve as a wonderful guide in studying the book of Hebrews in preparation for the on-coming revival. The Baptist Book Store handles the books and they are 60c per copy. It would be fine to order them in advance to avoid the rush.

There will be a state-wide Evangelistic Conference in each State during Jan. and Feb. The Conference here in Alabama will be held at the First Baptist Church, Montgomery on Jan. 24-26. This is certainly one of the great highlights pointed toward the simultaneous Crusade. Let all pastors and church leaders bear the date on mind and plan to attend if at all possible.

Teachers To Vote On Amendment

Over 27,000 Alabama teachers will vote on Friday on whether they want Social Security coverage in addition to the teachers retirement system. Following the signing by President Eisenhower of the federal Social Security amendments permitting such dual coverage, Gov Persons designated December 10 as the date for a referendum by teacher retirement members.

Plans for the election, which is being conducted by the Alabama Education Association, have been worked out by county and city superintendents, administrative head of schools and colleges, local assoc presidents, and local elections committees.

"Alabama teachers have expressed considerable interest in Social Security coverage," Mrs. Laura Caine Sprott, Association president, stated. "They have been active in forming themselves of the advantages of the added protection for themselves and their families now being offered them, and a large vote is expected."

The state elections committee headed by Hubert Hammond, Clayton, will meet in Montgomery to tally returns from the 135 units participating in the election.

SINGING AT MT. PLEASANT

There will be a singing at Mt. Pleasant Friday night, Dec. 10. Everybody is invited to attend. Mr J. E. Minor, Chairman of the program this year announces that the singing will start at 7 o'clock.

The Home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Candler, located on Second Avenue, burned Wednesday morning about 3:20. Occupants of the residence could not be located before presstime to ascertain if the residence and furniture was covered by insurance.

Mrs. Joe Gray, a sister of Mr Candler, stated that all of the furniture and all of the clothing was destroyed in the fire and the family is left without anything. Only charred walls were left of their home.

Motion Picture At Adventist Church

"Christ and Calvary" will be the theme of the sound motion picture at the Adventist church Sunday evening at 7:15. It portrays Jesus being led from Pilate's hall through the crucifixion on Golgotha.

Those who see this picture will have an understanding of Christ' suffering they have never had before. Christian Scientists are cautioned by their leaders, not to look at anything like this. It proves that suffering and pain are intensely real The public is invited.

SOIL SAMPLES SENT NOW RBING QUICKER RESULTS

Auburn, Ala.—December is the best time to beat the spring "rush" with your soil samples. Farmers who send their samples in to the soil testing labratory at API this month get reports back in time to make early plans for spring planting.

"Every farmer wants to get the best possible return on each acre turned and fertilized," says Extension Agronnomist J. C. Lowery And hundreds of Alabama farmers have found that soil-testing pays off.

Lowery cites a Lee county farmer J. T. Belue, who had a test made to get lime needs for alfalfa as an example. Part of his alfalfa field had been in this crop a few years. The soil test revealed that those acres required only one ton of lime each. But the rest of the land Belue wanted to put in alfalfa took three tons of lime per acre.

Lowery figures that on land previously in alfalfa Belue saved about 14 dollars worth per care by having a test made.

A LITTLE SOAP, STARCH BRIGHTENS CHRISTMAS TREE

Sparkling Christmas tree ornaments need not be expensive.

Miss Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishing specialist, has a suggestion for making pretty trimmings for the tree and mantel. A base may be made of anything, so long as the shape is interesting. It's the wrapping that counts. For that mix one cup of sudsing-type detergent with four tablespoons of liquid plastic starch and whip for one minute. Dip base in mixture and sprinkle with sparkle dust.

The ornaments will twinkles through out the holiday season, says the specialist.

MT. PISGAH HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB MET

The Mt. Pisgah Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Ira Yeargan on November 30.

The demonstration was given by Miss Bates, "More Tricks With Home Mix". Everyone enjoyed it very much.

Those present at this meeting were: Mrs. G. W. Smith, Mrs. J. Headley, Mrs. L. M. Headley, Mrs. R. V. Yeargan, Mrs. Odell Jones and Mrs. Ira Yeargan, the hostess.

Christmas Seals are an insurance policy, a down payment on a gift of health, a pretty sticker to seal up holiday packages and cards,

"Anyway we look at them, they're good for the individual, the community and the nation because they fight T. B.," said Mrs. Mabel Bean, president of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association.

"You're giving yourself, your family and friends one of the very best gifts when you help provide a safeguard against tuberculosis by joining with others in the annual Christmas Seal Sale.

"Every penny counts. Christmas Seal pennies have done a stupendous job of battling T. B. and saving lives since 1907, when this disease was the leading cause of death.

"Even now, somebody dies every 26 minutes from T. B. in the U. S. and every five minutes a new case is reported.

"Right here at home, in Chilton County, there are 77 known cases of tuberculosis on record.

"We cannot afford not to be interested. It's our job to do something real and lasting to help our fellow man during the Yuletide season.

"The records show what Christmas Seals have done. You can help them throw the knock-out punch by remembering to send in your contribution.

"And, please remember to stick them on all Christmas cards and packages. Help them tell their story."

Cattlemen Have Association In Each Alabama County

Montgomery, Dec.—The Alabama Cattlemen's Association, with more than 4100 members, now has an active county association in each of Alabama's 67 counties for the first time, M. C. Stallworth, Jr. pres Vinegar Bend, said here yesterday

Organized in 1944, to promote the fast growing cattle industry in Ala, the Association has grown rapidly in recent years until it is one of the State's largest groups and one of the largest State cattlemen's associations in the United States, Stallworh continued.

Beef cattle, Stallworth added, is one of Alabama's major cash agricultural products. Because of the ideal pasture conditions, Alabama is one of the leading States in beef production. Percentage-wise, Alabama has lead the nation for the past several years in increasing beef cattle numbers.

Plans are now underway for the 12th Annual Meeting of the Association in Mobile, Jan. 28 and 29, 1955, Stallworth said. Outstanding leaders in beef cattle production will be featured speakers at the meeting and the Mobile County Cattlemen's Association will be hosts to visiting cattlemen. Details of the two-day event will be complete soon, Stallworth concluded.

Officers of the Alabama Cattlemen's Association, in addition to Stallworth, include: Whit Athey 1st vice-pres.; Carl B. Thomas Huntsville, 2nd vice-pres.; Mortimer H. Jordan, Birmingham, treas.; and E. H. (Ham) Wilson, Montgomery executive secretary.

According to the department of Agriculture, lack of sulphur has been detected in some Southern soils. This fact has been borne out by 12 experiment stations and TVA.

HUMAN LIFE IS PERSONAL—

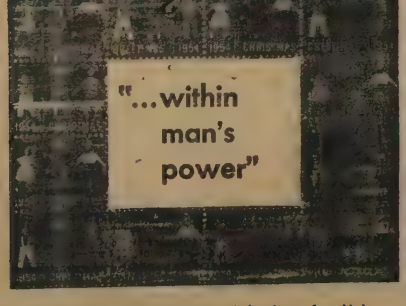
The growing number of fatal accidents on the streets and highways has engaged the attention of the White House, and soon a serious effort will be made to do something about it. Last year (1953) a total of 38,300 persons, young and old, lost their lives in traffic accidents, and the economic loss was placed at 4 billion dollars in hospital and medical costs, property damage and other expenses.

The President's Action Committee for Traffic Safety has designated December 15 as Safe-Driving Day. It will be observed on a Nation-wide basis, under the Committee's sponsorship with the cooperation of various other city, State and national organizations.

Most of the fatalities charged to traffic accidents and much of the property damage and other economic losses could have been prevented of drivers and pedestrians alike would realize their personal responsibility for their own safety as pedestrians, and the safety of themselves and others if they are drivers. Traffic actually is a personal responsibility.

Pedestrians cannot overlook their responsibility in reducing the traffic toll. Following the laws and applying the courtesies of the road to themselves and others will bring this about.

Personal responsibility—it's as simple as that.



Monumental achievements have marked each era of mankind. One such achievement within reach of future generations is the conquest of tuberculosis.

This year is the 50th anniversary of the organized fight against TB in our country. In these years the TB death rate has been cut 90%; yet TB strikes every five minutes.

It is within man's power to eradicate tuberculosis—Your purchase of Christmas Seals will help to make this possible.

This year put two Christmas Seals on every card, letter, and package.

AVERAGE FAMILY NEEDS $60 A WEEK TO GET ALONG

Typical American Family Spends $25 A Week For Food & Milk

Princeton, N. J.—People across the natinon are of the opinion that the average family of four living in the United States today needs at least $60 a week to get along on these days.

This was the median average amount named when Prineeton Research Service's U. S. Poll staff reporters put the following question to an accurate cross-section of the nation's adult public:

"What is the smallest amount of money a family of four—a husband, wife, and two children needs each week to get along on in your community today?"

Today's median average amount is exactly the same as the amount reported by the U. S. Poll in Oct. of 1953 (14 months ago and in Jan. of 1953 23 months ago).

The fact that the median average amount named today is exactly the same as it was in the two previous surveys would indicate that there has been relatively little change in the cost of living over the past 23 months.

People's ideas about the smallest amount needed today are influenced to a considerable extent by the size of the city and the section of the country where they live—and by their occupations.

For example, big city resident across the nation—those living in places with populations of 100,000 or more—set the minimum amount needed at $75 a week on the average.

In small towns and farm areas on the other hand, the typical opinion is that $50 is the smallest amount needed for a family of four.

Professional and business people think that at least $75 a week is needed for a family of four to get along on.

White-collar workers on the average named $70 compared to $60 named by manual workers and $45 named by farmers.

This compares with $70 in the East, $60 in the Middle West, and $50 in the South.

Another question in today's survey brought out the fact that the average non-farm family spends on an average approximately $2 a week for food, including milk.

The $25 figure shows no change since the previous survey, when $2 a week for food, including milk was also named.

Although many people in the nation would consider it impossible for their families to try to live on $60 a week, it must be kept in mind that Poll reporters asked for the smallest amount needed.

Many families with children do however get along on less than the $60 named as the median minimum amount needed.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area WATCH FOR IT!!!

You Must Be Born Again

Yes friends, Christ settled that question with Nicodemus; also for you and me, all this must happen first.

We must confess our sins; (I quote), "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us of our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness; give us a new heart of flesh, for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, he gives us the anointing of the Holy Spirit without this we can know nothing, with it we have the faith, mind and power of Jesus Christ, and makes us know all things not necessary for man to teach us anymore.

You are now able to say as Paul: "I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, not I, but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the son of God who loved me, and gave his life for me.

You continue to walk in his precepts, statutes and judgements, keeping his testimony which is the spirit of prophecy, both keeping and teaching his commandments and doing the things that are pleasing in his sight.

You are building up in righteousness for all of his commandments are righteousness. You are getting ready to take hold of eternal life. You are ready now to say, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept my faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Thus far you have only been begotten of God, you are keeping yourselves and the wicked one is touching you not, you must not let your faith waver, far you can sin, if you fail to keep yourselves unspotted from the world.

You are ready now for that second birth, all you have to do is go to sleep (I quote) and grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

Your spirit or breath returns to God, your body has been sealed with the Holy Spirit and is ready to be placed in the grave to await for the call of Jesus Christ. When he calls you will come forth not mortal but immortal, not man but God, yes just like Jesus Christ is God, you may say this is not true, but I am giving it to you like the Holy Spirit gave it to me.

You must be born again, too.

Please read your Bibles, walk with the Lord, he will walk with you. He never shall leave nor forsake you.

Yours in Christ,
Lee A. Popwell

1954 CCC LOAN GETS LESS ALABAMA COTTON

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers this year have placed less than one-third as much cotton under government loan as they did in 1953.

O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton improvement specialist, said this week a report on loans made up to Nov. 14 showed that 43,410 bales of Alabama cotton have been put under Commodity Credit Corporation loan this year. Loans have been made on nearly eight hundred thousand bales of the total U. S. crop.

About 140 thousand bales of the state's cotton were under CCC loan by Nov. 27 of last year. The nation had slightly over four million bales under loan.

Andrews said the decrease in loans indicates that the market price this fall has been favorable in comparison with the CCC loan schedule.

MAKE SURE OF ALL THINGS:
Understanding God's Word Means Life

You enjoy living, do you not? And would you not like to live forever, especially if conditions were at least half-way decent? Of course I would. Well, did you know that the Bible holds out a hope of our living forever if we meet certain conditions? Note what Jesus said, as found at John 17:3 (NW): "This means everlasting life, their taking in knowledge for you, the only true God, and of the one whom you sent forth, Jesus Christ." And you may be sure that this means life in happiness, for the Bible tells us that the time is coming when all suffering and sorrow will be done away with.

You will note that Jesus said that everlasting life depends upon our taking in certain knowledge. Yes, just as we must take in the right kind of material food to keep our bodies alive, so we must take in the right kind of spiritual food if we would gain everlasting life in happiness. Jesus expressed a similar thought when the Devil tried to tempt him to change stones to bread. Matthew tells about it at 4:2-4 (NW), where we read: "After he had fasted forty days and forty nights, then he felt hungry. Also the tempter came and said to him "if you are a son of God tell these stones to become loaves of bread." In reply he said: "It is written, "Man must live, not on bread alone, but on every utterance coming forth through Jehovah's mouth." And this knowledge is where? In the Bible.

If we would follow a course that is right so that we can gain life, not only must we have a Bible in our homes, which most people do, at least in Western "Protestant" lands, but we must also read it, and still more important, we must also understand what we read. If is the same as with material food. Just purchasing a loaf of bread will not stop our hunger; we must eat the bread, and more than that, our stomachs must digest it, and our blood stream must assimilate it if it is to do us any good.

That we need help to understand the Bible is made clear by the experience of a certain Jewish proselyte. At Acts 8:28-1 (NW) we read concerning him: "He was returning and was sitting in his chariot and reading aloud the prophet Isaiah. So the spirit said to Philip: 'Approach and join yourself to this chariot.' Philip ran alongside and heard him reading aloud Isaiah the prophet, and he said: 'Do you really know what you are reading aloud?' He said 'Really how could I ever do so, unless someone guided me? And he entreated Philip to get on and sit down with him."

Has not that often been the case with you, reading something in the Bible and not understanding what it really meant? No doubt that is why many do not read their Bible more, because they so often come across something that they do not understand even as was the case with the Jewish proselyte. And what was he reading, and how was it explained to him?

The next verses, Acts 8:32-35 (NW), tell us: "Now the passage of Scripture that he was reading aloud was this: 'As a sheep he was led to the slaughter, and as a lamb that is voiceless before its shearer, so he did not open his mouth. During his humiliation justice was taken away from him. Who will tell the details of his manner of life? Because his life is taken away from the earth.' In answer the eunuch said to Philip: 'I beg you, about whom does the prophet say this? About himself or about some other man?' Philip opened his mouth and, starting with this Scripture, he declared to him the good news about Jesus."

Merely reading this prophecy did not make a Christian of this Jewish proselyte, but upon Philip's explaining its meaning to him he did understand and believe, accepting Christianity and dedicating himself to God's will, being baptized in the name of Chrst Jesus without further delay.

Now is it not reasonable to conclude that just as God's provided help for those who wanted to understand his Word back there he would do the same in this, our day?

FEED FOR MILK NEEDED BY EWES LAMBING NOW

Little lambs may eat ivy, as the popular song goes, but those being raised for a profit need milk to start off with. And in many cases this state's shortage of winter grazing means their mothers may not have enough of this vital food.

Thus, API Extension Livestockman Bob Farquhar, says that sheep owners should continue supplemental feeding of their flocks. He adds that it is especially important for lambing ewes to get additional feed to keep up their flow of milk.

The supplement can be a legume hay alone. Or it may be a grass hay used with an additional one-fourth to one-half pound of cottonseed meal per head each day says the specialist. If grain is available, two to four pounds mixed with one-fourth pound of cotton seed meal is a good ration.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HEART MURMUR IN CHILDREN

The problem of murmurs of the heart is complex and varied, concerning both the physician and the parent. For example, when a child appears blue or is short of breath or has so-called edema or dropsy the symptoms are almost sufficient to establish definitely that a child has a form of heart disease. However, when a child has been seemingly well, and appears pale or tired, examination will sometimes reveal a murmur of the heart.

Occasionally a murmur is also heard in a newborn infant. Because various murmurs may or may not indicate an abnormality of the heart or because they may be completely harmless, many questions concern the physician's mind in establishing an exact diagnosis.

The pumping system of the body is generated by the heart, which is made up of four chambers. However, the blood is pumped in one direction of flow only; and this is controlled by valves. In the process the blood is pumped out into the arteries leading to all parts of the body. After the blood circulates, it is returned to the heart through the veins.

Thus sounds of the heart occur in the opening and closing of the valve in their normal function. And condition that develops within the heart and its structure, resulting in a narrowing of the valves, for example, produces different sounds or murmurs which are interpreted by the physician.

A murmur of the heart can mean many things and often nothing. In most instances, it is now possible to identify those which are a sign of some abnormality. Many of these can be corrected or controlled. Even if heart damage has occurred, the child with help and understanding will lead a relatively normal life.

VETERANS TO RECEIVE DIVIDENDS

The Veterans Administration has advised Bob Fullen, County Service Officer ,State Department of Veterans Affairs, that Veterans holding either U. S. Government Life Insurance or National Service Life Insurance policies will be paid $226,000,000 in dividends during 1955.

The NSLI dividends will amount to $200,000,000 and will be payable to holders of approximately 5,000,000 participating term and permanent plan policies.

The USGLI dividends will amount to $26,000,000 and will be payable to holders of approximately 380,000 permanent plan policies only.

Payments will be made shortly after the anniversary date of each policy beginning in January ane ending in December of 1955. On term NSLI; the dividends scale will be approximately 10 percent hgher at ages through 40 than for the 1954 dividend. For ages above 40 the increase will be somewhat greater except at age 55 for which the rate will remain unchanged.

Fullen is urging all Korean veterans to continue in effect all their insurance if possible. Amounts ranging from $1,000 up to the full amount of $10,000 may be reinstated in any one or more of the seven types policies offered by the VA.

There is no better insurance in existance and certainly the price cannot be matched.

THE COMPROMISE

By Ona Lathrop

There was a sheepish look on Bill Carlson's face this June when we met him on the street of the Northwoods resort town.

"Hi, Bill, how's tricks?" my dad and I hailed him, shaking hands, even though relations had been a trifle strained last summer.

"Fine, fine! Everything's fine with us. How about you?" He seemed somewhat ill at ease, and no wonder.

For years Bill had been our fishing guide and companion up here, although he never charged us a cent. He was a brother-in-law of a brother-in-law of a guy we knew in our home town—used to live there himself before he came north—so for old time's sake he always took us around.

"Got a new lake spotted over in the flowage," he'd gloat. "Never been fished. Fish just jumpin' in your boat," he'd grin, and come by for us before dawn or about dusk, and we'd get all we could haul in. He'd toss a light boat on top of his little cream roadster and take us back in to lakes nobody else ever seemed to know about — lakes he named himself such as Lost Lake, Crooked Lake, Weed Lake.

Bill worked for the power company, but that was just incidental. His first love in life was fishing, and that caused his downfall. Olga, his wife, declared he loved fishing better than he did her, the way he spent all his off-hours at it, leaving her alone day and night with the kids. So to get even she took up Bridge. She played Bridge day and night and got to be as crazy about it as he was about fishing.

Then last summer it came to a head. He said if she didn't stay home more and watch the kids, he was through, and she said all right, if he'd give up fishing, she'd give up Bridge. When we got up there for the summer, Bill shook his head mournfully when he met us.

"No fishin' this summer, fellows," and told us all about it. "So you see I'm stuck. I promised her not to wet a line this summer if she'd quit that everlasting Bridge And she took me up on it. I'm sorry No way to get around it."

Well, we argued and we bidded Olga, but she was adamant.

"No sir, a promise is a promise. I never played a single game of Bridge all winter, and now he's got to abide by his bargain."

So Dad and I fished old Cyclone and had to be content with what we caught. We didn't have a light boat and we couldn't get back in those wild places with our heavy car. I made us almost tough at Bill, telling a woman lead him around by the nose, but maybe so he loved her I wouldn't know. Anyway, he dodged us all summer.

And now we were back again wishing for the good old days—7 nights—of hauling in the big ones as fast as you could get them off the hook. So when we met Bill we tried to sound him out.

"How's the family?" Dad asked cordially

"Fine, just fine," he answered noncommittally. "And yours?"

"Never better," we assured him "Uh—how's the fishing up here this year?" my dad ventured.

"Wonderful! I get all the pan fish we can eat."

"You—you mean you're fishing again?" my dad asked joyfully. "Well, then—"

"Now don't get me wrong, fellows," Bill said forlornly. "I'm fishing, but not for the big ones back in those lakes we use to fish. I'm fishing, but on one condition."

"What do you mean?" we questioned.

"Well, you see, I took up Bridge last winter. Nothin' much to do these long winter evenings up here, so Olga talked me into learning it. It's not bad! She said she'd teach me Bridge and she'd only play when I played too this winter, if I'd teach her to fish and take her along every time I went fishing this summer. So you see, we compromised."

He shrugged his shoulders and turned up his palms.

Postal Regulations Undergo Revision

Postmaster R. W. Lowe of Clanton today called to the attention of mail users major new postal regulations being issued effective Dec. 1 which provide important changes and simplifications in the use of the mails.

The Post Office Department is issuing a final edition of a history making new Postal Manual which contains these changes in simple form. The new manual will bring together in less than 300 pages public interest postal regulations formerly scattered through 4,000 pages of dense print, Postmaster Lowe explained.

This publication may be obtained at 65 cents a copy from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C. And mail users anxious to keep abreast of all changes in this material that may be made from time to time may get both the pamphlet in loose-leaf format and a year's subscription to all sheets making changes for a total of $2, also from the Superintendent of Documents, the postmaster noted.

The revision of the Postal Manual Postmaster Lowe said, represents what Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has described as the most complete revision of regulations in the history of the U. S. Post Office Department.

The Department on October 21 issued the first preliminary edition, and Postmaster General Summerfield invited the general public, as well as large mailers and postal employees, to suggest constructive revisions for incorporation into the final edition. At that time, the final edition was set for November 20, but, because of the volume of the many worthwhile suggestions offered, its publication date was moved up to the present December 1.

The final regulations have been filed with the Division of the Federal Register in Washington, and will become legally effective on Dec. 1.

Postmaster Lowe noted that the new pamphlet and the new $2 package deal give the businessmen and other large mail users the easiest, most complete method of keeping completely up to date on postal information that they have ever had.

"The new publication is remarkable for its simplicity," he said. "Not only is it printed in easy-to understand English, but it contains simple black and white illustrations on how to prepare material for mailing. The print is easy to understand, and is arranged in logical sections under bold-face headings.

"Not only are the regulations issued in new simplified form, but the rules themselves have been changed. A great deal of obsolete and conflicting material has been eliminated in the process."

The new booklet is so simple that if the shipping clerk for example, in a small business is ill or absent, other employees can get a ready understanding of the postal rules from the publication, Mr. Lowe said.

The booklet is also an invaluable guide for the average householder. It shows, for example, how to package fragile materials for mailing, how to attach first class letters to packages; how stamps of unwanted denominations that are unused may be exchanged for others of different values if desired. It also tells about many other matters of special interest of all mail users, he added.

Mail users who have inquiries about any special points in connection with the new publication may direct them to the Clanton Post Office. It should be emphasized, Postmaster Lowe said, that the booklet represents the "final word" on all postal rules.

The years 1951 to 1954 saw a reduction of 10 percent in the farm population of this country.

Domestic demand for farm products is expected by experts to be about the same next year as this.

Increased efficiency through higher yields is one way a farmer can maintain his income with smaller acreage allotments.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THERE'S no fool, they say, like an old fool and sometimes I think I am the worldbeater at achieving distinction in this particular regard.

Everyone wants to know what or who is to be blamed for the blue spot I am sporting on my forehead. It's rather difficult—and embarrassing—to explain. I first attempted to place responsibility on the wife, but decided this was unfair, since she not only packs such a terrific wallop, but aims with such authority that she certainly would have caught me on one of the eyes, if not directly between them.

The "ran into the door" routine didn't work either. Too trite, the office staff said. So I told the awful truth.

To make a long story short, it happened while I was baby sitting. Junior didn't do it, either. I did it myself, shamed as I am. You know these baby things—rattles, clowns, dolls, all sorts of funny gadgets, equipped with a suction cup you wet and attach to the wall or the baby bed? Real novelties.

Well, during a lull (while the kids napped), I tested one of these gadgets for versatility—tried it on a chair, a lamp base, then on a mirror. I wondered if it would adhere as well to the human skin. So I slurped it to my forehead. It adhered, but good.

I've been told by a person supposedly an authority that I wouldn't have the blue spot had I washed my face immediately after I succeeded in getting the thing off. After so much ribbing I've decided to either wash my face more often or stop acting like a plain old fool. Something must be done!

THE BOSS AND THE BABY

By Evelyn Witter

"WHAT'S Mr. Sutton really like . . . when you get to know him I mean?" She faced Mark who was fiddling with the napkins.

"Well, honey," her husband answered her thoughtfully. "He's kinda like that unwieldy buffet from Aunt Martha, necessary but uncompromising. He hates confusion. Keeps harping on efficiency and coordination."

"Oh golly!" Carolyn moaned. "I hope everything goes all right so's he'll know you're the man for the promotion."

"Got dinner under control?"

"Yes. The roast's in the oven," Carolyn counted off on her fingers. "The potatoes will be ready to whip in five minutes, the salad's in the crisper . . . if Pricilla just sleeps through we'll be all right."

The door chimes sounded and Carolyn crossed her fingers. Mark reach over and kissed her reassuringly. "You're tops Carolyn. The boss and the baby all at the same time . . ."

They walked to the door together and admitted Mr. John A. Sutton, president of Practical Paper Enterprises. He was tall, pouchy, and almost bald except for a neatly combed forelock. He wore a grimace that might have been a smile if he had let it go.

"Happy to come!" his voice came from below his diaphragm.

"Excuse me!" Carolyn's skirt rustled madly as she hurried to Pricilla. The baby's cry was insistent with pain.

"Isn't this simply terrible?" she asked th bundle in her arms. "Oh baby, why did you have to choose this time of all times to cry so much? You're making so much confusion and Mr Sutton hates confusion."

Carolyn threw her husband a furtive glance. "Mark! The roast! The potatoes have to be drained and . . ."

"Don', worry, honey, I'll take care of everything," Mark said, but there was not a single note of certainty in his voice. Poor Mark! No wonder. She'd never allowed him to help her in the kitchen.

Pricilla disregarded the bottle turning her head this way and then that to avoid it. Her cries grew lustier.

"Poor baby . . . poor Mark . . . Carolyn sobbed into the satin-bound blanket, feeling numbed by her own inadequacy.

Mark burst back into the bedroom. "Mr. Sutton wants to know where our hot water bottle is."

Carolyn indicated the linen closet and kept walking with Pricilla. The dinner was probably a shapeless mess by now the house was bedlam, and Mark's chance of promotion was being torn to shreds.

She heard Mr. Sutton's voice: "Carolyn, bring the baby in here."

She obeyed reflexly. Mr. Sutton took Pricilla into his arms, laid her carefully in the buggy, and arranged the turkish towel wrapped water bottle near her feet. Pricilla stretched her little feet in the direction of the warmth, her eyelids flickered, she drew her arms over her head in her favorite position, and dropped off to sleep.

"Colic," Mr. Sutton whispered as they tip-toed back to the dinette. "Born of ours had it. If they get warmed through they get relief."

"The dinner!" Carolyn gasped, scanning the table.

"Ready!" Mr. Sutton boomed.

Mark laughed good-humoredly at her amazement. "I whipped the potatoes and tossed the salad while Mr. Sutton carved the roast and made the gravy," he explained proudly.

"Why, you're bosh simply wonderful!" Carolyn exclaimed while relaxation took over

"Quite," Mr. Sutton agreed. "We used teamwork, the backbone of any organization." He laid a friendly hand on Mark's shoulder, while THE BOSS AND THE BABY glanced at his watch. "We got everything under control in exactly twelve minutes!"

AMAHL AND THE NIGHT VISITORS TO BE PRESENTED

Montevallo, Ala., Dec. 4—One of the Christmas season's most popular operas, "Amahl and the Night Visitors", will be presented Sunday, Dec. 12 at 2:30 p.m. in Palmer Hall on the Alabama College campus, Montevallo.

The opera will be performed by the Conservatory Opera Department of Birmingham-Southern College and a section of the Birmingham Symphony Orchestra with Mr Arthur Bennett Lipkin conducting.

Written by Gian-Carlo Menotti "Amahl and the Night Visitors" is one of the most unique operas performed today. It was commissioned by the National Broadcasting Co in 0951 and was performed for the first time for the NBC television network on Christmas eve, 1951. It has been presented by television during each Christmas season since the first performance.

Getting of the opera is a small shabby cottage in the Holy Land on the eve of Christ's birth. The story is about a small crippled shepherd boy, Amahl. On this particular evening Amahl returns home late because he has been watching a brilliant new star in the heavens. Amahl's widowed mother does not believe the boy, and is angry with him for being late.

Later the mother discovers Amahl was telling the truth when three kings seek a night's shelter in her humble home. The kings are bearing gifts and tell Amahl's mother, they too, have seen the star, the sign of a new born babe who will become King of kings.

The opera, sung in English, climaxed when Amahl, who has no gifts for the new born Child asks the kings to take his crutches as a gift. A miracle occurs and Amahl can walk. He accompanies the kings to offer his love and his mother.

The author is one of outstanding contemporary composers of America. Among the operas written by him are: "The Telephone"; "The Old Maid and the Thief" and others. His Amahl is unique, not only because it was first performed for television, but because of its universal appeal to children as well as grown-ups.

PRIZE WINNING PARTNER

By Brad Monroe

JOHNNY and Jerry walked hastily away from the railroad station and made their way up a narrow, dark street that ran parallel to the main one. They knew well enough the reception accorded vagrants by the town police, but they had to eat. And eating was much more likely in a small town than it was in the open country.

Jerry took the lead being the brains of the pair, and because his partner knew from past experience that when there was food to be gotten no one could get it more skillfully. Proceeding unobserved for several blocks they turned into a wider street. Then suddenly, Johnny was yanked bodily to the protection of a thick hedge.

"What th'—", he started and then he heard voices. He peered through the branches and gasped. "Holy Smoke! Didja see that? Pirates n' knights n' Indians."

"With plenty to eat," Johnny moaned.

Jerry grabbed his arm. "How would ya like some of that fancy grub?"

"I'd like it fine but those people ain't good for a hand-out."

"No? Listen. It's a cinch. They'll think we're in costume with our beards and all. Get it?"

"Okay. I'll sneak some grub out the window to you and scram out of there. So long."

Johnny watched his pal walk boldly up to the front door, knock, and when it was opened, wave his hand airily at a bored maid and pass into the house.

"Some crust," Johnny muttered. Keeping to the shadows, he crossed the lawn and reached an open window. He could see Jerry at the refreshment table drinking punch and casting alsejong glances at the sandwiches and cake. It took quite a while because the food was so popular, but finally Jerry seemed to have gathered enough. He strolled toward the open window and gazed out into the night.

Johnny hissed up at him. "Pass it down." He grabbed the food as it was dropped to him and dove back into the shadows. Any moment he expected Jerry to join him but the minutes passed and he didn't come. He made his way back to the window and peered in.

"Good gosh," he gasped. "They got him." Sure enough. The only two men who had not been in costume had Jerry firmly by the arms and were leading him toward the center of the room. He saw one man raise his arm and call for quiet. That was enough for Johnny. He decided to go while the going was good.

A disquieting thought suddenly entered his rather slow mind. If he hopped the next freight out of town and left Jerry in the lurch, his not always ample diet would become even less ample. What Jerry lacked in ambition he made up for in ability to detect free food with all the skill of a hound sniffing out rabbits. On second thought, Johnny decided, he'd lurk around town for a couple of days.

The voice came again. "Wait. It's me. Jerry. Where's my grub?"

Johnny sighed with relief. "How did you get away? I thought you were headed for the pokey."

"Naw. They didn't catch on. What about those sandwiches? Did you save me any?"

"Here. But what about those guys that grabbed you?"

"Oh, them. They were judges."

"Was it one of them that gave us ten days last time?"

"Not that kind of judge, you dummy. They gave me first prize because my costume was the most re-realistic."

"What'd they give you? Fish? What was it? Dough?"

"No dough. They gave me a electric razor."

LAB TAKES ON RESEARCH IN GRADING CORN SEEDS

Auburn, Ala.—Prospects for reaching interstate aggreement in grading seed corn appears brighter than ever. The Southeastern Regional Seeds Research Labratory at Mississippi State College has agreed to undertake a two-year research project to help determine grading needs and methods.

Commenting on the value of this research, VPI Extension Seed Crops Marketing Specialist Ralph R Jones explained that precision planting requires that plates of a planter be sized correctly for seed corn it is to drop.

There are more than 600 different grades of hybrid corn seeds, the expert pointed out, and over 300 plate sizes made by manufacturers of planters. Corn seeds also vary from state to state and from grower to grower, so the whole thing adds up to one grand unsure. The only way for a farmer to be sure he can plant his corn correctly is to try the seed with the plate he will use.

Jones said the regional lab project, which is part of the Research Marketing Activity program, is to find the minimum number of grades and the best ways to size corn.

Television, but because of its universal appeal to children as well as grown-ups.

WHO OWNS THIS WEEK'S "MYSTERY FARM"?

Pensioners Are Getting Notice

Montgomery, Ala. — Only two states—Virginia and Mississippi—have average monthly old age assistance payments lower than Ala.

That is one of the facts revealed in a recently completaed study of the administration of old age assistance in Alabama by the Legislative Reference Service.

In June of 1954 the average old age payment in Alabama was $30.33 per case, compared to a national average of $91.45 and an average of $37.85 for the Southern States.

The report by the Legislative Reference Service says in a preface letter to members of the state Legislature that the study was made "to provide you with basic information on a subject standing high on Gov.-Elect James E. Folsom's legislative program."

The letter, signed by Charles M. Cooper, LRS director, also said, "No conclusions are drawn, and no recommendations are made. This is a report made by the LRS on its own initiative, under the authority of law, to assist you in the performance of your duties."

According to the report, $22,317,726 was spent in Alabama on old age assistance in the 1954-53 fiscal year, and that of the total, $17,297,200.50 came from the federal government.

State participation in the 1952-53 fiscal year was $5,020,525 and the money came from these sources: State general fund, $867,766.14; A BC (liquor) revenues, $1,230,759.36; sales tax, $1,322,000, and Confederate Pension Fund surplus, $1,600,000.

Mississippi was the only state receiving a larger proportion of old age assistance funds than did Alabama from the federal government.

The federal government will participate in old age payments that go up to $55 a month on the basis of $20 for the first $5 put up by the state and then dollar for dollar up to $55.

Old age payments in Alabama are figured on the basis of an applicant's "budgeted unmet need." The report defines that phrase as, "the difference between an applicant's basic needs, as computed in accordance with the standard prescribed by the State Department of Public Welfare, and his net income and other resources available to him."

If an applicant's unmet need is less than $10, no payment is made and in April of this year the Welfare Department, for the first time, was able to make old age assistance payments on the basis of 100 per cent of unmet need.

"That an average payment of slightly more than $30 represent 100 per cent of unmet need reflect the fact that need is computed on the basis of the barest essentials," the report said.

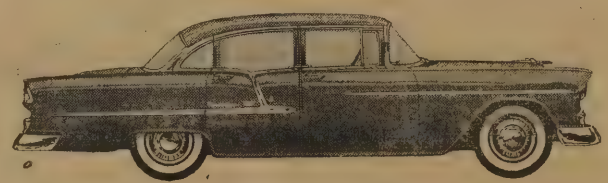
The exciting new idea behind the motoramic Chevrolet


The Bel Air 4-Door Sedan—one of 14 new Fisher Body beauties in three new series
Maybe once in a car-buying lifetime, you come across something that breaks all the old patterns and establishes new ones. This is that kind of car. This is the true story of how Chevrolet and General Motors shaped a new idea in steel.
Like most good ideas, this one is pretty simple. Chevrolet and General Motors set out to build the first low-priced car that would:
• bring you the very freshest and finest styling to be had.
• bring you the most advanced engine design and engineering features.
• bring you the kind of performance and the kind of ride that have never been available before in a low-priced car.
• bring you the highest quality of manufacture and materials.
All this in Chevrolet's price field? That did take some doing! And isn't it logical that only Chevrolet and General Motors have the people, skills, resources and facilities, to carry out this exciting new idea? Here is how this new Chevrolet changes all your ideas about cars!

Real Show-Car Styling!
Your eye tells you the Motoramic Chevrolet is no styling "patch-up" job. A rakish, low profile . . . soft swiftness from its sleek rear fenders to its wide-eyed Sweep-Sight windshield . . . a new outlook for motoring: And that outlook doesn't change when you slip inside . . . exciting fabrics and trim are harmonized with the whole car.

A Sensational Ride!
You live the new idea instantly . . . you glide . . . actually glide because spherical joints "roll with the punch" of the road in Chevrolet's new Glide-Ride front suspension. And outrigger rear springs mean new balance in turns . . . turns made so effortless by new ball-race steering.
And when you stop suddenly, new Anti-Dive braking control checks that nosing down in front . . . you get "heads up" stopping; Tubeless tires mean much greater protection against blowouts: And with new high-level ventilation there's fresher air.
Drive with care . . . EVERYWHERE! Make December 15 and every day SAFE-DRIVING DAY!
Power Beyond Compare!

You also feel the new idea quickly . . . quick power like a panther's paw with the new "Turbo-Fire V8" (162 h.p.) and two new "Blue-Flame" 6's. And sparking this performance is a 12-volt electrical system giving you better ignition, faster starting, greater electrical reserve for any of the power assists you might desire. You have a transmission choice of economical Overdrive and improved, automatic Powerglide (optional at extra cost) or standard shift.
Even Air Conditioning!
And if you desire the convenience of power assists (optional at extra cost) . . . you'll find new power-steering and improved power brakes on all models. Power-controlled windows and powershift seat are available on the Bel Air and "Two-Ten" models, while air conditioning may be added on V8 models.
Won't You Try It?
Here, we can only tell you how successfully the Motoramic Chevrolet expresses the new idea behind it. But the car itself can quickly show you! Come in for a demonstration drive, won't you, first chance you get.

Helping Develop Alabama

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The five-year-old is in the tree-climbing stage—and has been for some time. He has been shown which trees in the yard are safe to climb; and he has been warned to stay out of the trees in the next door neighbor's yard, she being very particular about all her trees and shrubbery.

"Well," he said miserably. "I guess I forgot, and I climbed up in one of those trees next door and I broke a limb." He slumped down in a chair and sat staring off into space evidently suffering from his transgression. Then he brightened a bit and said:

"Well, maybe it wasn't one of the next door neighbor's trees. Maybe it was one of God's trees I broke and God understands about little boys climbing trees."

The neighbor around the corner was getting out all the ornament to decorate her Christmas tree (beautiful, symmetrical tree with n limbs missing) when we stopped by to see her.

"It's fun putting all the ornaments on the tree," she said. "But I'm already dreading the task of taking them off and packing them away when we take the tree down.

"I wish I could just throw away the tree and everything on it after Christmas."

If she followed the example of the neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, she could do just that. This neighbor and her brood have been busy for days making ornaments so inexpensive that, if they choose, they can discard them when the holidays are over. Most of their decorations for the tree are of the "snow" variety, and all of them are homemade.

They made their "snow" by stirring a cup of detergent into four tablespoons of plastic starch. Then they beat the mixture with a rotary beater for one minute.

The mixture was used to ice all sorts of things: jajr rings, pine cones, cardboard stars, metal cleaning pads and even cardboard Santa Clauses. When their Santas dried they used water colors to paint on features and red suits and caps. They used pipe cleaners to hang their ornaments from the tree.

"Even the smallest child can help decorate the tree," this neighbor says. "Because nothing will break if it falls from their small eager hands."

They're using old-fashioned garlands of popcorn and cranberries to drape around the branches, and some of the children have cut chains of hand-holding boys and girls from aluminum foil for added decoration.

The next door neighbor, who goes in for more elaborate decorations has created a distinctive arrangement for her mirrored living room mantle. She sprayed three pineapples with silver paint, stuck a tall green candle in the top of each pineapple and put them in the center of her mantle with sprays of greenery around the base.

* * *

The favorite holiday salad around our house is made like this: Dissolve 1 package lemon gelatin in cup hot orange juice. Soften package plain gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water and dissolve in three fourth cup hot water. Combine. Add to mixture 2 cups cranberries which have been ground with 1 and one-half cups sugar, 1 chopped apple, one-half cup diced celery, 1 small can crushed pineapple and one-half cup broken nuts meats. Mix well and allow to congeal.

Things we -SEE- and Hear

by "Tuck"

Our favorite artist won the grand prize for the prettiest window this year and we are mighty proud of him. He's Vernon Payne, a pretty good friend of ours and we think he deserved it anyhow. He worked out in the cold on it for the better part of a day and it was a mighty cold day, at that. Clanton Motors and the Fashion Shop were honorable mentions in the contest and do have two beautiful windows. To tell the truth, I'd hate to have been a judge because we think the windows in town this year are the prettiest they've ever been.

One fellow in particular who should get an honorable mention for the decorations all over town is George Fulmer. Ole George spent many unpleasant hours up on them poles trying to establish us with Christmas lights over town. We appreciate his efforts and all those who worked with him.

The Jaycees have done a splendid job this year on the decorations and the Christmas tree at the City Hall is next to perfect. Dr. Bill Eiland and his boys have done a fine job this year. Bill himself has put a lotta working hours on the project, but even so we'll bet it's one he's proud to have been a part of. Congratulations to him and all the Junior Chamber for decorating our town as it's never been decorated before and we just want them to know we appreciate their efforts. You could tell it was appreciated by the crowd that turned out Friday night. The singing at the courthouse drew some of the crowd, but we saw none turn away from the parade and the goings on across the street.

A lotta kids got to tell old Santa Claus what they wanted him to bring them and it made a lot of little guys mighty happy to get to talk to Old St. Nick himself in the flesh. He even got extravagant with his candy and threw it right and left by the handsfull. Just hope he has enough left when he comes around Dec. 24.

We hope the kids get what they asked for to make this the most eventful and merriest Christmas we have ever seen in Chilton County.

Elsewhere in this issue you'll find some interesting reading about two local fellows who were raised together around these parts. One of them left home and returned again last Friday. . . after 55 years. We'd like to thank our good friend Marshall Williams for putting us onto the story. Seems he not only makes a fine police officer, but he might have possibilities as a reporter to. One thing about Marshall, he knows where to bring the news so everyone will hear about it and see it

See where a 700 pound bull got loose in Denver recently & wandered off into the town. When he had to stop for a red light a passer-by roped him and tied him to a parking meter. That would have made a much better tale had they stuck the bull for overparking or the passer-by had put a nickel in the meter.

Rev. Walker and his folks out in Glendale have supplied some beautiful Christmas music for the neighborhood and passers-by and we think it's a fine idea. We have real Christmas music right in our backyard now and if anything will put that old Christmas spirit into you it's Christmas carols. We only wish everyone could hear them.

We think a rennovation was due on the Alabama license plates this year, but we'll have to disagree with old Vulcan and say we don't think they're quite made it. A coupla improvements here and there is all we see wrong with them. We appreciate the change, it was getting monotonous.

For one thing, you can't distinguish the number in the heart totally. Can't tell whether it's 1A or 7 or 1B or what. Maybe next year they'll get the kinks out of the new idea. Until then, maybe it's an advantage to the speedy motorist the cops will have a tough time telling what county you're from.

Heard the other day that Marion T. Eatserling of our local radio station has recently been honored in some way or other by having had a program of gospel songs on the air for a record 7 years. (We don't know whether that includes the whole United States and Cannidy) or not but we do know it's seven years of congratulate him on his achievement and service to the people. He has been with WKLF for quite some time now and we don't know whether or not he has a million friends like they say, but we bet volunteer to count 'em, eather

A Christmas Present- Chilton County Gets Two New Industries

To Speak At First Baptist

REV. FRANK LING

Rev. Frank Ling, a native of Shangai, China, son of Dr. T. L. Ling, the late dean of the university of Shangai, will be the guest speaker Sunday morning in the First Baptist Church. Bro. Ling was led to the Lord and baptized by Dr. J. P. Phipps, who, for over twenty-five years, was a missionary in China. Bro. Ling was with the last group that escaped Shangai before the Communists occupied the city. This was on May 23rd, 1949. He arrived in the United States in September of that year and entered New Orleans Theological Seminary, where in 1952 he received the degree of Bachelor of Divinity and in 1953 the degree of Master of Religious Education.

At present Bro. Ling is pastor of the Nixville Baptist Church of Estill, South Carolina.

The First Baptist Church extends a cordial invitation to the people of our community to hear Bro. Ling.

Lee Boockholdts Celebrate Their 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Boockholdt of the Esterprise community will observe their Golden Anniversary at their home with a reception Sunday afternoon, December 19. They invite all friends to drop by. The home is located at the end of the Enterprise paved road, near the school house.

For those of you who don't like music (if there be any) this is not a column donated to music lovers. It just happened that way this week. However, on the other hand what are we apologizing for, if they aren't interested in music they haven't gotten this far anyhow, so it's too late to be apologizing.

Heard a fella say the other day that his business surely did take up a lot of his time. (apparently very valuable time). He says he hardly has time for more than squirrel hunting, fishing, and an occasional game of golf nowadays and it just isn't fair for a man to have to work so hard. We know some folks who might think he was in Paradise.

Clanton Issues In Yule Season Amid Bright Lights And Music

Better watch out, better not cry, better not pout, the old fat man with the long white beard is in town.

He issued in the Christmas season last Friday night with a parade featuring the Chilton County High School band. The festivities were sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and promises to grow into an annual affair on a much bigger scale.

The jolly Saint Nick rode up second Ave. on the back of a convertible throwing stick candy to the right and left making the children very happy. (Some guy stepped on my finger).

The parade started at the Willingham Hotel and as Santa Claus and the other vehicles and band progressed toward the City Hall the Christmas lights would go on as each strand of lights were reached, making it a very colorful affair.

Bill Eiland, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce rode in the lead car and about the time he got even with where I was standing here comes another train of stick candy. Well, the crowds piled off the curb to get the goodies and we got another finger smashed.

All the time jolly old Santa sat and Ho-Ho-Hoed and threw more candy. And let me tell you, the fellow who represented Kris Kringle surely did one excellent job.

When the city hall was reached a huge Christmas tree was waiting to be lighted. This was promptly done and after a short speech and welcome by the Chamber president Prizes were given for the most original and prettiest windows and the Chilton County News won first prize. The window was painted by Vernon Payne and if I do say so it was a swell job.

Clanton Motors and Johnson' Fashion Shop got honorable mention on their windows. Both are very beautiful. In fact we never have seen so many pretty windows in Clanton and most of the credit goes to the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who sponsored the Christmas Carnival this year.

Congratulations to all who took part in the affair.

Isabella Juniors To Present Play

The Junior Class of Isabella Hi will present the play, "It's Papa Who Pays", Thursday evening December 16, at 7:30 p.m.

Papa cracks down on the family for entering so many contests. Contests are against his principles—he'll have no more of them—and then he wins a car in a contest he had forgotten he'd entered! To keep the family from finding out, papa fibs a bit. He tells them he has bought a car with the money from a brother who repaid a loan. Then the brother appears. To make matters worse it develops that papa hasn't won first prize but only second prize—a Russian wolfhound. Papa is egged on to bigger and better lies by his friend, Mr. Fixer—who fixes everything wrong.

Jemison Couple In Plane Crash

A Boyd Aero Service charter plane lost power over the Sangre De Christo Mountains today and made a crash landing on the mountain side above Tesque, shaking up its three occupants.

State Policeman M. A. Matteson said the pilot, J. W. Lusk, and passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cobb, were "lucky to get out alive."

Matteson said the plane, crumpled between two trees just off State Road 22 below the Sante Fe ski basin, was "just about a total loss."

He said Lusk told him the single engine aircraft began losing power shortly before he made the landing.

It takes only two weeks of warfarin baiting to rid farmers of rats.

Jemison Baptists Present Yule Play

The Jemison Baptist church will present "Three Candles", a Christmas pageant by Carol Johnston Sharp on December 19. The pageant dramatizes the three candles o Prophecy, fulfillment, and discipleship which, "Through long centuries of our knowledge of the story of Christmas have illumined the hearts of men." The church choir and a community Junior choir will present the musical program. The church extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend this program.

Mt. Nebo Pageant Sunday Night

There will be a Christmas Pageant at Mt. Nebo church on Sunday night, December 19, beginning at 7 o'clock.

A White Christmas offering fo the Children's Home in Selma, Ala will be taken.

The church extends a most cordial invitation to everyone to attend this program.

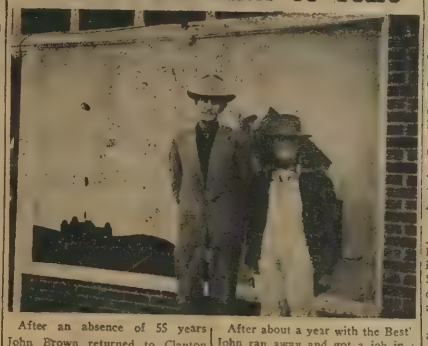
Reunited Here After 55 Years



After an absence of 55 years John Brown returned to Clanton last Thursday. His path led thru the South and West during the past half century but he now lives at Pensacola, Florida.

The story of John Brown and R. M. Culp, two orphaned boys reads like fiction, especially the story of John Brown, but it is all true.

When John was a little boy his mother died leaving him with an aunt, Mrs. Sallie Lawson. When he was ten his aunt died and was buried in the cemetery at Pleasant Grove Church here in Chilton County. Well, he was orphaned again and went to live with Jim Best where he grew even closer to his dearest friend R. M. Culp. Both being orphans we suppose the two boys felt they had something in common and according to John they played and fought together.

After about a year with the Best' John ran away and got a job in a cotton mill in Montgomery where he only stayed a short while. Moving on he took up construction work and today is still following the same work.

Last Thursday he arrived back in Chilton County for the first time in 55 years and looked up old friends—the closest and dearest being R. M. Culp.

John Brown spent the week-end here looking for information about two cousins, Agnes and Claud Lawson, the only living relatives he knows anything about. These cousins he has not seen since leaving here 55 years ago either.

If you want to make someone happy for the Christmas season you can let John Brown have any information you have regarding Agnes and Claud Lawson. That's the best Christmas present you could give him.

Clanton To Be New Home Of Lithography Corporations

Two subsidiaries of one of the South's largest printing concerns will locate in Clanton, according to an announcement today by Dr. J. E. Edgar, president, Chilton County Chamber of Commerce.

Carbon Copies, Inc. and Photo Offset, Inc., subsidiary companies of Lowry Premier Corporation, of Birmingham reached the decision only this week to locate in Clanton after several months of negotiations with the local Chamber of Commerce and City officials, Dr. Edgar said.

"The Chamber is especially proud to have played the leading role in bringing these two important additions into the business family of this community," the Chamber president said.

While no definite figure was given as to the possible number of people to be employed by the companies, Robert W. Lowry, pres. of the parent corporation said, "we expect to grow with Clanton and to expand our facilities as rapidly as practicable, employing at all times, with very few exceptions people from this community."

Both companies will occupy the same quarters for the time being, Mr. Lowry said. The companies have completed the purchase of part of the Cooper Lumber Company Building and extra lot for expansion.

"Since we began negotiations for a plant several months ago, we have had many nice people extend every courtesy to us.

Such courtesies are certainly indicative of fine, friendly and cooperative community spirit, and they have made it possible for me to invest in the future of Clanton. To Dr. Edgar, the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce composed of Hollis Jackson, Chairman, Leo Thompson, Harold Foshee, Grady Heflin, and Gordon Robertson Judge Dave Tingle, Mayor Jones and to all others who have cooperated so generously with us, I pledge my faith and confidence in that future." Mr. Lowry said.

"Among the factors which influenced the selection of Clanton for our new location resulting from an extensive survey of Clanton, and Chilton County, revealed many features favorable to the needs for such an operation as ours." Mr. Lowry stated.

1. Available labor supply in adequate quantity and quality;
2. Favorable geographic location with regard to markets;
3. Favorable transportation facilities, both rail and truck;
4. Utilities such as water, gas, electricity, sewage readily available at favorable rates;
5. A number of desirable industrial sites from which to select;
6. A community well balanced with good churches, schools, hospitals and recreational facilities;
7. Favorable tax rates;
8. Adequate housing facilities.

Because of the outstanding features mentioned above we did not hesitate in selecting Clanton as our new home.

Contractors are already at work in remodeling the building and preparation of adjoining site for new structure. The City is also engaged in opening up a new street to the site and extending water, gas and sewage.

Chilton Has 77 Known Cases of TB

There are 77 known cases of tuberculosis right here in our county, of which 12 were newly discovered in 1953. There have been 53 TB deaths among us in the last ten year period.

These are the bare facts about TB in Chilton County, emphasized here this week by Mrs. Mabel Bean who is president of the county's Christmas Seal Sale.

"The people who die of this disease die needlessly. Tuberculosis is preventable. It is curable when found in time," the chairman said.

"But, let's look to the living. Let's do more to prevent more needless dying. Let's stamp out TB.

"We help do this every time we stick a Christmas Seal on holiday mail and packages. Not only do the little Seals bear a vital message—they provide funds to keep this message singing the whole year through.

"If we fall behind in the annual Seal Sale, then we take a step backward in preventing the spread of a stealthy and unseen enemy one which does not show itself in too many cases, until its prey is helpless.

"If we do our very best through the purchase and use of Christmas Seals, then we will be better armed to carry out improved methods of fighting TB next year."

The chairman said the figures on the known cases and deaths for the county came from the records of the State Department of Health.

"Let's fight these figures with Christmas Seals."

A Vitally Important Message From Folks And Things About Town

This is the most important appeal that we will make to our readers so if you can help us please do so. Raymond Popwell needs an eye and this is what you can do to help him. According to his doctors he can see again if he can get a cornea. A cornea is the transparent part of the coat of the eyeball which covers the iris and pupil and admits light to the interior. This does not disfigure the eye in any way and must be taken within six hours after death and surely not more than eight hours. The age of the person from which the cornea is taken must be between the ages of six years and fifty years. If some family in Chilton County would consent to help Raymond regain his eyesight we are sure the entire family would be forever grateful. A doctor from Birmingham would come to Clanton and remove the cornea as quickly as he could reach her after being called so if misfortune strikes your family remember, you can help another by calling Horace Popwell or the writer and offering to make it possible that Raymond see again.

It was very evident that Jackie and Jan Wright, twin nieces of Mrs. Ralph Morrison, are as much alike as two peas in a pod. Recently Jan has had a seige of sickness that made it necessary for her to stay in bed. Naturally Jackie, went often for a visit. Once when she was hurrying down the hall a nurse grabbed her and said; "You know better that to get up." Then she rushed her on to the room to put her back to bed and there lay Jan. She was astonished to say the least. So, Jackie says, it's wonderful to be a twin—that is, unless they try to put you to bed. Jan's many friends will be glad to know that she's much improved and is at home.

Why don't our city Fathers take a hint from Centerville. Over there they have put paper bags over the parking meters until Dec. 31, and on the bags is printed in large letters, "Merry Christmas". We'll be glad to print the bags.

Lally Bates and Roy Coker are operating the new Gulf Station in South Clanton just across the bridge. South City Gulf Station is the name under which the new firm will operate. Go down and help the boys along.

Remember to do this before Christmas. If there is anyone who has not been solicited for a contribution to the Boy Scouts of America Campaign Fund please mail or send your contribution to C. C. Craig or Gordon Robertson. Claude says the funds are needed badly to carry on this most worthy project so before you forget it—go and send a cash donation now.

A rather fragile looking gent was hailed into court for striking his wife, a large buxom woman. "Why did you strike your wife?" Well, your honor," said the defendent softly, "she had her back to me, the broomstick was handy and the back door was wide open. So I took a chance."

You can be a free soul just as long as yuo do not expect favors from other people.

* * * *

There are some bright boys and girls who are already expressing their complete belief in Santa Claus.

* * * *

The ignorance about this part of the nation in other areas, is only equalled by our ignorance about other sections.

"BUT FOR THE GRACE OF GOD . . . . ."

Did you ever wake up on Christmas morning to an empty stocking? A barren cupboard? A table with no fruit and nuts upon it, and a tree with no presents under it?

We're sure you haven't so you cannot vision the distress in the hearts of little children who will have that experience this Christmas unless you do something about it.

Could you enjoy a bountiful Christmas knowing that others less fortunate have nothing at all? We don't believe you could.

Hundreds of children and grown-ups in Chilton County will go without Christmas this year unless the citizenry as a whole get behind the Christmas Chest and furnish the needed items and cash to take care of the unfortunate few who cannot take care of themselves.

The response to date has been good, but should have been better. Let's stop thinking of ourselves for awhile and put our thoughts to helping a fellowman and thanking the good Lord that we are able to be the one who is doing the helping instead of the one who is being helped.

Remember: "But for the grace of God, there go I . . ."

POLIO IS A BIGGER JOB NOW

On January 3, the annual March of Dimes will start its drive for polio-fighting funds. While the year just ending has witnessed giant strides against this crippling disease, victory is not yet won.

The trial vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk was given last spring to 440,000 children. Now an evaluation of its effectiveness in preventing polio paralysis is being made at the University of Michigan. Health records of 1,830,000 children in the first three grades of 14,000 schools in the 217 trial areas are being studied.

But up to now we cannot know whether the vaccine protected against paralytic polio, and we will not know until spring. Meanwhile, the fight must go steadily on.

Even if the vaccine is effective, polio still will strike in the years just ahead. It takes time for a preventive to become widely used. We must expect tens of thousands of men, women and children to be stricken and to need March of Dimes aid. That help must be available to them.

The fight against polio is being carried out on four fronts—polio prevention, patient aid, scientific research and professional education. This makes it a much bigger job now. Great advances have been made in the past few years but the four-front attack must continue until final victory.

The March of Dimes needs our whole-hearted support right now to do a bigger job for all of us. Dig deep during this January drive. It's your fight and it's my fight.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—Is wire-tapping a federal crime?

A—Under a 1934 federal law, and subsequent court interpretation, wire tapping is illegal only if the information obtained is divulged without prior authorization of the sender. No one has ever been convicted of wire tapping under this law, although wire-tapping is practiced by such agencies as the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Many federal convictions based on wire-tapped evidence have been reversed. Despite numerous court rulings, the wire-tapping issue has not been resolved.

Q—How can the Administration predict both a $2.9 billion budget deficit for fiscal 1955, and a $100 million "cash" surplus?

A—Part of the federal government's income and outgo passes through trust funds—such as the Social Security retirement "kitty." Trust fund dollars are segregated from the conventional budget books, but are counted in the cash budget because they reflect actual money transfers between the government and the public. The trust funds so far take in more than they pay out.

Q—The Constitution provides that one-third of the Senate's seats—32—will be filled by ptcctn.n every two years. How much above this quota have we gone in recent years, because of deaths and resignations?

A—Thirty-five Senators were elected in 1952, 34 in 1950. In 1954, 35 seats will be at stake—more if additional vacancies occur before then.

Q—Are all imported Mexican farm laborers illegal "wetbacks?"

A—No Congress Aug. 1 extended the law authorizing controlled recruitment and importation of Mexican farm laborers. More than 197,000 were contracted for in 1953.

IT'S MY OPINION

I have been wanting to say this for a long time. Reason for that is anthings as moving and as impressive as this particular subject is to me I just think it needs saying.

The Blackwood Brothers Quartet was relatively unknown to me just a few months ago. Since the time of their fatal accident here at the local airport we have tried to keep up with them and have listened to them sing. It's my opinion that they are the best quartet for their kind of singing, in the country today. And Mr. Bill Lyles was the best Bass.

All in all they're a fine group of singers and just listening to them sing can swell you up inside. You can tell that's what they are trying to do when they sing. . .to put over to you the feeling they are getting from their singing. That's just what they do. If that isn't what they intend, then they're fooling themselves.

You can tell in their voices that they are straining every effort to make their singing heard and felt at the same time. If you'll listen intently you can feel it yourself. That's why they're the best. Because they can do you more good just by singing a song that you like to hear than anything else you could do. If they ever wonder if they are serving a purpose in life or accomplishing anything, other than making a living for themselves and their families, then we'll tell them they are. When you can make someone else feel the reverence or massage in your voice, whether singing or just talking you are truly blessed.

It's something inside you. Each of us has it I guess, we just cultivate it or we don't. But not one of us with any sensitive feeling can help from being moved by the singing of someone who feels what they are singing and believe it. It's sort of a two-way-radio or radar system, transporting the feelings of one to another through their voices. It's also something beyond us, maybe that's why it's so moving. They enjoy their work and it shows up in their interpretation of a song. They couldn't hide the way they feel and still sing the way they do. They do as much good as anyone possibly could when it comes to the spiritual side of life.

They are the best, in my opinion for that reason alone. Not necessarily because they are the best 'vocalist', but they can preach you a sermon just by singing a song. If you doubt it, you haven't heard them sing.

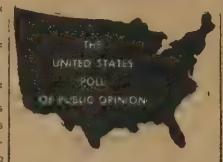
SEED GROWERS TO MEET IN AUBURN FEBRUARY 21

Auburn, Ala.—The president of the International Crop Improvement Association, C. R. Porter of Lincoln, Nebraska, will be in Auburn Feb. 21 as the guest of the Alabama Crop Improvement Association, Jimmy Henderson of Miller's Ferry, ACIA vice-president, announced this week that Porter will be featured speaker at the state association's annual meeting.

Henderson, who is chairman of the program committee, said plans for the day call for a study of ways to provide larger quantities of better crop seeds for Alabama farmers. The association is made up of some 500 certified seed growers throughout the state. Henderson expects around 200 of the members to attend the all-day meeting at Duncan Hall on the API campus.



37 PER CENT OF ADULTS SEE SMOKING LINKED WITH CANCER

Smokers less willing to believe this

Princeton, New Jersey—Results of a recent Nationwide United States Poll survey show that out of every 8 adults questioned, about 3 in each 8 are disposed to believe that cigarette smoking is one of the causes of lung cancer.

And just about the same proportion-3 out of each 8-are of the opinion that cigarette smoking is not one of the causes of lung cancer.

The remaining 2 in 8 express no opinion on the matter.

Here is the vote of the general public, including cigarette smokers and non-cigarette smokers:

"In your opinion, do you think cigarette smoking is one of the causes of lung cancer or not?"

Nationwide

Yes	37%
No	38
No opinion	25

Analysis of the findings by the various population groups and by smokers and non-smokers sheds further light on the question.

First of all, higher proportions of women than men are of the opinion that cigarette smoking is one of the causes of lung cancer.

Men

Yes, 32%; no, 36; no opinion, 32.

Women

Yes, 42%; no, 39; no opinion, 19.

This includes smokers and non-smokers.

And people who say they are not cigarette smokers at the present time are more enclined to say that cigarette smoking is linked to lung cancer than are cigarette smokers.

Smokers

Yes, 22%; no, 54; no opinion, 24.

Non-smokers

Yes, 53%; no, 21; no opinion, 26.

The group most convinced that there is a correlation between smoking and lung cancer are former cigarette smokers who have given up the habit.

The group next most convinced are those who have never used cigarettes at all.

Heavy smokers, those who smoke a pack a day or more, are least inclined to believe that there's a connection between smoking and lung cancer.

Here's the way non-smokers voted:

All Adult Non-smokers

Formerly smoked cigarettes:

Yes, 55%; no, 20; no opinion, 25.

Never smoked cigarettes:

Yes, 51%; no, 22; no opinion, 27.

And here's the vote of present smokers:

All Adult Smokers

Less than a pack a day:

Yes, 30%; no, 50; no opinion, 20.

Pack a day or more:

Yes, 16%; no, 58; no opinion, 26.

WINTER

Temperature of the body is controlled by a mechanical system Actually, the sensation of heat or cold is not due to the change of body temperature but to a change in temperature of the skin. For example, when the skin has the sensation of cold, involuntary messages are sent to the brain where a device is located that acts like a thermostat. Acting automatically, it helps the body to maintain its own normal temperature. Thus if a person is in good health, the normal temperature may vary from 97 to 99 degrees Fahrenheit.

It is interesting that man is able to withstand heat much better than cold. Cold emperatures favor congestion of slowing down of the circulation in vital tissues.

While the normal mechanics of the body are so set up to withstand temperature changes, outside aids are essential. Clothing should be warmer. Unfortunately prevailing styles for women make them especially vulnerable to cold. They are inclined to avoid mufflers, overshoes and warm outer clothing which help keep the body protected against penetrating cold.

Care should be used to avoid accidents and even deaths from carbon monoxide. In below-freezing temperatures, some persons are inclined to warm up their automobiles in closed garages or even drive with the windows tightly closed. The seepage from the exhaust is dangerous.

In winter, too, the body demands more energy producing foods. The tissues use more oxygen during exposure to cold. In cold weather blood flow diminishes through the skin; sweating is reduced, if not completely, at least to a minimum degree.

Are you ready for winter? Help your own physical comfort by using a little common sense. Help by wearing suitable apparel and eating well-balanced meals to provide energy.

NEW FILM ON TRAPPING AVAILABLE TO COUNTIES

Auburn, Ala.—An API Extension Service film on trapping for fur is now available for use in Alabama counties.

In making the announcement Visual Aids Specialist Glenn Stewart said this week he knew of no other educational movie on fur trapping in this country. "I think our 22-minute Alabama produced film will be of great interest to 4-H Club boys and to farmers thru out the state," added the movie's maker.

Stewart produced the film in cooperation with Extension Fish and Wildlife Specialist Earl F. Kennamer.

Pointing out that the 100 million dollar annual fur crop in this country does not satisfy demand, Stewart said trapping offers opportunities for pleasure and profit. The film covers equipment, where and how to trap, prepare, pack and ship pelts.

The Extension Service now has one print of the movie, with three others to be added soon.

ALABAMA BEING USED AS DUMPING GROUND FOR "BAD EGGS" SAYS STEWART

Montgomery, Alabama—Legislation to prevent the use of Alabama as a dumping ground for poor quality eggs will be asked of the next Legislature by the State Department of Agriculture and Industries Writing in a recent issue of the bulletin, Alabama Farmer, Agriculture and Industries Commissioner Frank M. Stewart said legislation is needed because the state's persent law is "obsolete and wholly inadequate to meet present-day needs relative to the sale of eggs."

Egg production in Alabama ha increased considerably in recent years, Stewart said, and it is difficult for state producers to mark their fresh eggs in competition wi inferior eggs shipped into Alaba from other states.

"Because of the fact that we not have an egg grading and labe ing law and many other states have such a law," he said, "A bama has become a dumping grou for poor quality eggs."

"It is felt that a law requir grading and accurate labeling eggs would protect consumers providing them with high qual eggs on a fair competetive ba which is not the case when quality eggs are misrepresent for retail sale purposes."

"Christmas"

"Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace, good will toward men," Luke 2:14. What a magic word is Christmas! What memories it stirs in our hearts and minds. It is a season set apart for gladness and fellowship and family memories. As we gather in our homes and churches to honor the Christ Child, Christians everywhere are pausing in reverent recollection of that Holy Night of long ago. Carols are being played and sung, trees are being lighted, cards are sent to friends bearing messages of good will and cheer, gifts are being sent and received. Christmas joy, peace good will, salvation and eternal life. The message of Christmas is a picture. There are shadows and light and childhood is there. The pure light that ever glows around the manger illumines childhood forever and every child becomes sacred because God came to earth in the form of a babe. Poverty is in the picture. The shepherds, Mary and Joseph and the child in a manger Encouragement was born that night and hope. The songs of the angels bearing the message of a Saviour is in the picture.

The message of Christmas promises complete fulfillment of a promises "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light."

Merry Christmas To You

If I could do what ere' I want to do
To make complete your gladsome Christmas Day,
I would not bring a single thing to you,
But I would come and take some things away.

I'd take away all trouble from your heart,
Each pain and sorrow I would have relieved,
And every word that caused a single smart,
And every hour through which you sadly grieved.

I'd have them all gone, foreve gone,
Forgotten, like the things that can not be,
And then each hour would be a joy ful one,
For only joyful ones would be left you see.

Now that is what I'd really like t do,
If I could do the things I wis for you.
May you have the gladness o Christmas, which is HOPE
The spirit of Christmas, which i PEACE,
The heart of Christmas, which is LOVE.

Construction To Start Soon On Clanton Armory

16 towns get new armories—

Construction of armories was assured when Gov. Gordon Persons last week released a $350,000 conditional appropriation to the State Armory Commission.

The money will be used to match federal funds on a 75-25 basis, with the federal government putting up 75 percent to 25 for the state.

The armories, to be of the standard one-unit design, will be built at Auburn, Tuskegee, Union Springs, Dadeville, Clanton, Winfield, Northport, Reform, Marion Demopolis, Attalla, Arab, Boaz, Butler, Opp and Chickasaw.

In anticipation of the release of the conditional appropriation by Gov. Persons the State Military Department already had asked for an opened bids for construction of the armories.

Contracts for the construction are now in Washington awaiting approval of the National Guard Bureau. Work should begin shortly after final approval is given by the Bureau.

Release of this $350,000 made the third such appropriation turned over to the Armory Commission by Gov Persons. With the federal money the 16 newest projects will cost an estimated $1,600,000.

These latest projects bring to 60 the number of one-unit armories constructed, under construction or authorized in the past two years. An application for approval of 16 more is now before the Reserve Forces Facilities Committee in Washington, and the governor said Alabama has been assured approval will be granted.

Water For The Farmers Wanted

Montgomery, Ala.— Alabama's next Legislature should consider legislation on the subject of irrigation and use of water for agricultural purposes, it has been declared by Agriculture and Industries Commissioner Frank M. Stewart.

In a recent issue of Alabama Farmer, bulletin published by the A and I Department, Stewart wrote that the problem is one worthy of consideration by farmers and agencies interested in the walfare of farm people.

"Due to the drought which Alabama has experienced during the past four years, and particularly the severe drought of this year which so far has not been broken we are very conscious of the need of water" Stewart said. "Due to this fact, it would seem that it would be well for the incoming Legislature to consider some means of making a study of Alabama's water resources."

Irrigation is already being used in some pastures and for certain crops, the commissioner said, and added:

"A study is now underway to determine the best methods of use of our available water supplies together with the rights of land owners and farmers to use water from flowing streams, wells, lakes and other sources, as it is felt that legal problems concerning these rights should be clarified by legislation."

The state probably will be interested in possible benefits that will be available under recent legislation known as the Water Shed Protection Act and The Water Facilities Act, but state legislation may be necessary to receive these benefits, Stewart said.

BILL OF RIGHTS DAY IN ALABAMA

Wednesday was Bill of Rights Day in Alabama.

In a proclamation issued last week in honor of the occasion, the Gov asked all citizens of the state, "to pause and consider anew the Bill of Rights and then to re-evaluate himself and his thinking in the light of the truths to be found there."

The Bill of Rights, "that priceless section of the U. S. Constitution upholding certain human rights held to be fundamental and basic liberties," shall not be used as a means to distort and destroy the basic principles for which it stands," the governor said.

A company doesn't just happen to live for 75 years. Usually some one factor, more than others, makes it possible. In the case of Southern Bell, the magic ingredient has been the public's acceptance of good and growing telephone service furnished at the lowest possible cost.

Chartered on December 20, 1879, with 1,246 telephones, Southern Bell was formed by men of foresight, with faith in the South's future. Their faith was borne out, and the Company grew to 26,396 telephones by 1900.

Since World War II, telephone progress in the South has broken all records: From 1,863,000 telephones at the end of 1945 to over 4,500,000 today, while Long Distance circuits have more than doubled. Such remarkable scientific developments as the transistor, microwave radio-relay and direct operator dialing of Long Distance calls have opened exciting new vistas of service.

In the years ahead, the men and women of Southern Bell pledge to keep on furnishing the best possible telephone service at the lowest possible cost. On this, our 75th Anniversary, we express our appreciation for the opportunity of serving you.

Christmas Poem—

Look at the Christmas tree tonight
So full of ornaments and color ful lights.
To me and all who see,
Know Christmas is here as they look at the tree.
It brings joy to every girl and boy
And to everyone a toy.

On Christmas Eve—

Down the chimney on Christmas Eve,
Came a man with games and toys
He told me they were for good girls and boys.
I asked him if he had some for me
He said, "yes", and put them under the Christmas tree.
The next morning when I opened them, I found a teddy bear
He gave me a doll and a toy train
He gave me a dress and a toy plane
With these toys I'll always play
And hope he'll come back another Christmas Day.

When It's Christmas—

When snow is all on the ground
And Christmas trees are all a round;
Santa's helpers have to get out
With Santa, reindeer and sleigh given out.
So that children's presents may be

Christmas Hearth Rhyme—

Sing we all merrily,
Christmas is here,
The day we love best,
Of all days in the year.
Bring forth the holly,
The box and the bay,
Deck out our cottage,
For glad Christmas Day.
Sing we all merrily,
Draw near the fire,
Sister and brother,
Grandma and sire.

A Child—

So long ago in Bethlehem,
Was born to earth a child,
To Mary, gentlest mother,
So kind, so meek, so mild.
While Shepherds were kneeling,
He lay in the manger,
And near him his mother,
So safe from all danger.

TELEPHONE RATES ARE A LITTLE TOO HIGH, SAYS COMMISSION

Montgomery, Ala. A hearing has been called by the Alabama Public Service Commission on Dec. 21 for Southern Bell Telephone Co. to show cause why its rates should not be reduced.

In issuing the order PSC Pres. C. C. (Jack) Owen said the action was taken because an examination of the commission's rate expert revealed the utility's "rate of return" on its investment in the state has steadily increased.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Southern Bell said the company was a a loss to explain the PSC's action since a rate increase authorized last June by a Montgomery circuit judge after it had been denied by the PSC is still pending in court

The commission's order, signed by Owen and Associate Commissioners, T. O. Walker and Jimmy Hitchcock, said that telephone rates in Alabama appear to be "excessive unjust and unreasonable, resulting in a rate of return on investment that is excessive and unlawful."

According to researchers of the Agricultural Aviation Conference a flying "truck" that can dust, spray, haul and transport passengers and small animals will be a must on most big farms in the future.

While TCI was the biggest of the Alabama steel companies, several others contributed to the development of the industry in the state. Among them were Woodward Iron Company, Republic Iron and Steel Company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron and Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company.

Alabama in 1900 mined more than 8,000,000 tons of coal and 10 years later that figure was almost doubled.

Sharecropping Now Strictly Business Set-Up

Auburn, Ala.—Sharecropping is no longer a "Tobacco Road" occupation. It is, or should be, a businesslike arrangement for farm rental which satisfies both owner and tenant.

"An evaluating look at farm leases is in order," API Extension Economist Foy Helms said this week. A few farmers still depend on verbal agreements in renting farms the specialist added. And many others continue to rent under out-dated leases which fail to do the intended job.

Farming has become a complicated business, and leases often lag behind present-day conditions. Helms said the fact that many farm rents have not kept abreast of changes in prices, costs, and production has led to differences in rent levels over the state and country. Those differences sometimes lead to disagreements among tenants and landlords, he explained.

The expert reminded farmers that county agents have copies of lease forms for sharing crops and livestock. Both parties to a lease should be certain their agreement covers farm problems which might cause difficulty and dissatisfaction. Some of the problems to be considered are the management of livestock, the use of diverted acreage in crop-control programs, and the needs of the farmers themselves.

The specialist pointed out that the type of renting arrangement made should depend on the financial resources of both lessee and lessor. What each party puts into and gets out of the farm operation should depend on whether the agreement calls for sharing crops, for cash rent, or for set crop wages, Helms concluded.

YOU CAN PROVIDE YULE DINNER FOR FARAWAY FRIENDS

Remember all those relatives and friends you can never have in for Christmas dinner, because they live so far away? Well, this year your problem is solved.

You can mail a Yuletide feast in an ordinary letter envelope!

This amazing feat is being made possible by A & P Food Stores with a gift certificate plan in the 37 states where it operates stores and super markets.

The plan is the company's response, officials say, to the growing demand by firms and individuals for a food gift plan similar to those offered by department and clothing stores during the Christmas season.

Gift certificates, in denominations of $1 and $5, can be bought and redeemed in any of the company's stores. For example, a shopper in Portland, Me., could use a certificate purchased in Los Angeles A & P store. Gift certificate receivers have their choice of a like value in any store of the store's merchandise — be it special delicacies or the ingredients for an entire Christmas meal.

Here Are Some Safety Rules For The Holiday Season

It only takes a small amount of carelessness to turn the joyful Christmas holiday into a tragic event. The Christmas tree is the danger spot. There are a few simple precautions that will assure a safe and merry Christmas.

Never burn real candles on your tree.

Don't risk using ...ved cords and broken plugs.

Avoid placing powerful lamps or bulbs near fancy ornaments, synthetic materials, paper or cotton.

Don't go away and leave your tree lighted.

Be very careful when smoking around Christmas package wrapping material.

Secure the tree by wires to the wall so that tiny tots will not be able to bump or pull it over.

Place your tree so that, standing or fallen, it cannot block a doorway which might be needed to escape from the room.

If you go in for elaborate decorations, better make sure they're all made of incombustible material. Flameproofed materials can be purchased at many stores. Insist on them.

my PET PEEVE by Mike Bennett

A LONG study of the situation has convinced me that the business world is inhabited by a class of gentle, if prudent, prevaricators. Only the undertaker will tell you just how terrible business really is, and he has to be honest, since the whole town knows it each time he gets a customer.

A businessman, like a general in the field, doesn't care to have the competition aware of the fact when things are in a bad way. It's a matter of morale.

It doesn't bother me too much, this business of a merchant telling me that everybody else is spending plenty of money, or buying a particular product. I never spend money unless I have it, and have never purchased a single item merely because the Joneses next door came in with it in their shopping bag. I can forgive this minor prevarication. When a guy says business is good, maybe he means it's better than it was. I can't argue with that.

The fellows that really get my goat, and they are the most prolific prevaricators, are fishing camp operators. In all my years of indulgence in the piscatorial pastime, I never yet rented a boat from an operator who didn't say that fishing was wonderful the day before and everyone on the lake brought in the limit. A variation of this pitch is that some guy just left the boat dock before you arrived with the record catch for the season.

This is mighty bad, hearing that you are just an hour or so late. Yet you fish in the hot sun all day without a nibble, go home sad and disgusted, and then out of pure stubbornness, come back two days later to try it again.

CHRISTMAS 'PUTZ'

The Christmas "putz"-is a decorative feature in many Bethlehem, Pa., homes during the Yuletide season. It is a representation of the birth of the Christ Child in the stable at Bethlehem in Judea.

The residents of Bethlehem, Pa. follow this custom, which was brought to this country by early Moravian settlers, and spend months arranging the exhibit.

The word "putz" is short for the German "putzen" meaning to arrange or decorate.

At few, if any times since Christ was born have all the people of the earth needed faith, trust and peace as much as they do now.

THE LITTLE GAME

By Brad Monroe

"ARE you absolutely certain you want a divorce?" he asked. "Are you sure?"

The woman's voice shocked him with its dullness. What could have zapped the spirit; what had stolen the sparkle from her, he wondered.

"I can't stand it any longer," she was saying. "If I hadn't been loved so much in the beginning—if I hadn't been shown in so many ways—." Her voice broke a little. "To be one day an adored woman and the next a piece of furniture—it—it's made me an old woman."

She began to sob almost silently and seemingly without effort. It was as though she had done so many times before and it had become a habit. He patted her shoulder as he had patted so many others. She drew away.

"I'm very sorry," he murmured.

He walked to the window and looked down at the crowded sidewalk. Countless times in the past he had done this and tried to guess which of those hurrying people who turned into the building, would ride up on the elevator and open a door marked: GEORGE BRADLEY, Attorney at Law. It had become a little game with him. But there the game ended for this branch of his profession was anything but a harmless little game.

In the twenty years that he had specialized in divorce cases, he had grown to hate the entire business, but never the people. He felt a strong pity for his clients with their real and fancied complaints; but strangely, what bothered him most was the pity that he felt for the others; those whose mates came to him for assistance. He had often wondered how it felt to be one of them and shuddered.

Turning, he gazed at the woman sitting beside his desk. She retained a strong hint of beauty beneath the weight of her early forties, but her dark hair was gray-streaked, and her features were strained as had been so many of those he had observed in this office.

His professional detachment had slowly faded with the years, and now he had to consciously restrain an impulse to stroke the bowed head. She would resent that action, anyway, he realized. Instead, he said to her: "I'm very sorry."

"Don't be," she answered with a hopeless shake of her head. "I've stopped being sorry for myself. It's all over. It's been over for years but I wouldn't admit it. Even to myself. I tried to hang on to something that was long gone. All that's left now is the publicity, the pictures, and the muck-raking. But I won't mind. I couldn't mind anything too much now."

"Is there any chance that you might reconsider it—"

"No! No!" She cut him off, her voice alive for the first time.

"Isn't there anything I can do?" he persisted.

"There is only one thing to do," she said. Her words were deathly in their finality. "It's too late for anything else."

"Oh," said George Bradley in a resigned voice. He sighed. "Very well. It's your decision, to make."

He had said the same thing countless times before, in exactly the same tone of voice, and lately he had found himself hating to say it. It made him feel too much like a judge pronouncing sentence.

Returning to his desk, he took a photograph from a drawer. A beautiful young woman smiled up at him. Love showed in her eyes. It had been years since he had really looked at the picture. But now he studied it for a long minute. Then he kissed it and replaced it in the drawer.

From force of habit perhaps, he went to the window, and looking down to the street, was just in time to see the woman cross the sidewalk and step into a waiting taxi. Then his wife was gone. He never again played the little game.

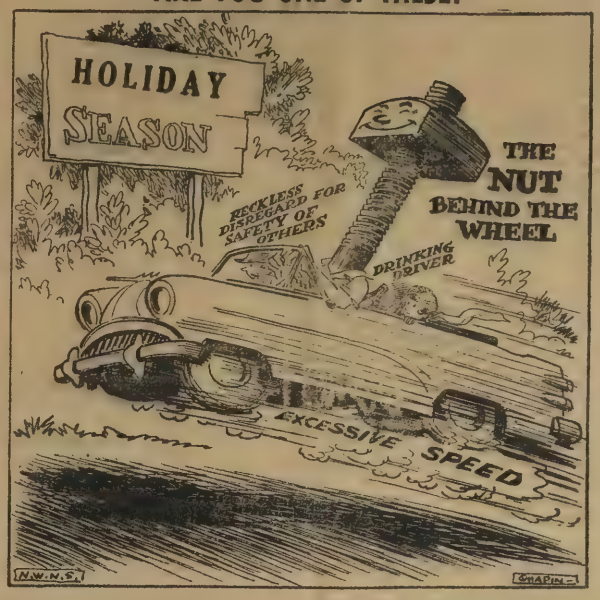
ARE YOU ONE OF THESE?



Pagan Rites Basis Of Many Customs

Strange as it may seem, most American Christmas customs stem largely from Pagan rites practiced long before the birth of Christ.

The custom of exchanging gifts is one of the few that springs from the Christian era. Christmas candles, bonfires and Yule logs arise from the heathen festivals observing the winter solstice, December 21, when the days begin to lengthen. That was a time of great rejoicing for ancient sun worshipers who built bonfires to give strength to the "winter sun god."

Pre-Christian Romans ornamented their homes with green boughs and flowers for the Feast of Saturnalia which began December 19. Druids gathered mistletoe for that season while ancient Saxons used holly ivy and bay. Modern mistletoe and holly wreaths come from those peoples.

Christmas trees, too, spring from the ancient German days when Germanic tribes made sacrifices to the sacred oak of Odin. When the missionary St. Boniface traveled to Germany in the Eight Century and saw these celebrations he pursuaded the natives to substitute a fir tree for the oak and to adorn it in a tribute to the Christ Child.

During the Middle Ages the entire Christmas season was celebrated in equal fervor with that now shown on Christmas day. In some lands the celebration lasted from December 24 to January 6—Twelfth Night—and in others from December 21 to February 2. By then year 1644, Christmas in England had become such a wild orgy that the Puritans forbade its celebration by law.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

The Christ-child lay on Mary's lap,
His hair was like a light.
(O weary weary were the world,
But here is all aright).

The Christ-child lay on Mary's breast,
His hair was like a star.
(O stern and cunning are the kings,
But here the true hearts are).

The Christ-child lay on Mary's heart,
His hair was like a fire.
(O weary, weary is the world,
But here the world's desire.)

The Christ-child stood at Mary's knee,
His hair was like a crown,
And all the flowers looked up at Him,
And all the stars looked down.

DO YOU have the proper tools and supplies for clean-up work in your home? If not, the work's much harder and more time consuming than it need be. Check this list for some labor-saving tips:

Long-handled sponge mops are wonderful not only for cleaning floors, but also windows and walls. Use a cleaning solution which does not require rinsing afterwards to save time and energy.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Vegetable-Egg Salad
(Serves 6)

6 hard-cooked eggs, diced
½ cup chopped pimiento
2 cups diced cucumbers
1 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup salad dressing

Combine all ingredients in folding motion. Serve in lettuce cups garnished with sliced tomatoes and black olives.

Cleaners which cut grease, especially on kitchen jobs include baking soda, sal soda and ammonia, may be used in strong solution on heavily greased equipment.

Rubber and cellulose sponges have many uses and save time. Use these on cleaning walls, woodwork upholstery, furniture, rugs and windows.

Scouring pads and powder may be used to clean off metal rust spots on linoleum and on aluminum parts to prevent corrosion.

A long-handled dust pan is much more practicable than a short-handled one which requires you to stoop. Use the dust pan for all manner of cleaning, sweeping jobs.

It's a good idea to keep a disinfectant handy in several places besides the laundry. Chlorine bleach can be used in drains and basements as well as the kitchen for disinfecting jobs.

Actual Birthday Of Jesus Is Still An Uncertain Date

It is not surprising that the day and year of the birth of Jesus are uncertain, for methods of keeping track of dates during the era when Christ was born were not very reliable. For years, eminent scholars have been searching the scriptures, and all possible records, to try to establish an exact date. So far, they have not succeeded.

Matthew states that Jesus was born during the reign of King Herod which helps to establish the period of his birth and this is the starting point from which scolars attempt to reckon the year.

The statement by Matthew that the wise men from the east, in inquiring "Where is he that is born King of the Jews?" aroused Herod so that he ordered the massacre of all children two years old or less, is very significant. It is taken as proof that Jesus must have been born about two years before this infamous decree was issued.

No less an authority than the Catholic encyclopedia places the Birth of Christ in the year which by our modern methods of keeping track of dates, would be 7 B. C. Thus Christ's birth does not exactly determine the difference between B. C. and A. D. date.

Most people, however, do not care if the exact day and year of Christ's birth are unknown. What matters most is the deathless vigor of the Christmas Spirit throughout the world.

CHRISTMAS EVE

The minsrels played their Christmas tune.
Tonight beneath my cottage eaves;
While smitten by a lofty moon,
The encircling laurels, thick with leaves,
Gave back a rich and dazzling sheen
That overpowered their natural green.
Through hill and valley every breeze
Had sunk to rest with folded wings;
Keen was the air, but could not freeze,
Nor check the music of the strings;
so stout and hardy were the band
That scraped the chords with strenous hand.
And who but listened: till was paid
Respect to every inmates claim;
The greeting given, the music played
In honor of each household name
Duly pronounced with lusty call,
And "Merry Christmas" wished to all!

YOU CAN GET that extra whiteness in linens and cottons if you can get them completely clean. Soaking for a couple of hours will loosen the dirt and make it wash out more easily by the time you're ready to place the clothes in the washing machine. Use lukewarm water for soaking.

Very soiled clothes should be boiled for 10 minutes. For delicate pieces which cannot be bleached safely with a chlorine bleach, use the juice of two lemons and make certain they're rinsed thoroughly.

If you use a plastic bag for dampening clothes, then it's a good idea to have two in place of one, or one with a double opening to place over a chair. One side takes white clothes, the other colored.

Starched garments should not be dried out-of-doors on windy days as this will whip much of the starchiness out of the clothes.

When ecru or cream colored lace has faded, dip in a weak solution of tea or coffee to restore the lost color.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Frozen Fruit Salad
(Serves 6)

2½ cups (No. 2 can) crushed pineapple, drained
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
8 egg whites
Pinch of salt
3 tablespoons sugar

Combine crushed pineapple with fruit juice, pour into refrigerator tray and freeze to a mush, about 30 minutes. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff and gradually add sugar. Scrape the chilled pineapple mixture into egg whites and carefully fold together. Return to tray, turn refrigerator controls to lowest possible point and freeze until firm, about 1½ hours. Cut in squares and serve on crisp lettuce. Use chilled plates and serve immediately.

THREE ISLANDS HAVE CHRISTMAS NAMES

Although Santa Claus doesn't live on any of them, there are three islands in the world named Christmas.

One is the largest atoll in the Pacific ocean. It was discovered in 1777 by Cook, and annexed by Great Britain in 1888. The Island is about 100 miles round and less than 100 people live on it. They earn their livelihood by cultivating the Island's coconut groves.

Another Christmas island is located in the Indian ocean, 200 miles south of Java. It is 12 miles long by nine miles wide. Surrounded by ocean depths of 14,000 feet, its own highest ground reaches more than 1,000 feet above sea level. It also belongs to Great Britain and a few hundred Chinese, Malays, Javanese, and a few Europeans are engaged in the shipping of phosphate of lime.

Christmas island in the Little Bras d'Or, Nova Scotia, 30 miles southwest of Sidney, is a tiny fishing island of 1,400 population.

Home-Sick Man Cut First Tree

To August Imgard, a home-sick immigrant tailor, goes the credit for introducing the Christmas tree to America.

Imgard came to this country in 1847 to visit his brother in Wooster, Ohio. With the prospects of a dismal Christmas for the first time away from his native land, August decided to bring to his newly adopted home all the Christmas spirit and festivities he had loved so much in Wetzlar, Hessia. To his young nephew and neice he would show how Christmas was celebrated in the old country.

First, he needed a Christmas tree. This is the way he described how he got it: "I walked up Apple creek, . . .When I got to where the trees were I found the water so high I could not get across. So I walked along until I found a tree fallen from bank to bank and crossed on that. I cut a tree and carried it to the fallen log. But to get across this time I had to tie the tree to my neck and crawl on hands and feet. People looked at me with considerable curiosity when I walked through town with my tree."

Adept with scissors, Imgard cut his own paper ornaments and a local tinsmith fashioned a shiny star for the top.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM PETER PAN. To the Neverland of fantasy comes a realistic note as Christmas comes early this year to Heller Halliday, shown receiving a United States Savings Bond from her mother, actress Mary Martin. Both are playing in the current Broadway musical production of James Barrie's immortal "Peter Pan." As Peter Pan, Miss Martin wishes that every boy and girl could receive a Savings Bond for Christmas. So she hopes that parents will play Peter Pan to their children by giving them the Christmas present for a brighter tomorrow—a United States Savings Bond.

PINE CONE LEGEND

Once upon a time—according to Harz mountain legend—a poor miner's wife was gathering pine cones in the forest. It was just before Christmas, her husband was ill and there was no money in the house for food. So, she gathered the cones and sold them to the villagers for kindling—obtaining enough for the day's necessities.

One morning while she was looking for such cones a little imp jumped out of a huge fir tree.

"Here, here are the biggest, driest cones of all! Take these," he shrieked jumping up and down excitedly.

Suddenly, there was such a shower of cones that the poor woman was frightened. She tried to run away, but could not move until the little imp had filled her basket. And having started home, the basket grew heavier and heavier—she wished the elf hadn't disappeared, he might have helped her.

When she finally reached her hut, she called the children to help carry the basket inside. Emptying the basket, they found that every cone was solid silver.

Commemorating these legendary silver cones, gilded pine cones are sold in modern stores, to decorate our homes—to burn and crackle gaily in our Christmas fires.

The Spirit Of Santa Claus

Santa Claus is one of the most precious wonders of childhood. American mothers overwhelmingly agree that he should be portrayed as the spirit of generosity, kindliness, and gift-giving.

Although the modern conception of Santa Claus is American, the Spirit of Santa Claus is neither modern nor American. The real Saint Nicholas lived in Asia Minor and ever since his death in 343 stories concerning him have been repeated around the firesides of Europe.

The children of Lapland and northern climates naturally picture Santa dressed in fur and dashing through the snow in a reindeer-drawn sleigh. But in central Europe, St. Nicholas first appeared on his liturgical feast day, December 6, and he was a thin, austere churchman who rode a mule and carried gifts for good children and a bundle of birch rods with which to switch the naughty.

Under Dutch influence St. Nicholas lost his solemnity. The Dutch colonists who brought him to America were very practical people and they decided against two gift-giving days in the same month. Thus, Sinter Klass started coming around only at Christmas time.

Eventually ancient legends were woven into American Christmas traditions. Washington Irving sent St. Nicholas flying through Christmas skies in a reindeer-drawn sleigh in 1809; Dr. Clement Moore's poem "The Night Before Christmas," written in 1822, gave Santa " . . . . a little round belly that shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly," and a series of drawings in 1868 by Thomas Nast added much to the traditional pictures and appearance of the Santa we see today.

In every youngster's life there comes the time when he begins to suspect that the various bewhiskered gentlemen, so numerous during the season, are not exactly the real Santa Claus. Wise parents advance the 'helper' theory as soon as they are asked questions and teach their children to make the Christmas dreams of less fortunate tots and families come true.

Thus the real Santa Claus isn't just myth or legend. He is the Spirit of Christmas who lives in the sparkling eyes of children and in the hearts of all grown ups who strive for peace and good will among all men

CHRISTMAS 'MOTHER'S DAY'

In Yugoslavia, the second Sunday before Christmas is celebrated as Mother's Day. While mother pretends not to notice, one of the children slips in cautiously and ties her feet to the chair. The other children rush in shouting, "Mother's day! Mother's day! What will you pay to get away!" The mother then buys her release with Christmas gifts.

Cannon Proclaims Christmas Holy Season In Rome, Italy

A cannon fired from the historic Castle of San Angelo at sunset on Christmas Eve proclaims the beginning of the Holy Season in Rome. By nine o'clock everyone is in church to witness the colorful and solemn processions of ecclesiastic dignitaries which precede the elaborate midnight Mass.

Since everyone has fasted for twenty-four hours, festive banquets are in order after the religious solemnites. It ise a gala after-midnight in Rome; hotels and restaurants remain open, families and friends gather around sumptous tables in gaily decorated homes; and in anticipation of the festivities, many people attend church dressed in formal attire.

Between Christmas and Epiphany the Calabrian shepherds-Pifferani —revisit the homes where they were most cordially welcomed during Advent when they came down from the hills to play their Italian bagpipes before the shrines of the Virgin The Pifferani play for their Advent hosts during the post-Christmas holidays and receive gifts of wine, dried figs, and small sums of money from their hosts.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Emma Portner, Thurmont, Maryland: I remember as a little girl watching my mother prepare yeast. First she cooked three Irish potatoes, then put some salt, sugar, and flour in an earthen gallen milk crock and poured the scalding broth from the cooked potatoes over the mixture, stirring until no lumps were left.

She then added the potatoes, mashed fine, and filled the crock three-parts full of lukewarm water, adding the yeast, or sots, she had saved in a quart jar from the last baking. She then set the mixture on a mooly chair (with no back) behind the stove to rise overnight

In the morning she emptied the flour from a 12-pound sack into a oblong wooden tray. She made hollow place in the flour, poured in the sots and began to make the bread. Not one speck of lump was left. If the mixture failed to rise properly, mother would add more water from scalded hops grown in the garden for that purpose.

Grandfather built a roaring fire in the outside bake oven and while the loaves were rising, mother baked six or eight pies. When the loaves were ready, grandpap would take a long-handled iron rake and rake out the hot coals to test the heat with a white chicken feather he held in the oven. If it browned quickly, the oven was ready.

PARENTS CAN SPOIL CHILDREN'S PLAY

Here's a Christmas resolution for parents. It's one that ought to be made before New Year's resolutions are even considered. It goes, "I will keep my hands off the children's toys all day Christmas."

It'll be a hard one to keep because Mother likes to fuss with the doll. She pretends she is showing Ann how to put on the bonnet, but she's actually having a grand time playing. And once Father gets his hands on the train, or the auto that winds up, the boys can't get near them.

After all, adults can play with toys for the next 364 days if they want to.

When we celebrate the birthday of Christ we ought not to think of Him only as a child. Those who think Christmas is only a festival about a child, for children, veer away from facing Him as an adult.

THAT SPECIAL SMILE

By Sally S. Eads

AS MARK DOLAN sat in his office figuring prices on the cedar lumber he was manufacturing, his mind strayed to Nell Langley, the girl who checked out books at the library.

He had met her at a county school box supper. She had smiled at him, a very special smile he thought, and he knew right then that she was the girl for him. But he had never again been able to see her, except at the library and then only in a library business way.

Maybe she thought he was such an avid reader he didn't have time for dates. Well, he would find out, and quick. He picked up his hat and strode down the street to the library.

He found Nell busy as usual, but she gave him that special smile and he went on to find a book.

"It's my own fault, he accused himself, remembering how timid he was during his school days. Looks like a man in my position could overcome adolescent timidity. Timidity's a curse. He would overcome it right now. He slammed the book down on the table and hurried to Nell Langley's desk.

"May I help you, Mark?" she offered.

"Yes, please." The words he wanted to say wouldn't come. He saw there was sympathy in her eyes, and that made him blush. "I want a book on bees," he lied.

She dashed back to the book shelves and came back with a book on bees. He inwardly cursed himself. He didn't care anything about bees.

When she had marked his card, she shoved the book toward him, and smiled.

Mark stood still, but he couldn't think of anything to say.

"Something else, Mark!" she asked.

"Yes," he said. "Could you select a gift for my girl friend?" He laid a bill on her desk.

The smile left Nell's face. Didn't she want to accommodate him?

"What is she like?" Nell asked. "And what does she like in the way of gifts?" There was a sharp edge to her voice.

"She's pretty. Her eyes are like blue violets, and her hair the color of honey. I don't know what she would like."

"I'll find a gift," Nell promised. "You may call for it tomorrow." She dismissed him without a smile.

Mark went back to his office and worked with a heavy heart. Nell didn't care for him, he could tell.

When he was feeling at lowest ebb, the door opened and Nell Langley walked in.

Mark jumped to his feet. "This is a pleasant surprise," he said.

"I hope I'm not intruding," she told him. "I saw your light, and came to bring the gift." She handed it to him.

"Oh, the gift!" He laid it on the desk and made her sit down. Then he hurried to his swivel chair, across the desk from her.

"I hope you like the gift," she said. There were tears in her voice and tears were spilling over her eyelids.

"Poor girl," Mark thought. "Someone has hurt her. He wanted to help. "Here, Nell, this gift is for you."

"For me?" She smiled through tears.

"Yes, didn't you notice I described you when I told you what my girl was like? I have no girl, unless it's you."

"Oh, Mark, do you mean that? It almost killed me when I thought you had another girl. But I'm too timid to let a man know how I feel, especially you."

"You're timid, too?" He ran around his desk to her.

"Yes, dear," she answered and wiped away a tear.

And suddenly, Mark Dolan realized that his timidity had vanished.

A Tree For Denny

By William Tremon

Every day of a week old Oliver had been passing their house in his wagon loaded with pine and cedar trees.

"Christmas trees cheap!" he shouted. "Christmas tr-e-es—two dollars. On-l-y-y two dollars. . . ."

He was passing now, and Marge, washing a few dishes she and Denny had spoiled at their noonday meal, wished she couldn't hear the sound of his shouting voice.

Joe always bought old Oliver's trees. "Old Oliver needs the money," he'd say. "And our old car just wouldn't take the bumps of a hunt for a tree in the country around here."

Old Oliver hesitated in front of the little house, repeating his chant until Marge thought she must go to the door and tell him to stop. She and Joe had explained to him the first time they'd bought a tree just the kind they liked. It had to be so tall and so big around. It had to be cedar with clusters of blue berries on it. Old Oliver always had the kind of tree they wanted.

"Mommy, there's ol' Oliver," he said. "Mommy, he has our tree . ."

"I know he has dear," she said, making herself look at him. Since last January when the horrible car wreck had taken Joe away from her, she'd had difficulty in looking at Denny. Denny had Joe's rumpled dark hair, his eyes, the deep cleft in his chin. A sob caught in Marge's throat. "Denny, dear," she said thickly, "we're not going to have a tree this Christmas. Daddy isn't here to help decorate it, and besides—Santa will come without a Christmas tree."

"I'll help decorate it," Denny said. "I did last year."

Marge pressed Denny close. "I know, dear—" she said. Poignant memories of last Christmas crowded her so that she couldn't talk for a moment. She could see Joe teetering on the ladder to put the star in the top of the tree.

"I can help, mommy . . . ." Denny insisted.

"You could dear, but we don't want a tree with Daddy gone. Someday, dear,— oh, I hope it never comes to you—you'll understand why Mommy didn't want a Christmas tree!" She rose to her feet hurriedly feeling a rush of tears. "I'll get your wraps, Denny, and you can play outside in the snow for awhile."

Shadows lengthened in the little house before it came to Marge with frightening realization that it had been all of three hours since Denny had left the house.

"Denny—DENNY!!" She ran out on the porch and down the steps, her slim unprotected feet and legs sinking into the deep snow that had banked there. "DENNY—!" The echo of her voice came back to her in mocking horror across the white stillness of the little yard.

A cold wind swept against her as she stood at the gate looking up and down the road and calling Denny's name. It was a horrible moment, one in which she knew she must have aged twenty years, and one in which she saw in heart wrenching clarity her unfairness to Denny in harboring a self-centered grief over her loss of Joe to the extent of his safety, his protection, his veritable happiness.

A familiar wagon made the turn at the end of the road, and Marge recognized old Oliver and his load of Christmas trees. His chant rang out again, "Buy your Christmas tree now!! On-l-y two dollars . . ."

Marge shrieked against the wind "oh, don't—please don't!" Then she saw Denny—little brown garbed Denny sitting in the seat by old Oliver!

The wagon stopped by the gate and old Oliver grinned as Denny climbed down into Marge's reaching arms. "He like the' ride. He . . . . . ."

Marge didn't give him a chance to talk. "Do you have our tree, Oliver?" she asked.

Old Oliver chuckled and jumped down from the wagon. "All'a wee I've had your tree," he said.

"Just put it in the yard," Marge told him. "Why, Denny and I couldn't do without our tree!"

SANTA CLAUS SCHOOL TRAINS JOLLY GENTS

In a colonial farmhouse at Albion, N. Y. there's a Santa Claus school and it's the only educational institution of its kind in the world.

Graduates wear white wig and whiskers, red suit trimmed in white fur, wide white belt, and black leather boots.

A course at the school prepares the prospective Santa Claus to properly shake when he laughs like a bowl full of jelly, remain calm when a child glares and yells "there ain't no Santa Claus" and maintain proper diplomatic relations with a parent who thinks Santa has given her tot the brushoff.

MUCH FAMILY FUN IN GROUP GAMES

"Make it a real family Christmas this year by having Santa pack a few hobby supplies or games into his pack that the whole family can enjoy together." This suggestion comes from E. H. Regnier, a recreation specialist at the University of Illinios.

There are many hobbies that can help build companionship between parents and children. Mothers and daughters like jewelry construction and tapestry weaving. Dad and Junior go in for model-making-airplanes, boats, trains and other items of special interest to the male population.

Everyone enjoys operating a printing press. Small presses turn out newspapers that have a real professional look. Shellcraft and woodburning are hobbies that produce genuinely useful articles. For family fun, rubber tipped darts, indoor plastic horseshoes and marble games are excellent.

"Christmas is a time of "togetherness," says Regnier. "Let's capitalize on the situation by starting a game or hobby that will encourage the same type of companionship the year around."

NUT-BOWL FILLED FROM MANY LANDS

Nuts from all over the world go into your nut-bowl at Christmas. Like Christmas traditions, the nuts so popular at this time of year are a mixure of many varieties and different histories.

The English walnut, for instance is not English at all. It originated in Asia centuries ago and was called "the food of the gods."

The round little filbert and the almond came from the Old World. Other nuts so familiar at Christmas, the hickory nut, the black walnut and the chestnut, to say nothing of the pecan, are strictly American

The pecan is native of America and is found nowhere else. Two other American nuts worthy of mention are the chestnut and the butternut

Although many nuts originated i other parts of the world, almost ev ery variety known is now grown on American soil and experts are constantly searching for more kinds of nuts to transplant to this country.

At this time of year, it is with deep appreciation that we say — MERRY CHRISTMAS TO OUR MANY FRIENDS

OUR CHRISTMAS DATE STARTED BY ROMANS

The first celebration of the birth of Christ on December 25 took place in the fourth century. Before that date the commemoration of Christ's Nativity and Baptism was held on January 6.

The first mention of Christmas is found in a Roman document known as the "Philocalian Calendar" in the year 354, and the first time the festival was celebrated in Britain was in 598, when St. Augustine baptized 10,000 converts.

In the year 567 the Council of Tours declared a twelve-day festival from Christmas to Epiphany and in 991-1016 the laws ordained that all strife should cease at Christmas. Christmas was established in 813 in Germany and in Norway in the year 950.

Jesus Christ Is Truly The Only "Prince Of Peace"

"Unto is a child is born, unto us a son is given; the government shall be upon his shoulders and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, THE PRINCE OF PEACE." (Isa. 9:6).

There are many names ascribed to Jesus, our Lord, but this one name, "The Prince of Peace," should be told around the world. Every nation should know that there is no peace outside of this great Prince of Peace. World wars have been fought to establish peace on earth, but all in vain. Leagues of Nations have been formed for the same purpose, but all in vain. The reason that the United Nations is not making any further headway to establish the peace that the world so much desires, the Prince of Peace has been left out of the program.

More than 1900 years ago the Christ Child was born in the little City of Bethlehem, at the time there were shepherds abiding in the fields keeping watch over their flock by night. And lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and glory of the Lord shone round about them and they were sore afraid. And the Angel said unto them, "Fear not for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the City of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." And suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." The R. V. says, "Peace among men in whom he is well pleased." When man's ways please the Lord, there will be peace among them. "Great peace have they that love the lord, and nothing shall offend them," (Psa. 149:165). Or "They shall have no stumbling block." The stumbling blocks of war and strife, hate and intolerance will be forever gone, when men will love the Laws of God. It is then the Prince of Peace will come among men of the nations of the world, and there will be, "Peace on earth, good will toward ALL men."

DALE CARNEGIE

HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING

MRS. RUTH STRANDINE, 6531 N. Minnehaha Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, faced six years ago the greatest feeling of worry and anxiety she had ever known. She received word that her father was seriously ill and could not possibly live long. She was to come home and visit him at once.

She had never known a father who had not always been radiantly alive and healthy. So she worried just how she would face him in this hour of crisis.

She arrived during a snow storm. The city was in a complete black-out which didn't help matters one bit!

Her mother met her at the door. The sadness in her eyes reflected something Ruth Strandine had never seen in them before. But she managed a smile and a warm welcome home.

Entering her father's room, she found it aglow with light. Candles had been placed here and there and her father registered joy, deep understanding and peace of mind. What an example! In spite of his suffering, he had not lost his good disposition, his sense of humor, his faith in his family or his faith in God.

CARNEGIE.

He had taught his daughter many lessons in life, but she learned there the greatest one at his bedside. When her fears bested her, he conquered his, when she wept, he smiled; when she doubted, he trusted; and he taught her that even death is an experience of life that all must face. Her fears completely vanished when she saw how courageously he faced his death.

HAVE TREE BASE STAND IN WATER

Christmas trees, like flowers, will respond to being kept with the base in the water. Here are two simple things to do if you want your tree to stay green and fresh.

Buy a tree which has been cut as recently as possible.

Cut off the end of the trunk diagonally, at least one inch above the original cut. This will expose a moist surface which will absorb water. Stand the trunk of the tree in water at once, and, if it is not to be taken into the house for several days, keep it in a cool place.

The Mt. Pisgah Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. R. V. Yeargan on Thursday Dec. 16. Mrs. L. M. Yeargan gave the story of the hymn for Dec. O, Holy Night and she read the hymn.

The secretary, Mrs. L. M. Headley, called the roll, and the members responded by telling what they wanted for Christmas.

Mrs. Ira Yeargan, and Mrs. I. M. Headley gave the demonstration on casserole dishes. They prepared and cooked chicken with chopped vegetables, and also ham casserole with rice and tomatoes.

Those present at this meeting were Mrs. L. M. Yeargan, Mrs. Mollie Vance, Mrs. J. J. Headley Mrs. L. M. Headley, Mrs. E. P. Edwards, Mrs. Ira Yeargan, Mrs Pierce Yeargan, Mrs. Lizzie Foshee, and Mrs. R. V. Yeargan the hostess.

"If you've done a little bit to help someone else, this Christmas week will be a happy one for you and your loved ones," said Mrs. Mabel Bean, president of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Ass'n.

"The little bit you do when you buy Christmas seals adds up to a lot of hope and promise for TB sufferers in Alabama. There are 11,874 people in Alabama right now known by health officials to have active TB.

"They need sanatorium beds and good treatment if they are to be restored to useful lives. Christmas Seals dollars fight for facilities to bring relief and help to these unfortunates who deveoped TB because they caught germs from someone else.

"Please remember them and give generously to the Christmas Seal Sale. Any of these people could be you or a member of your family. Not a single home is safe from TB as long as there is one victim left to spread germs."

The chairman expressed thanks and appreciation for all who have bought Seals and used them on holiday mail — "But too many people have not yet responded with a contribution."

A plea was sounded that "It never too late to pay for the little Seals."

If you forgot to send your contribution in before Christmas, It will be just as welcome later on. All funds even through March 31 will be counted on the 1954 Seal Sale drive.

WELFARE OFFICE WILL BE CLOSED HOLIDAYS

TRAPPED BY VAULT—

Reminding us that more deaths occur from home accidents each year than from any other kind is the recent experience of a sixteen-year-old girl in Passaic, New Jersey. The young girl was playing in the basement of the First Presbyterian Church in Passaic.

She and other members were unaware of any danger when she entered a three-by-four foot vault. The door accidently closed while she was inside.

When her father called to pick her up, he found she was trapped in the vault. The only person who knew the combination to the vault was the pastor, but he was out making calls. There was no way of knowing where he was and no one could find him immediately.

It was estimated that the vault contained enough oxygen for the irl to live approximately seventy minutes. Since she had been in the vault for some time when the search for the pastor began, the father faced a desperate situation. Finally, a locksmith was obtained and he drilled a half-inch hole through the door of the vault to admit oxygen.

The locksmith instructed the trapped youngster to stay near the opening, and finally he drilled through the door and unlocked the mechanism.

This story should remind adults of the frequent accidental deaths of youngsters each year in abandoned refrigerators. Accidents in vaults, like the one described above, are less frequent, but it is also obvious that children should not be allowed to play near open vaults, refrigerators, or any apparatus, the door of which can suddenly close and which cannot be opened from the inside.

U. S. POLE OF PUBLIC OPINN IKE'S POPULARITY DOWN 8 POINTS SINCE OCTOBER

Princeton, New Jersey—President Eisenhower is still popular with rank and file voters across the nation, but somewhat less so than he was nine weeks ago.

Nearly three out of every five voters questioned in the nation-wide survey just completed say they approve of the way the nations chief executive is handling his duties.

Nearly three in ten say they disapprove.

The rest express no opinion.

When United States Poll staff reporters asked a representative cross-section of the nation's voters "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Eisenhower is handling his job as President?"

These were the nationwide results:

Eisenhower Popularity

Approve, 59%; Disapprove, 28; No opinion, 13.

The October United States Poll survey showed 67 per cent approval, 26 per cent disapproval, and 7 per cent no opinion.

Today's findings thus represent an 8 per cent decrease in approval, a 2 per cent increase in dissaproval, and a 6 per cent increase in the no opinion vote over the past nine weeks.

Today's survey was conducted using methods which proved accurate within 1.2 per cent in estimating the outcome of the nation-wide Congressional election in Nov

Survey findings show that an overwhelming majority of the nation's GOP voters approve of Mr. Eisenhower, but that among the Democrats across the nation, the vote is very closely devided.

Among rank and file Independents, 59 per cent approve.

Here is the vote in today's survey who classify themselves as Republicans, Democrats, or Independents.

Republicans

Approve, 87%; Disapprove, 10; No opinion, 3.

Democrats

Approve 43%; Disapprove, 42; No opinion, 15.

Independents

Approve, 59%; Disapprove, 23; No opinion, 18.

Since he has been in office, Pres. Eisenhower's popularity has ranged from today's low of 59 per cent to a high of 74 per cent in April, 1953.

His previous low point was 64 per cent in November, 1953—13 mo. ago.

At that time, 28 per cent expressed disapproval, the same as today.

Here is the trend since March 1953:

Approve

March, 1953, 65%; April, 1953, 74; July, 1953, 71; October, 1953, 73; November, 1953, 64; January, 1954 69; March, 1954, 72; June, 1954 66; October, 1954, 67; Today, 59.

CONTROL FOR FIRE ANTS IS EASY, LONG LASTING

Auburn, Ala.—Control of the imported fire ant—that pesky little insect that attacks crops, poultry, livestock, and human beings is amazingly simple. And it is not only easy, it is cheap, safe, and long lasting.

According to API Extension Entomologist W. A. Ruffin, one application of two pounds of technical dieldrin granules per acre will banish the unwanted "foreigner" from fields and pastures for two years or more. The cost of the dieldrin is about $3.50 per acre. And, applied as recommended, the chemical will harm neither applie. nor livestock.

The insects expert said this week steps to control fire ants must be taken before winged forms leave the mounds. The swarming may take place as early as Mid-January in Extreme Southern portions of the state. Fire ants occur in the Southern two-thirds of Alabama Ruffin added.

One of the high school youngsters came in the other day and "ordered" two sheets of cardboard. When we had wrapped his purchase and had told him that it would be twenty cents, he gave us a dime and a fifty-cent piece and said, "take one out of each". We gave him his change. . . a quarter, a nickel, and the dime he had given us. We never told him he could have kept his dime and come out the same. We would hesitate to employ him as a mathematician.

Pretty Decorations This Year;

Rev. Don Esty always has a beautiful yard at Christmas time. The Presbyterian Church is always decked out in style with lights across the shrubbery out front. We don't know for sure, but it looks like one of these job's that's natural and not very hard to accomplish, but Is still very effective. It has that natural look.. We hope it's what he was striving for when he did it.

Then there's always the lady around the corner there, Mrs. Simpson, who always puts ole St. Nick up on her front door, like he was just leaving. It wouldn't be as effective we'll bet, but we'd rather have the old gent coming in.

We always thought these big clumsy, TV antennas were good for something. Now we know what string our lights on it and make one whale of a christmas tree that could be seen for quite a few feet. We were gonna keep that to ourselves and do it when we got the needed funds, but you've probably thought of it anyway by now. If you haven't . . well, it's Christmas and we feel extra neighborly.

Of course the City Hall and its big Jaycee tree looks wonderful. And the whole town looks like a million this year.

Then there're the folks with the big, tall candles that light up and look so Christmasy. There the Claud Craigs', The Otto Jones' and ole Bob Windham out our way all have beautiful settings for the big candles.

The J. A. Broadhead's have pretty front porch scene. One the have used for the past few year and very effectively.

Actually, they're too, too numerous to mention them all, but you just get in the family car (with the entire family) one night this season and see the above mentioned and all the other beautiful Christmas decorations. We still say this year is the best yet for decorations in and around Clanton.

We enjoyed the Christmas programs this year. Enough so, in fact that we wish we could have made the rounds of the county and seen them all. We know for a fact that there were some good ones scheduled this year around in the community churches. We only wish we had been enough people to have seen them all.

Like to take time out to thank Harold Smyer for the jam-up job he did on reporting the season's football games. He didn't miss a one, intentionally anyway, and his reports were thorough. We would apologize for leaving his "by line" off a coupla times, but that's the way it goes, Harold. Anyway, folks can tell your writing by now. We'll have to talk him into reporting the basketball games now that that season has rolled around. As best we can remember though, he isn't the crazy man about basketball that he is about the pigskin game.

Everyone appreciates the sports articles and we have enjoyed those that Harold has written up for us

We're sorry to see Mr. R. C. Williams laid up for the past few weeks or so. Hope he's up and around soon. We boys at the Methodist Church always called him "Pepsi" as sort of a pet name between ourselves. That was when we were accompanying the bunch to Florida every year. For all we know he's still taking the boys. He never failed to spend on us just about as much as we spent on ourselves He's very considerate. We never got to tell him that we wouldn't have his job for the world, but every boy appreciates him.

There's just about nobody in town who has done more for the community and the people than Mr. R. C. Christmastime and all the rest of the time. He too seldom gets credit for his efforts from all the folks whom he benefits. We for one would like to wish him well this Christmas and hope he'll see a lot of good things in the coming year. We know quite a number of folks who will go along with us on that, too.

IT'S MY OPINION

Christmas comes but once a year, as the old saying goes, so it's my opinion that it should be a time of rejoicing and happines: for everyone. Forget your trouble Count your blessings of the pas year while you're thinking abou your new resolutions for next.

Not a one of us is able to find everything bad. We all have something good to give thanks for. From junior to grandpa there is something in our lives of the pas year to appreciate and acknowledge during this week of Christmas.

Through the year we all tend to take our blessings as they come most of the time for granted. Sto, a while this Christmas and try to count back all the good things that have happened to you thi year. You'll need a good memory, and likely a pencil and paper

There are so many good thing that can happen to us, we all have something different as well as common, to rejoice over. Many things have happened to us during the past 365 days, some good and some better. The good overshine the bad so far that we can't even think about the bad things. Some times we stop and think, that we're a little too blessed in the good things. Sometimes you feel that way too, possibly. Best thing t do about that, we suppose, is just don't ask any questions. But then to appreciate the good things and you do sometimes wonder if you aren't mighty lucky. You feel you have everything you could want, and sometimes a little more It's a grand feeling, and if you can just hold onto it, no matter what bad overtakes you, you'll still feel that you're mighty lucky and you'll be one of the happier persons.

Sure, there are a few things you didn't do during the year that you should have done, or wished you could have done, but that's where the New Year's resolution come in. For what you did not do this year, try to accomplish it the coming one. You may stay a little behind that way all the time, but you will still feel that you are accompishing something

Wouldn't it be a grand feeling to finish a year with everything done that you started out the year to do. It would, but being human we can't expect that. We wouldn't be normal at all if we could do that. If we always have something left over from the past year to work on this year, we'll always be trying to better ourselves. That way we'll never get tired living.

Heard of a little saying that some children used in Bible School one time that had a lot of growing up sense in it and might do for your philosophy on everyday living "Good, better, best; never let us rest; until our good is better, and our better best." There's a sermon if you'll just think about what it means. If we made that our motto, we could do a lot of good in our alloted time in this old world

The New Year's resolutions will not amount to a hill of beans. It's what you put behind them that will get results. Next year when job comes your way, take it, and finish it, and you'll be proud you stuck with it when you're finished If you let yourself down. . . well then you'll have to wait 'till next year and re-resolve and try to do better the next.

When you start feeling like the world has left you behind, the only way to catch back up is to keep at it, like the old mule slow and steady, and you'll get to the end of your row with a good job done. . . the mule does doesn't he?

Feeling down and left out is just a nice way of saying, feeling sorry for yourself. Don't let it happen. Keep in mind that you're not going to get left behind when it comes to doing good and being happy. You'll be surprised how New Year's to find that you can add some new resolutions to the list instead of having to promise to yourself, all of last year's over again.

Count your blessings all year long, to yourself. Then when Christmas time comes around. . . count 'em out loud. You'll be a good influence on the other guy who's "down and out".

Thanks for listening and Merry Christmas to all of you.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

TWENTY years ago Frank R. Johnson, 5944 Wentworth Avenue, Sou Minneapolis, Minnesota, came to the realization that there was n medical treatment that he could receive which would restore or im prove his vision. For three years prior to this his family had bee taking him to specialists who were reported to be able to help him but never once had they been given any satisfaction. He commende the eye specialist who talked with him and his parents as he said frankly, "Don't let anyone try to sell you another pair of glasses because you are just wasting your money. You are a young fellow and there is a lot of opportunity ahead for you—so forget your handicap and go out and live with it."

CARNEGIE

So for the past twenty years he has tried to put these ideas into his everyday living.

Eight years ago he was employed by the Minneapolis Society for the Blind. In maintaining a philosophy of counting his blessings, he has tried to encourage others to do the same. He feels there is a broad area for the application of this principle, especially when we know that there are more than 26,000 people who become handicapped every year. This represents a great deal of man power that can be salvaged through constructive rehabilitation, and positive thinking action on the part of all of us.

His thought for us is that we will not sit back, feeling sorry for ourselves, and over-emphasize any injury or set-back in health, business or social dealings, to the point where we will be bogged down and unable to go ahead. Each one of us has been given various talents and it is up to us to make the most of what we have and forget what has been taken from us or what is out of our realistic reach.

Banquet At Marbury School

Friday night, December 10 proved to be a succesful Father-Son and Mother-Daughter banquet. It was the first in several years at Marbury High School. One-hundred and forty-five guests attended. We appreciate the interest that the parents took. The remainder of the expenses were taken out of the club treasuries. Thanks to Mrs Ward, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Farmer, and Mrs. Davis, who helped cook and serve the food.

Many congratulatory comments have been received on the conduct of the students. Three cheers for Marvin Lee, who knows how to get out of a tight situation. The amount of talent at this school is outstanding. To be sure, the ninth grade girls received good training in serving.

We would like to congratulate the Honorary members of the FFA who were awarded their certificates at the banquet. They were Mr. G. A. Walters, Mr. L. C. Taylor, and Mr. John D. Tatum. The FHA also honored some of the mothers by making them Blue Ribbon Mothers. They were Mrs. Davis, Mrs. J. G. Hand, Mrs. S. M Farmer, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs Ward, and Mrs. Norris.

Now that everyone has seen a banquet of this type, we hope that those in the future will be an improvement over this one.

We have also had our Ag. building rewired and painted recently We cleared approximately $175 on our concession stand during the football season.

Basketball is here and the FFA has already played our opponent Billingsley.

We will return the game the 1 of January. We made an estimated profit of $10.00 on the game with Billingsley which was held Dec. 14 at Marbury.

Make Sure Of All Things-

Meaning of the World's Woes

Things are really bad in the world today. Probably you have wondered why. Well, there is a good reason for all the increasing world woes. And there is vital meaning in them too. The Bible sheds light on this meaning at Matt 24:3 (NW); here the disciples asked Jesus; "Tell us, When will these things be, and what will be the sign of your presence and of the consummation of the system of things?" Now the answer that Jesus gave at verse seven is eye-opening: "For nation will rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom, and there will be food shortages and earthquakes in one place after another."

So the unusual number of earthquakes we have been having since 1914 truly means something. So do the food shortages and the world wars. Even all the fear in the world and the confused condition of all the nations mean something, for at Luke 21:25, 26 (NW) Jesus foretold the "last days" of this evil world would occur: "On the earth anguish of nations, not knowing the way out because of the roaring of the sea and its agitation, while men become faint of fear and expectation of the things coming upon the inhabited earth." Here Jesus foretold that the time would come when nations would be perplexed as they had never been before And they would not be able to find the way out of their confusion As we look about today we see how the nation's fear the future. There is the threat of the H-bomb. Still the brainy statesmen even with all their conferences are doing little about easing the world's woes. They do not know which way to turn.

Well now, do true Christian have to fear the future as the whole world is doing? No, they do not for at Luke 21:28 (NW) Jesus explains: "But as these things start to occur, raise yourselves erect and lift your heads up, because your deliverance is getting near. How near? Christ Jesus goes on to tell us in verses 29 to 32; "Note the fig tree and all the other trees When thy are already in the bud by observing it you know yourselves that now the summer is near. In this way you also, when you see these things occuring, know that the kingdom of God is near. Truly I say to you, this generation will by no means pass away until all things occur."

All this means that we are living at a time when there will be a complete change in the system of things An old world must go out and a new world must come again. No wonder Jesus said lift up your heads an rejoice when you see a flood of woes upon the earth, for the end of the Devil's rule over mankind is here! It is Satan the Devil who is bringing these woes upon mankind. He does not want people to know that he is really the ruler of this evil world and that he is misleading the nations. The Devil want people to believe that God is responsible for the woes. But as we learn from Revelation 12:7-9,1 (NW), the Devil is the real culprit "And war broke out in heaven Michael and his angels battled with the dragon, and the dragon and its angels battled but it did not prevail neither was a place found for them any longer in heaven. So down the great dragon was hurled, the original serpent, the one called Devil and Satan, who is misleading the entire inhabited earth: he was hurled down to earth, and his angels were hurled down with him On this account be glad, you heavens and you who reside in them! Woe for the earth and for the sea, because the Devil has come down to you, having great anger, knowing he has a short period of time."

When that war was fought, the Devil lost the day. He was tumbled down to the earth. And greatly enraged he brings woe after woe upon mankind. But we can rejoice because when we see these woes it means that the Devil has only a short period of time left before Armageddon. At that war Christ will smite the nations with a rod of iron and also put the Devil out of the way. This abyssing of the Devil is found at Revelation 20:1-(NW): "And I saw an angel coming down out of heaven with the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he seized the dragon the original serpent, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years. And he hurled him into the abyss and shut it and sealed it over him, that he might not mislead the nations any more." So Christ Jesus merely seizes the Devil and hurls him into the abyss. With the Devil no longer active olonge aDI(sn oheOhetaol ger active to interfere in the affairs of mankind, the woes for the earth come to an end.

Also at Armageddon the nation of this world will suffer destruction The prophet Daniel foretold this nation-smashing work at Daniel 2:44 (AS): "In the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." After this smiting of the nations Christ's thousand-year begins. A righteous new world will have displaced a wicked old world. Things will be different then. No world troubles, no sickness, not even death will afflict mankind. All the animals will become friends of man. God's prophet tells us about this happy time at Isaiah 11:3-9 (AS):

"He shall not jude after the sight of his eyes, neither decide after hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he jjudge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his waist, and faithfulness the girdle of his loins. And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall ie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the suckling child shall play on the hole of the asp and the weaned child shall put his hand on the adder's den. They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah as the waters cover the sea."

So instead of being full of woes the earth will soon be full of the knowledge of Jehovah. The wicked will be destroyed. Nothing will cause trouble in God's new world So really we are living in a most blessed time, for the world's woes mean that the "last days" of Satan's rule are at hand.

CONVEYORS SAVES TIME ENERGY, DISPOSITION

Many poultrymen, dairymen, and cattlemen find that conveyors save them, "walk, lift, and grunt," reports Agricultural Engineer W. T Cox.

Cox, who is API Extension farm buildings specialist, says portable auger-type conveyors with good capacity are available for moving grain and ground feeds from bulk bins to mixers or to feeders. Trucks or wagons with auger or belt conveyors distribute silage, chopped hay, and mixed rations along feed bunks. Bale and bulk-grain elevators which handle materials between truck and barn also save wear and tear on muscles, Cox adds. He points out that an electric motor or small engine can do a day's work for the equivalent of a few minutes' wages.

ABOUT THAT ULCER

Ulcers of the stomach are quite a common development. Interestingly enough the majority of ulcers do not occur in the stomach at all but in the first part of the small intestine, known as the duodenum Thus duodenal ulcers form the vast group of the so-called stomach ulcers.

An ulcer appears like a cleancut or pinched-out hole in the lining of the stomach or the duodenum Just why ulcers occur is not known Many theories have been explored but the most accepted one points to some interference in the digestive process.

The stomach secretes substance which help to digest food. Included among these substances are an acid called hydrochloric and substance called pepsin. Pepsin is involved with the digestion of group of foodstuffs of which meat is a principal item. It is believe that the acid and probably the pepsin, in some chemical process, cause the ulcer.

Since these two substances are normally present in the body, just why the ulcers occur in some persons and not in others is not known Emotional and mental strain, anxiety, and tension are all considered factors; but the exact underlying cause for the loss of the stomach' protection against digestion by its own juices is not known.

An ulcer may develop at almost any age from infancy to old age but the greatest incidence of ulcers is between the ages of twenty and fifty and in men more than women. Most ulcers seem to occur and recur in the spring and fall, giving the victim little cause for complaint in the summer months

Because of the characteristic acute distress, the ulcer sufferer is susceptible to every cure-all guaranteed to relieve an alleged indigestion. This can be dangerous, for the habit can lead to self medication and self diagnosis, which are dangerous procedures. As time goes on. the ulcer can increase in size, accounting for greater and more prolonged pain, which make it more difficult to control.

A thorough physical and x-ray examination are necessary for diagnosis of the type of ulcer, the location and the area infected. Medical management and proper dietary measures are commonly successful in controlling ulcers. It is only in the complicated variety of stomach ulcers and those presenting special problems in treatment that surgery is required.

How can an ulcer be prevented? Until more information is established concerning the cause, sane hygienic living seems the chief protection against the development of an ulcer.

WATCHING FOOD BUYERS AIDS ALERT PRODUCERS

An alert food grower will spend a few minutes in the market place this month, says Austin Ezzell, API Extension food merchandising specialist. By watching holiday food shoppers, producers will get valuable hints on what items, qualities, and packages are most popular.

While the grower is there, the expert suggested, he might also find it profitable to talk things over with the local food retailers.

The Spirit of Christmas

"Now when Jesus was born i Bethlehem of Judea in the days o Herod, the king, behold there came Wise Men from the East to Jerusalem, saying: "Where is He that is born King of the Jews?" For we have seen His Star in the East and are come to worship Him. When Herod, the king, had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him." Matt.

When we pull ourselves away from the hurried tempo of today's living and seek the solitary of our homes, and open the golden pages of the Scriptures to read the wonderful story of the Birth o our Lord Jesus these verses strike a special cord in our heart.

The story of Jesus Christ, when applied to the heart of man, will cause a feeling of joy and peace or it will bring fear and disturbance.

Found in the verses we have read are the feelings of the people who lived in the day of our Saviour was born. Let us who are about to celebrate that sacred day, look at these people and compare ourselves to them and see just how much we in our day resemble them.

. . . . "and are come to worship Him."

Throughout the pages of our Bible we find those people who seek to worship in spirit and in truth. Sometimes along through the years the number of these people were very small, but there can always be found a group of people who love and fear God. These people can be found in the House of our Lord when ever there is a worship service of any kind, whether it be Bible study, revival services, or any of the activities of their church may use to worship and serve their Lord. There are those who are willing to study the Bible, to pray and give themselves wholly unto Christ, in order to teach their fellowman the truths found in the most wonderful Book ever written. These people are willing to tell the people of their community and where ever they go, the wonderful Gospel of Christ and what He will bring to their hearts and lives. They are willing to sacrifice the time that they would love to spend in their own homes, and go out into the homes of others who are in sorrow or trouble of any kind to bring to these homes the peace that can come only, from the "Prince of Peace."

In the night that Christ was born, there came those who had been studying the signs, and the prophecies, that they might know when Christ would come into the world. God has always, and will forever, provide the unmistakable sign and guidance to those who seek to know and to follow His way. Today we have those who are looking to Him for guidance and are following in the paths that He is providing. Let us recognize the fact that were it not for these people, we would not know the America we live in today.

May we pray that all the people of our country, and of the whole world will come to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ, and know in their heart "the peace that passeth all understanding."

. . . . . "he was troubled and all Jerusalem with him."

Many people do not want to apply the Gospel to their hearts and lives, because of personal reason.

Herod was afraid of his position as king. He was afraid that the Birth of the "King of the Jews" would put him down from his throne, and he would have to give up his pomp, and all his servants would be taken away, and he would have to step down and submit his throne to Christ. His interest in seeking the Child born in Bethlehem was to put down a rival for his position in Jerusalem.

We have around the world today people who know the truth and plan set forth in the Gospel of Christ, and know what they should do toward God, and the plan by which they should pattern their lives, but they are afraid it might interfere with the position they hold in their town or community. They are afraid to say "I am a Christian," because they would be left out of the plans some of their friends whom they wish to use as stepping stones for personal gain.

The people of Jerusalem were disturbed in their hearts because of the message that Christ was born in Bethlehem.

Down through the years Jews had taken the laws given to Moses and added man-made laws to them. Paul had this to say concerning the form of religion of the Jews:

"For they being ignorant of God' righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God." Romans 10:3.

Forgiveness of sins was bought with gold and silver. One man who was indebted to another could pronounce the amount of the debt "Corban" and it would go to the temple as an offering. The Jew would not allow the Gentiles the privilege of worshipping God in the temples.

The coming of Christ into the world would condemn all these practices. A man would be required to have a true religion of the heart and true repentence would be the only means of forgiveness of sins every man would be required to deal honestly with his fellowman and love him as himself. The Gospel would be given to the Gentiles and the Jew would be responsible for teaching and leading them to worship God.

When we celebrate the birthday of Christ this year, may we realize the meaning it should have for each of us and be thankful that God through His love, gave His Son that we might have the peace and happiness of Christ in our heart.

Allen Walker, pastor.

CHRISTMAS SERMON AT ADVENTIST CHURCH

"The Government Shall be Upon His Shoulders", (Isa. 9:6) will be the Sabbath 11 a.m. sermon topic at the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Glendale.

Never were the problems of "Government" so heavy and perplexing as today. No man or group of men can "shoulder" these existing problems. But all the wicked are going to be destroyed "by the brightness of His coming, (2 Thes. 2:8) and then the earth will be "made new", (Rev. 21:5) and "the meek shall inherit the earth". Christ will be "the second Adam" (Cor. 15:45-47) at the head of a redeemed race. Then, and not until then, will there be, "Peace on Earth and Good will toward men" as the angels prophetically sang.

ASPARAGUS, ONCE BEGUN WILL GROW, GROW, GROW

Auburn, Ala. — Planting an asparagus bed for home use is an investment which reaps dividends for years to come. Making this comment in Auburn this week, API Extension Horticulturist John Bagby explained that this early spring vegetable, will usually produce for 10 years or longer.

Bagby said asparagus will grow anywhere in Alabama, except in extreme Southern portions of the state, where the plants literally grow themselves to death in a short time. January and February are suitable months for planting.

For a home patch, set 1-year-old Mary Washington crowns two feet apart in furrows six inches deep. Cover with two to three inches of soil, which has been mixed with four quarts of complete fertilizer per 100 feet of row. Gradually work the soil toward the appearing sprouts until the furrow is filled.

Asparagus should not be harvested at all the first year after planting, Bagby cautioned or for more than four or five weeks the second year. The third year, the shoots may be broken for 10 to 12 weeks.

Christmas Flowers

Many unusual and picturesque tales have been told about the modern usage of Christmas flowers. Although they are legendary, the carefully spun bits of folklore provide colorful background for present day flower decorations which are used during the Christams season.

Holly, with its red berries, dark green leaves and needle-like spikes is a light-hearted symbol of friendship and good will when December arrives. According to legend, though holly originally was used as an instrument of cruelty. The crown of thorns which Christ wore was fashioned from holly. Prior to the Crucifixion the plant bore white berries but after the Crucifixion the berries turned a bloody crimson. Mistletoe a close associate of holly, is said to have been the wood from which Christ's cross was made.

One of the most beautiful legends woven around Christmas flowers concerns the Christmas rose. While en route to Bethlehem the Wise Men crossed the path of a little shepherdess named Madelon. Enraptured at the wondrous tale about the birth of Christ which they related, she was heartbroken because she had no gift to offer.

While she was crying she detected a sweet-smelling aroma and looked up. Standing next to her was an angel who inquired the reason for her sadness. Madelon explained that while she wanted to pay homage to the newly-born Babe, she didn't even have a single beautiful flower such as grew in the fields in the summer to give Him. The angel waved her arm and a stunning bunch of gorgeous snowy white Christmas roses appeared.

Madelon gathered her precious gift in her arms and hurried off to Bethlehem where the wise Men had gone. After the Wise Men's offerings of gold, frankincense and myrrh, she humbly proffered her flowers on the tiny Infant, who stretched out a hand to touch the immaculate petals and immediately they changed to a delicate pink.

Poinsettias which head the popularity list of Christmas flowers, ironically enough do not have any legends attached to them because of their recent introduction. In the beginning of the last century the poinsettia was introduced by J. R. Poinsett, and American politician and diplomat.

For years evergreens have flourished in homes at Christmastide to create a woodsy, outdoor atmosphere. In the aged line "hang up the holly, the box and the bay" it is significant to note that two of the plants mentioned, box and bay are mentioned in Holy Scripture, as thriving on the mountains of Lebanon in the Holy Land.

Because of its symmetrical leaves bay has been used for design throughout the ages. The Greeks used it on their coins and the Roman also have favored it as a beautiful show piece. Today bay shrubbery graces the entrances to many American homes at yuletide.

Cedar, which furnishes greens for Christmas, likewise existed in Lebanon. The people of Lebanon regarded cedar as a symbol of endurance, strength, life and eternity. Recognized by its characteristic pleasant aroma, cedar also was an emblem of purity, because its treetops were frequently covered with snow during a large part of the year.

An old time favorite of sailors who visited the Mediterranean ports was Rosemary because of the aromatic perfume the plant yielded. Familiar to most Americans as a straggling hedge plant, Rosemary droops in massive festoons 12 feet long in its native Italy.

Legend has it that the flowers were colorless until the Blessed Virgin, during the flight into Egypt hung the clothes of Jesus on Rosemary bushes to dry. Thereafter Rosemary bushes blossomed forth with their sparkling blue flowers.

The Hawthorn bush with its white or red flowers originally was the May tree of the Old World. Peculiarly, the bush never bloom in May. According to historians Joseph of Arimathea went to England and on the completion of his pilgrimage at the Abbey of Glastonbury, he pushed his staff into the ground where it burst forth leaves and flowers. Since then the Hawthorn bush always flowers at Christmastide, which is out of its regular season.

World wool production is about ten million pounds above the June forecast, with the bulk of the increase reported in Australia, New Zealand, Uruguay, and the Union of South Africa.

Clanton Drive-In Theatre Shows 'The Robe' On New 92 Ft. Screen

"The Robe" will be shown at Clanton Drive-In Theatre on their new 92 foot screen on December 26, 27, and 28.

Joe Jackson says that plenty of the big pictures will be scheduled to follow this masterpiece.

The selection of "The Robe", surely one of the most eagerly awaited properties in filmdom's history, as the initial project for Cinemascope, was the master stroke of Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief of Twentieth Century-Fox and the film's producer, Frank Ross. Mr. Ross has cherished the aspiration of bringing "The Robe" to the screen ever since he purchased the film rights from the author of the widely-read novel the late Lloyd C. Douglas, after reading the galley proofs some twelve years ago.

$5,000,000 Spent

Nothing was spared in making the transition from the printed page. Expending some $5,000,000 in the doing, Mr. Ross employed four stars, twenty featured players and thousands of extras. Thirty-one monumental sets, of which only ten are interiors, had to be built technically as faithful to the facts divulged by long research as accuracy could make them. Reproduced in color by Technicolor were whole sections of Rome and the Holy Land depicted in the film.

All the great scenes which have kept the Douglas masterpiece on best-seller lists for ten years are included in the film. "The Robe" is the story of what happened to the cloak Christ wore at the Crucifixion.

The story unfolds before the unforgettable and matchless settings of the Roman slave market where Marcellus first acquires Demetrius; the glittering palace of the Emperor of Rome and cliffside villa at Capri; the hill of Calvary where the crucifixion takes place; the Catacombs of Rome; the city of Jerusalem as it appeared the first Palm Sunday and aboard the Roman galley ship that symbolizes the movement of the story from Rome to its most far-flung and restless province in its empire. These are reportedly overwhelming examuples of new achievements within the power of Cinemascope.

Cast Selection

Equally painstaking care governed the selection of players for "The Robe." The producer and his director, Henry Koster, made peopled with the finest English certain that their offering was speaking talent from both sides of the Atlantic. Playing Marcellus, tribune to the Emperor, is Richard Burton, the brilliant young Britisher who won instant attention on Broadway in Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning" and duplicated this success in his first film role, "My Cousin Rachel," earning himself an Academy Award nomination. Opposite him, as Diana, the Emperor's ward is Jean Simmons, whose haunting beauty and skillful artistry first emerged when she enacted in Ophelia to Sir Laurence Oliver's "Hamlet," and were confirmed in "Trio" and "Young Bess."

Victor Mature, whose performance previewers have ranked as a revelation of new powers from this already highly regarded star, is seen as Demetrius, the Greek slave bonded to Marcellus and instrumental in the latter's conversion to the faith which is symbolized by the Robe of Christ. The picture's fourth star, Michael Rennie, appears as Simon of Galilee known as Peter, the Big Fisherman.

Other important roles are filled by youthful Jay Robinson, from the Broadway stage, as the sadistic Caligula; and veteran prize winning actor, Dean Jagger, a Justus, a disciple.

Among the thousands of supporting players are such prominently featured actors as Torin Thatcher, Richard Boone, Betty St. John (who created the role of Liat in "South Pacific"), Jeff Morrow, Ernest Thesiger, Dawn Addams and Leon Askin. The Screenplay of "The Robe" was written by Philip Dunne from an adaptation by Gina Kaus.

"NEW HOLIDAY FROCK MAY BE IN CLOSET NOW

Need a new dress for Yuletide partying?

Before you grab your bankroll and head down town, pause for a peek at your own clothes closet, advises API Extension Clothing Specialist Kathleen Thompson. Old garments can sometimes be given a new look with amazingly little effort, the expert added.

Miss Thompson explains that much of the difference in women's fashions this season stems from a rounder at the shoulder look. With shoulder pads taken out and shoulder and sleeve seams brought in, a cast-off begins to look like the "latest". Sometimes the neckline will bear slashing to a V, say the specialist.

Give it a try. "Old Rags" may become your favorite holiday "glad rags".

SPECIAL EGG PROMOTION SCHEDULED FOR JANUARY

Eggs are expected to be at a record height next month, and the poultry industry has planned a special program to give the healthful food a boost from hen to housewife.

Extension Poultryman John T. Weeks has announced that January will be Egg Month, and retailers, wholesalers, and government agencies will join in the campaign to move lar gersupplies of eggs to consumers.

In announcing Egg Month, Weeks said flocks are larger, rate of lay is higher, and food shoppers can expect top-grade eggs at prices favorable to them.

GOVERNMENT TAX BOOKLET NOW AVAILABLE

"Your Federal Income Tax, 1954," the official Government tax guide will be ready for distribution soon after January 1st, the Superintendent of Documents announced today.

Issued each year by the Internal Revenue Service, this helpful booklet is designed especially to aid taxpayers in preparing and filing in their individual returns.

This year's edition includes the important personal income tax provisions incorporated in the New Internal Revenue Code. Among the variety of subjects covered are — who must file a return; when and where; exemptions; deductions; and collections and refunds.

Although "Your Federal Income Tax" is still in press, orders are being accepted for future delivery by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Price of the booklet is 25c per copy.

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS AT CHRISTMAS TIME?

Christmas dinner tables are loaded with food - and old superstitions too. If a guest refuses mince pie, there's bad luck in store for him; eat apples at midnight for good health; be sure to have plum pudding lest you lose a friend during the year. The feeding of animals, sending cards, singing carols and paying Christmas calls are all in superstitious tradition of things to do for good luck.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES WILL REACH 18,000 ON HOLIDAYS

Montgomery,—Alabama's recorded traffic fatalities last week reached 17,952 . . . 35 less than the 1950 population of all of Bibb Co. The Alabama Safety Commission said the 18,000 mark would be reached during the Christmas week-end at the current fatality frequency rate.

Commission chairman Earl McGowin said Alabama began keeping records of traffic deaths in 1925. He added that annual traffic tolls have more than trebled since that year when the car and truck killed 256. The 1953 toll was 834.

A recent release of Dairy Herd Improvement Association record by the Department of Agriculture shows DHIA cows in Alabama averaged 5,918 pounds of milk and 267 pounds of butterfat in 1953

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

To the fellow who ran the Christmas Carolers off his lawn one night last week we can only say "tough name". How can anyone so lack in the spirit of Christmas that they cannot listen to little children sing carols?

The incident above reminds us of the sign standing at the city limits of a small town. "5000 happy people and three old grouches welcome you to Blank City". Guess it takes all kinds to make a world.

Chilton County will have a float in the Gubinatorial parade in Montgomery on January 17. Local Folk supporters and businessmen have raised the money and plan here for the C. C. H. S. Band to go there too. We understand that Maplesville High School band will be there. Our Chilton County peach queen, Miss Martha Bell, will ride the float with her attendents. Since peaches has grown to be one of our biggest money crops the returns in publicity for said peache should be well worth the cost to the local contributors.

A local guy was complaining that a wife never kissed him unless she wanted money. Seems to us it would be often enough.

Don't forget to do your Christmas shopping early.

We only received one thing for Christmas that didn't fit. That was a necktie. It was either too long or one end or the other every time I put it on. Finally couldn't decide which end was too long so just cut a piece out of the middle. That fixed it.

Let a lot of Christmas ties come that sort of ending.

Tommy, what dirty hands you have," said the teacher one morning as Tommy entered his classroom. "What would you say if I came to school with such dirty hands?" "Nothing", remarked Tom "I'd be too polite."

People who can't decide whether to go to a Palmist or a Mind-reader had better go to the Palmist as they know they have a palm.

Year Trials Support Same Cotton Varieties

Auburn, Ala.—Variety trials conducted over the state for the past few years have resulted in very little change in cotton varities recommended for Alabama.

J. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton improvement specialist, announced this week that experiment Station tests have led to the addition of one recommended variety, all-in-one.

All-in-one is a wilt-resistant cotton which can be grown on wilt infested or wilt-free soils anywhere. He state the expert explained. The varieties in the same category are Plains, Auburn 56, Coker 10, Stonewilt, Smith 78, and Empire.

All the recommended list for the wilt-free soils of Northern and Central Alabama only are the following wilt-susceptible varieties: Delta 33 Paula, and Stoneville 2B.

TRAPPING PAY, NICE OF EXPERT

Trapping is fun, but it should also be profitable, says Extension Game and Wildlife Specialist Earl Kennamer.

An expert believes that Alabama trappers should try to sell their furs for the best prices they will bring. Large numbers of beaver, mink, muskrat, and raccoon furs probably command that because through a fur auction company states. Small lots often bring the best prices if sold directly to reliable fur buyers.

To make trapping time count the most, meat of edible fur animals should be eaten or fed to domestic animals. Beaver meat is said to feed dog after dog, according to trapper, who says that beaver and muskrat can be fed also to hogs. However, poultry should be fed only as many strips at a time, cautious the specialist, as they will clean up at one.

A farm shop planned according to the size of the farm is very important. It should be located in the upper end of the machinery shed

Christmas Chest Officers Thank Everyone For Their Assistance

The Board of Directors of the Chilton County Christmas Chest wish to take this means of extending their thanks, to every person who helped in any way to make the Christmas Chest campaign a success. More food, clothing, and toys were collected than in previous years, and contributions in the form of money are still being received.

The Chairman, Rev. M. K. Vickers, commends the people of Chilton County for their loyal support in this great under-taking. The money collected will be used to give emergency support throughout the coming year; the food clothing and toys were distributed to approximately 130 families in Chilton County.

Rev. Vickers and the Christmas Chest workers would especially like to thank the following groups: the individual chairmen in each community; FFA and FHA; automobile dealers; businessmen; and those who distributed the boxes to need families. Each of these groups contributed to the great success of the Christmas Chest and each member of the Board of Directors grateful.

Chilton Unity To Meet Wednesday

The W. M. U. Quarterly meeting of the Chilton Unity Association will meet at the West End Baptist Church on Wednesday, Jan. 5, at 10 a.m.

All ladies are urged to attend and to bring a covered dish.

Christmas Chest Served Hundreds

This week the News is publishing the final names of doners to the Christmas Chest fund. Although less money was contributed than in past years the Christmas Chest was a big success and made Christmas possible for hundreds of children and grown-ups that would have known no Christmas at all.

The total was $609.00. Miners Springs Church gave $2.50; Betty Donovan, 3.00; Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp., 35.00; Clanton Presbyterian Church, 48.62; Miss Flora Harris, 5.00; Miss Marguerite Raney, 5.00; Mrs. Gladys Gray, 10.00; J. L. Hollis, 5.00; Cottles Auto Supply Co., 25.00; Den Williams Motor Co., Inc., 12.50 Lambert Motor Co, 25.00; Bell Hardware Company, 12.50.

New Total: $798.12.

Farmers Reminded To Report Their Conservation Moves

Eddie Owen, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and conservation Committee reminds farmers of Chilton County that conservation practices which have been approved by the Committee should be completed in every respect by December 31, and reported not later than January 15, 1955, in order for the farmer to receive credit for the practice.

Mr. Owen pointed out that the Government in most instances has already provided its share of the cost of the conservation practices by issuing purchase orders to be used by the farmer to purchase materials necessary to carry out the practices on individual farms. He further states that all materials for which a purchase order has been issued must be accounted for through their use in carrying out an approved practice or charged to the individual to whom the purchase order has been issued.

Mr. Owen says that it is very important that a report on all practices for which a farmer obtained a written approval from the County Committee be made to the ASC office in Clanton.

PIPES AND PUMPS NEED WINTERTIME PROTECTION

With colder and colder weather coming on, farmers will want to see that machinery and equipment on their places don't develop wintertime "kinks". Fortunately industry has made it easy and fairly inexpensive for farmers to use electrical heating systems and keep pumps and water systems operating freely during the coldest months.

Making this observation in Auburn this week, API Extension Agricultural Engineer W. T. Cox said a standard 250-watt heat lamp will run only about $1.10. Suspended high enough so that its light and heat rays cover a pump, lamp that size will throw a protective blanket of warmth around the machinery and keep it running smoothly. And the farm worker will appreciate the warmth from heat lamps hung over his working place in the milk house or farm shop.

Low-cost heating cable for exposed water pipes and faucets another device which can prevent costly damage, added Cox.

"Seed Processing Equipment", new publication of the Mississippi Experiment Station discusses principles and procedures of seed processing and the kinds of machine used.

SAVING SEED PENNIES MAY COST YOU POUNDS

Auburn, Ala.—Penny wise and pound foolish."

That's how an old saying describes persons who are frugal in little things without regard to future costs of present husbandry. And that's how API Extension Seed Crops Marketing Specialist Ralph R. Jones describes farmers who try to save pennies on the seeds the plant.

Sound economic practices are virtues, but beware of economy relations to seeds, Jones warns this week. Cheap seed is seldom if ever a good buy. Good seed cheap at any reasonable cost, asserted the farm leader.

As an example, Jones mentions farmers who planted hybrid corn seed from their cribs. Such seed are second generation and cost the planters 15 to 20 bushels per acre in lower yields, he explained.

Since each 100 layers drink about seven gallons of water each day good ventilation is necessary to remove excess moisture from the hen house.

JANUARY IS MARCH OF DIMES MONTH

Montgomery, Ala.—January has been proclaimed as March of Dimes month in Alabama by the Gov. at the request of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in its fight against polio

In proclaiming the special month Persons urged citizens of the state "to give with enlightened generosity so that a worthwhile cause may be continued and a great humanitarian victory hastened."

Noting that "real progress" has been made toward a vaccine "that may be the answer to immunization of our people against dread polio" the governor said that the March of Dimes is facing a bigger task in 1955. "even as the prospect for brighter than ever before."

In addition to all the funds the freedom from polio's threat loom Foundation will need from the March of Dimes for additional research and care and treatment of polio patients, the governor said an additional $64,000,000 will be needed for the purchase of 9,000,000 doses of the new polio (Salk) vaccine if it is licensed.

Persons said that in spite of the work that has been done to com hat polio the rate has increased from 6.5 cases per 100,000 populatio in the five-year period 1939-43 t 25.6 cases per 100,000 in the five-year period 1949-54.

Alabama has special reason t remember, the governor said, as calling that the state, Montgomer especially, has been hard hit polio in recent years.

He was referring to the gamm globulin shots given children her summer before last and the Sal vaccine administered this past summer.

Three-month-old Bobby Hill of Blanchester, Ohio was America's youngest iron lung polio patient in 1954. This emergency March of Dimes respirator saved his life. Now freed from the respirator, Bobby will continue to receive all the March of Dimes help he needs in his journey back to health. The March of Dimes will end on January 31.

THE HOPE:

This past summer 440,000 school children throughout America were inoculated with a trial polio vaccine, which offers great hope for the future. Now the results of this enormous trial operation are being evaluated by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. and his staff at the University of Michigan. The Francis Report will be issued some time this spring. Until then, no one will know whether the trial vaccine is the beginning of the end for polio.

THE GAMBLE:

While the Francis Report is being awaited, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is taking a $9,000,000 calculated risk on the success of the trial vaccine. Here's how: the National Foundation is purchasing enough of the vaccine right now to give three inoculations each to about 9,000,000 people. This is so it can be used immediately where most needed, if the Francis Report is favorable. The stakes are high but worth it.

THE OUTLOOK:

If the vaccine is licensed for use, it will mean that thousands of children, and adults too, will be spared the ordeal of Bobby Hill, youngest iron lung patient stricken in 1954. But for Bobby Hill himself, a proven vaccine can be of no help. His will be a long and difficult fight, just as it will be for thousands of other polio patients. And even with a successful vaccine it will not be possible to prevent many thousands of new cases during the next few years.

To pay for all this . . . vaccine, treatment of patients like Bobby Hill, new scientific research, training of treatment personnel and for special equipment such as iron lungs . . . your generous contribution to the March of Dimes is needed.

AMERICANS LOOKING TO '55 AS GOOD BUSINESS YEAR

Princeton, New Jersey—With the new year just ahead, confidence among the nation's adult citizens in the U. S. A.'s business and job prospects is high.

A United States Poll survey just completed shows that nearly three out of every five adult citizens questioned in the nationwide survey expect more or the same amount of business and jobs for the U. S. A. during the next few years than it had during the past two years.

At the same time, nearly two out of each five questioned see less business and fewer jobs ahead.

In other words, those who see more or the same amount of business and jobs ahead for the U.S.A. during the next few years outnumber by a margin of three to two those who see less business and fewer jobs ahead.

One year ago, 53 per cent expected more or the same amount of business and jobs; 42 per cent expected less business and fewer jobs, and 5 per cent expressed no opinion.

Today's findings thus represent 5 per cent more optimism and 4 per cent less pessimism than a year ago.

Important, too, is the fact that the proportion of the nation's population expecting the same or more business and jobs in the U.S.A. is higher than it was at any time during the past year.

It is not, however, so high as it was between December, 1952, and October, 1953.

Today's findings in the light of these previous survey results would indicate that business and job conditions for 1955 should be at least as good as those in 1954—if not better.

They also give definite indication that people across the U.S.A. are not expecting any serious recession in the very near future.

When United States Poll staff reporters personally asked a representative cross-section of the nation's adult citizens:

"How do you feel about the business conditions in this state for the next few years? Do you think there'll be more business and more jobs than during the past year or two or less business and fewer jobs?"

These wer the nationwide results:

Business and Job Prospects, N'wide

More or the same amount	58%
More	30%
Same	28
Less	38
No opinion	4

And here is the trend in the nation since December, 1952, when the United States Poll first began measurements on the question:

More or Same

December, 1952 (2 years ago, 70; March of 1953, 71; July, 65; Oct., 60; Dec. (one year ago), 53; March, 1954,47; April, 52, June, 54; Oct., 57; Today, 58.

Less

December, 1952 (2 years ago), 15; March, '53, 17; July, 32; Oct., 34; December, 1953 (one year ago) 42; March, 1954, 49; April, 43; June, 41; Oct., 39; Today, 38.

No Opinion

December, 1952 (two years ago), 15; March, 1952, 12; July, 3; Oct., 6; December, 1953 (one year ago), 5; March, 1954, 4; April, 5; June, 5; October, 4; Today, 4.

Since December, 1947, Princeton Research Service has been making periodic measurements on people's outlook on future business and job conditions in various parts of the nation and in the U. S. as a whole.

During that time, there has been a close correlation between the answers people have given and the actual business and job conditions in the areas measured.

The Chilton County News presents the reports of the United States Poll exclusively in this area. Follow United States Poll reports in "Your Community Newspaper".

* IT'S MY OPINION *
* * * *

You Know, it's hard to tell who's the neurotic these days. . . you or the writers who keep telling you, you are. Everything you pick up to read has a story or an article in it saying something like, "Are You The Type Who Knows How To Spend Money" or "If You Can't Get Along With Your Wife, It's Too Late Now". If they keep that sort of thing up, they will succeed in making habitual neurotics of all of us. We're all neurotics, according to some writers. If we don't act just a certain way, normal they call it, then we'd better see a psychiatrist. Then they go on to explain "normal" in such a way that none of us could possibly meet the requirements.

If you ask me, they have just missed the boat on knowing human nature. On the other hand, they could lack something better to write about. Where they dig up all this stuff about "abnormalities" and the like is beyond me. A person is only neurotic when he thinks everyone thinks he is unusual. In other words, don't knock yourself out listening to others tell you you're not like the rest of us. It can go much farther toward making a neurotic of you than it can to help you.

Why doesn't someone break the tie and take time out of the "routine" and write one on "Be Yourself And Like It" or "Take Time Out And Be Yourself". Chances are you'll find being yourself is much more pleasing to all concerned than trying to be "normal". We make neurotics of ourselves by listening to this mumbo jumbo and believing it about what we do that we shouldn't and vica versa. Wonder if the writers of this malarkey ever heard of "individual". Some people are just plain old "rugged individualists", but don't you be one. If you do then you need to see a psychiatrist. Bunk! You have to be what you have to be, and trying to change that, unless you're an undesirable character, is one step further toward making a neurotic of yourself.

We weren't all born the same. We won't all die the same. So why must we all act the same or be termed as "freaks". That's a neurotic.

If what they term as neurotics are the individuals, then this world would be a dull place to live in without them. We'd all be the spittin' image of the other fellow, in our actions anyhow. Just a bunch of puppets exactly alike.

You have probably read before, and found definite proof therein, that you were in need of a psychiatrist. We dare say all of us could use a little guidance now and then, but not from a head doctor.

Be yourself, try to be pleasant, and don't listen to those who would make you agree that you're about the most backward soul on this earth. All they're trying to prove is that someone feels the same way they do, so they will know themselves they won't be termed "neurotics". They're trying to prove to themselves, that if there are a million other people who do the same things they write about and call "unusual", then even if they are neurotics they have an awful lot of company.

Yep, when you take a quiz or a test and prove that you yourself are a little out of the ordinary, all you're doing is proving to whoever wrote it that he isn't. In other words if you're what the quiz calls a neurotic then he is too and that makes him normal, just like you. Only thing is, he's the only one who knows it. He now has you believing you're nuts while he sits back and enjoys the self-satisfaction of being a normal human being just like you.

So, stop fooling yourself. If you can't resist the temptation of finding out whether you're a neurotic or not by taking some sort of test, then maybe you'd better write a little quiz of your own and stick it to somebody. That way you'll find out that you're just about like everyone else. And the vicious cycle will begin all over again. It's enough to make a "neurotic" out of you, isn't it???

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ANGINA PECTORIS

Heart disease is a broad term covering many conditions that affect the action of the heart. Angina pectoris is one such condition and occurs when there is interference with the blood supply to the heart muscle.

Acting like a pump, the heart circulates the blood through the body. The heart itself is composed of a mass of muscles forming four chambers which receive the blood brought to it from all parts of the body through the veins. This blood is first pumped to the lungs. There it receives fresh oxygen and goes back to the heart, from which it is again passed out to every part of the body through the arteries. After it has distributed its oxygen and other essential substances to the individual organs, it is collected into the veins and thus brought back to the heart.

The heart is nourished chiefly by its own blood vessels which originate in the largest blood vessel which comes off from the heart. Any changes which occur in this large blood vessel may interfere with the flow of blood through these vessels into the heart.

A muscle requires a certain amount of blood carrying oxygen to perform its work satisfactorily. If the muscular tissue of the heart does not have enough blood and oxygen, the first notice symptom is pain in the heart.

In angina pectoris, which usually means pain in the chest, pain is usually under the upper bone just to the left. The pain is usually short in duration, generally brought on by walking, exercise and seems to extend the shoulder or down the arm, sometimes to the left side of the neck or to the pit of the stomach.

As in all heart patients the outlook for the sufferer with angina pectoris is bright, provided he follows carefully the advice of a competent physician. Certain medication can be prescribed to alleviate the terrifying pain which is associated with the condition and medical supervision will tend to minimize subsequent attacks. Preventing repeated attacks will also minimize the damage to the heart muscle.

Careful adherence to the physician's advice in readjusting and regulating one's life will do much to obviate repeated attacks of angina pectoris.

(MRS. GEORGE NAISH)

A prayer by St. Francis of Assisi—

Lord, make me an instrument of thy peace'. Where there is hatred, let me show love! Where there is injury, pardon. Where there is doubt, faith. Where there is despair, hope. Where there is sadness joy.

O, Divine Master, grant that may not so much seek to be consoled as to console; to be understood as to understand, to be loved as to love.

For it is ingiving that we receive. It is in pardoning that we are pardoned. It is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life.

Henry Van Dyke has said: There is a better thing than the observance of Christmas Day and that is keeping Christmas: when you willing to forget what you have done for other people and to remember what other people have done for you; to see that your fellowmen are just as real as you are and to try to look behind their faces to their hearts, hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existance is not what you are going to get out of life but what you are going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe and look around you for a place where you can sow a few seeds of happiness—are you willing to do these things for a day? Then you can keep Christmas—for a year.

As the light of the old year fades we extend our thanks to our friends for all favors in the past year and as the new years beams bright, we hope it will bring joy, peace, contentment and happiness.

LESSON IN TACT

By Lealon Martin

"EVERYBODY knows she's cranky!" Mary Blair, society editor, circulation manager, and office force of the News told her boss when the ruffled caller had departed.

"Even so, Miss Blair," Howard Rankin said, "perhaps you could be, er, less positive."

"All I did was show her the carbon of the subscription order she'd signed. Anyhow, she paid up. She still wants the paper."

"She seemed very angry."

"She always does. Last year, the year before. Next year, too, probably." Mary went back to her desk.

Six months earlier, Howard Rankin had been an assistant professor of economics at the state university. Making a survey of the state's newspapers, he found his interest in journalism so great that he had given up teaching, was now the proud owner and editor of the Centreville News.

With the paper he had inherited Mary Blair, twenty-two and red-headed. She was vaguely disturbing. As efficient a person as she should not be also pretty.

"Why don't you run on, Miss Blair," he said, noting that she was still at work past closing time. "I want to finish this editorial on mass hysteria for my series. I'll stay on."

"Okay. But look, I'd soft pedal that. Some folks think you're on the wrong tack."

"I prefer to complete the series. I'm not afraid."

"That's not the point," Mary said, leaving.

By seven-thirty he was through and reading over the editorial when the office door swung slowly open. A grim man in overalls stalked in, a blue-barrelled pistol dangling in one hand.

"I have come for you," the figure said.

"Er, there must be some mistake," Howard managed.

"No mistake. You the new editor, ain't you? Been writing about hys . . . hyst . . . folks being crazy. Now, I'm gonna . . ."

"'Scuse me, folks!" said a cheery voice. "Forgot my bag." Mary added, breezing past to her desk.

"Why, it's Mr. Hough!" she said, "and you're showing Mr. Rankin how to shoot. How nice! Mr. Hough was the best pistol shot in his regiment in the Spanish-American War."

"Evenin', Mis' Mary. Naw, just Company 'B'," the man said.

"Isn't this lucky!" Mary said. "You see, Mr. Hough, Mr. Rankin had just this afternoon asked me to see you."

"What?" Howard started, then caught on. "Yes . . . yes," he gulped.

"He wanted to have me talk to someone who knows all about the Army and keeps up with things, and we thought you'd be about the best one to talk to."

"Uh, well, I don't know 'bout that." The old man grinned, bashfully, shoving the gun down into a pocket.

"Will you excuse us, Mr. Rankin?" said Mary. "Just step in here, Mr. Hough, please." She led him into the outer office.

Twenty minutes later, Howard's nose came cautiously through the door when he heard, "Goodbye, Mr. Hough, and thank you."

"Has he gone?"

Mary smiled and nodded, and he saw that her head came to just above his shoulder, that her eyes were a warm, deep brown.

"Forgive me," he said, "for lecturing you on tact. And thanks a million, Miss . . . thank you, Mary."

"That's all right . . . Howard," she said. "Mr. Hough's really a nice old man. He has spells, but he's harmless if you know how to handle him. Oh, here's something for you."

She offered a slip of paper. He read quickly, then looked at Mary, standing very near. Their eyes caught and smiled.

The slip read: "Centreville News Subscription Order. Please send me the News for one year from date. Signed: Elmer Hough."

Canebrake To Give 6 Per Cent Dividend

A regular 6 per cent dividend was announced by the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association of Marion, Alabama.

Members of the Association in Bibb, Chilton, Dallas, Perry and Wilcox Counties, — which have obtained land bank loans through this cooperative credit system — receive their checks during the month of January, G. B. Auburtin Sec.-Treas. reported recently.

Mr. Auburtin explained the dividend was made possible by a dividend the association received from the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, in which all of the stock is owned by the 67 National Farm Loan Associations throughout Alabama and Louisiana and Mississippi.

Mr. Auburtin called attention to the fact that the dividend is to the members share in the savings occurring to the system through efficient operation, and represents a reduction in that amount in the cost of their loans.

One factor in America's rising standard of living is the constant demand for higher quality, say marketing specialists. Farmers who lead the pack in meeting that demand sell more at better prices.

A farmer who saves eight pigs per litter produces pork more cheaply than the fellow who saves only five. A sow needs the same feed regardless of the number of her brood.

It's time now to look toward spring plowing. Be sure all your land preparation equipment is in good repair and ready to go.

Ala. Power Co. Awards Contract For Aerial Survey

L. M. Smith, president, announced today that Alabama Power Co. has awarded a contract for the aerial survey of the Warrior River in the area likely to be affected by the construction by the Company of a dam on the Sipsey Fork when necessary approvals are given.

Several field parties already are at work establishing the ground control stations which will be the key points for the assembly on the many aerial photographs into maps. Geologists are examining sources from which will be supplied the rock and earth with which to construct the three hundred ft high dam, part of which will be earth filled. The power house and spillway section will be of concrete.

The Company filed its application or a preliminary permit for this as well as for the installation of generating facilities at Lock 17 on July 27.

Mr. Smith said that it was hoped that the permit would be received from the Federal Power Commission in the near future. It is on the basis of this expectation that the Company is proceeding diligently with the studies necessary to prepare the application for the license which will authorize actual construction on the Sipsey Fork and at Lock 17.

The dam at Sipsey Fork will result in a new source of power supply for Alabama; it will tend to regularize the flow of the Warrior River and thus be an aid to downstream navigation and lessen the pollution problem at downstream points during dry weather periods when the Warrior River has a tendency to become stagnant in spots; it will provide a potential source of industrial water supply and also be helpful in supplying a better flow of cooling water for the Company's downstream generating plants.

Besides the Federal Power Commission, the U. S. Army Engineers will have to approve the final plans We anticipate no problem, Mr. Smith stated, because the views of the Army Engineers and ours with reference to the overall objectives coincide.

KNOWLEDGE OF ANTIDOTES FOR POISONS MAY PROVE VALUABLE SOMETIME

A knowledge of antidotes for poisons may come in handy if you are called upon to administer first aid before the doctor comes.

Dr. D. G. Gill, State Health Officer, said today that an antidote is specific treatment for poisoning whether accidental or otherwise. "An antidote acts to neutralize the poisonous substance, thus rendering it harmless," he said.

Dr. Gill pointed out that the antidotes for many poisonous household preparations are carried on the lavels. However, if the nature of the poison is unknown, a substance called the "universal antidote" should be given.

The "universal antidote" consists of two parts pulverized charcoal, one part magnesium oxide and one part tannic acid. These ingredients may be obtained from a drugstore, if one is close by, Dr Gill said. Or burned toast, Milk of Magnesia and strong tea may be substituted.

Also remember always to call the doctor in poisonous cases, even though you have given the proper antidote.

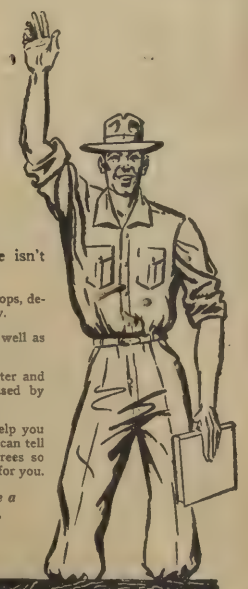
WEEDS GROW IN TREE CROPS TOO



Farmers know best of all that nature isn't always friendly.

She permits weeds to compete with valuable crops, depriving the desirable plants of precious fertility.

She lets "weed trees" grow, too, just as well as "crop trees."

They take up needed space, sunlight, water and plant foods that would otherwise be used by good trees.

Let Coosa River's "Friendly Forester" help you by giving you sound forestry advice. He can tell you how to get rid of the undesirable trees so that the good trees can grow more money for you.

Make Sure Of All Things-

Warning of Assault By Gog of Magog

Who is Gog? Where is Magog? Whom does Gog assault? Why? When? What warning must be given? Wherein lies protection?

Gog of the land of Magog is mentioned in both the prophecy of Ezekiel and that of Revelation. The context of each, however, indicates that they refer to two different time periods, and our concern at this time is with the prophecy having the earlier fulfillment, in fact, in the very near future, that found in Ezekiel chapters 28 and 39.

Who is Gog? From what appears in other parts of the Scriptures regarding Christians' fighting not with flesh and blood and having in visible spirit enemies, and also from what appearsh in Ezekiel's prophecy itself, it is apparent that Gog is none other than Satan the Devil the prince of demons. This should not surprise us, for do we not find Satan referred to as the King of Babylon at Isaiah 14 and as the king of Tyre at Ezekiel 28?

This prophecy directed against Gog of the land of Magog has its fulfillment at the "end of the years", or during the time of the end, particularly since 1919, after Satan and his demons were cast out of heaven, as noted in Revelation, chapter 12, and after the servants of Jehovah were restored to their "land" of pure worship as a New World society. So the term Gog would apply to Satan really only after that time, Magog fittingly describing the depased position he and his demons occupy since being cast out of heaven.

The prophecy shows Gog staging an all-out attack with a great host of mixed peoples, representing Satan's forces, invisible and visible. And against whom does he come? Against Jehovah's people who have been restored to their "land" of pure worship. And why does Gog come against them? Because their pure worship proves him a liar, because he envies their property in both spiritual and material riches and numbers. He sees his own system of things going from bad to worse economically, politically, religiously, morally, and so is determined to wipe out the New World society, whose prosperity stands out in such contrast. Of course, actually Jehovah is leading Gog on to the attack by letting his people be in a seemingly vulnerable situation.

When will the attack come? Other Scriptures indicate that it will come within this generation. And how and where can we find protection? Not by cowardly fleeing from the "land" or condition of pure worship of Jehovah in the new system of things as members of a New World society; no, no by breaking faith with Jehovah. Rather, deliverance lies in not running. Jehovah will furnish protection to those who stand their ground even as he did for those who remained true to him in times of old.

That attack by Gog upon Jehovah's servants will force Jehovah God to take action and will result in the greatest demonstration of power that mankind has witnessed in its six thousand years of existance, and that elsewhere is termed "the war of the great day of God the Almighty," Armageddon. Rev 16:14,16, NW.

So that men of good will may sebe forewarned of the attack of Gog, let all those now dwelling securely in the "unwalled villages" tell to all who will hear the truth about the imminence of Gog's attack and what they must do to find protection with the New Word society in Jehovah's new system of things. Zeph. 2:1-3.

EVERY HIGHWAY IS "PASSABLE but DANGEROUS"

Such a warning is not alone for a road under construction or repair. It's any road—it's every road.

The "open road" is engineered for safety. Its curves, grades, over and under passes, and road markings are all designed for you to drive and live. But every road can be as safe or as dangerous as you and millions of other drivers make it. It's how you drive, how you respect road controls, speed limits, stop signs; how you think when you drive and how you use or misuse the courtesy of the road that determines the degree of safety or danger.

Since the end of the war, rural highway deaths have climbed until they account for three-quarters of the toll in dead and injured. In 1952, 28,200 deaths out of a total of 38,000!

Three of every four accidents occurred in clear weather on dry roads. Eighty percent of vehicles involved in fatal accidents were traveling straight ahead.

These are stark facts which put the terrific highway carnage straight up to the driver behind the wheel. A reckless, lawless attitude makes safe highways dangerous.

Ask yourself, honestly, "Am I a safe, or dangerous driver?"

SLOW DOWN—LIVES ARE IN YOUR HANDS!
